Heavy Raid Puts Deusseldorf Virtually Out of War; Italy's Islands Raked by 400 Planes

Roosevelt Tells Rubber Strikers to Go Back to Jobs

President Terms Work Stoppages 'Inexcusable,' Blow Against War Effort

President Roosevelt last night denounced the rubber strike at Akron, Ohio, as "a challenge to government by law and a blow against the effective prosecution of the war," and directed that all picketing cease and all the strikers return to work by noon today.

Responding to Roosevelt's demand, officials of C. I. O. United Rubber Workers Union locals ordered an end to the five-day war production stoppage later and expressed confidence their members would comply this morning, the Associated Press reported.

The Chief Executive acted shortly after Dean Wayne L. Morse, public member and compliance officer of the War Labor Board, had referred the strike to the White House. The walkout, now embracing 51,000 rubber workers, for five days had defied efforts of the WLB to get the men back to work. Some fistfights had occurred when pickets around Akron's four major rubber companies' plants blocked the efforts of some workers to return to their jobs.

Calls Them "Inexcusable"

Mr. Roosevelt's telegram to union officials said:

"The National War Labor Board has reported to me concerning the serious strikes existing in several rubber plants in Akron, Ohio. From the point of view of the Nation, these strikes are inexcusable and must therefore be accepted by the country and by your Government for what they basically are: Namely, a defiance of the War Labor Board, a challenge to government by law and a blow against the effective prosecution of the war. Further, these strikes constitute a flagrant violation of the no-strike pledge. They must not be permitted to continue any longer. In the midst of a war, calling for the supreme sacrifice of many in the ranks of our armed forces, it is shocking to the Nation to discover that any group within our citizenry would impede, for a single moment, the production of the materials of war needed for our war effort

Orderly Procedures Exist

"Economic sacrifices, whether real or not, do not justify the strike action taken by the members of your union. The War Labor Board has already called your attention to the fact that orderly procedures exist for a review of your grievances, but those procedures cannot be made available to you in the face of a strike against the security of this Nation. As I have stated before, the decisions of the War Labor Board are binding upon all employers and all employes, and a defiance of the board cannot be permitted.

"Therefore, as Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, I direct all picketing to cease and all employes now out on strike at the rubber plants to return to work at once. If this strike is not ended by 12 o'clock noon, Thursday, May 27, 1943, your Government will take the necessary steps to protect the interests of the Nation, the legal rights and properties of the companies involved, and the rights of the patriotic workers who desire to work. I hereby request and delegate you to notify the members of your union accordingly and make clear that each and every one of them now out on strike should consider that this telegram is also addressed to the individual striker."

New Bedford Strike

The telegram was addressed to Sherman H. Dalrymple, international president U. R. W. A.-C. I. O., Akron, Ohio; Harley W. Treen, president Local No. 7, U. R. W. A.-C. I. O., Akron, Ohio; George R. Bass, president Local No. 5, U. R. W. A.-C. I. O., Akron, Ohio, and G. L. Lewis, president Local No. 2, U. R. W. A.-C. I. O., Akron, Ohio.

Meanwhile, the War Labor Board sent Daniel J. Tobin, presi-

Conferences Resume Here

Lewis Sticks to His Demand For $2 Daily Raise for Miners

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, renewed his demand for a $2 a day increase—this time by the "portal-to-portal" route—when collective bargaining conferences between operators and miners resumed here yesterday at Hotel Statler, in accordance with a War Labor Board order, informed sources reported.

The miners and operators met together in brief sessions in the morning and afternoon. The operators submitted no counterproposals to Lewis' demand, it was learned.

Conferences were slated to resume at 10 a. m. today with some counterproposal from the operators on the "portal-to-portal" issue expected.

The bargaining conferences were ordered resumed by the War Labor Board to work out a compromise settlement of the miners' demands for "portal-to-portal" pay and to draft terms of a complete new contract within 15 days.

It was disclosed that Lewis had called a meeting of his international policy committee for Saturday in Washington, giving rise to reports that he hoped to have a completed contract to present to them at that time. However, in some quarters, it still was predicted that the full 15-day period would probably be consumed in bargaining conferences.

Representatives of both Northern and Southern operators met with Lewis and District presidents of the U. M. W. in joint sessions. At earlier bargaining conferences in New York City, Northern and Southern operators insisted on separate conferences with the U. M. W.

WLB turned down Lewis' original demand for a $2 a day increase in straight time rates but suggested that there would be some money for the miners if a bargain could be reached on portal-to-portal pay.

Lewis' demand for $2 a day was said to be calculated on the assumption that the miners required compensation for an hour and a half of travel time from the "portal" to the mine face and back to the portal.

Calculated at time and a half rates as overtime, Lewis contended that this would amount to an increase of $2.25 a day. The miners indicated that they favored reducing this amount to a flat $2 to thereby accumulate a sum to com-

8-Cent Raise In Rail Pay Recommended

Presidential Board Suggests Boost; No Hitch Expected

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

Using a somewhat more liberal interpretation of national wage stabilization policies than the Labor Board has been allowed to follow recently, a presidential emergency board yesterday recommended an increase of 8 cents an hour in the wage rates of 1,097,180 nonoperating employes of the country's railroads.

The wage boost, to cost an estimated 334 million dollars annually, will go into effect within 30 days unless upset by order of the President or Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes. The boost was ordered retroactive to February 1, 1943, with back pay amounting to 85 million dollars by July 1 to be made in war bonds.

No Changes Expected

A demand for a union shop on all roads was turned down flatly.

It is understood that Byrnes will ask the War Labor Board for comment on the recommendation. It is expected that the occasion will be used by some members of the board to demand a re-examination of present WLB policies in the light of the rail decision.

The three-man board which was set up under the Railway Labor Act by presidential order found that nothing was due the workers under the "Little Steel" formula, viewing wages on an industry-wide basis. The increase was based on language in the October 2 Stabilization Act authorizing pay boosts to correct "gross inequities

Glassford Named Special Minister To Dakar Area

President Roosevelt's appointment of Rear Admiral William A. Glassford, jr., as his personal representative, with the rank of minister, in French West Africa was announced yesterday by the State Department.

Admiral Glassford will head an American mission at Dakar to coordinate and supervise American activities in that area, the announcement said. He will leave for his post "in the near future."

Threat of Veto For Tax Bill Diminishes

President Expected To Expedite Start of Payroll Collection

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt probably will sign the compromise pay-as-you-go tax bill which Congress is preparing to send him next week, informed officials said yesterday, despite certain displeasure with its provision for abating 75 per cent of a year's taxes from the $50 tax level up through the highest brackets. The compromise would abate all of a year's tax below $50.

The President's signature would be given, it was suggested, to make sure that the new income tax withholding collection system could be started July 1, for salary and wage earners. This can be done, it was learned, if the bill becomes law by the end of next week. The House is expected to approve the bill Tuesday, and the Senate to follow suit later in the week.

Would Eliminate Delay

If the President intended to let the bill become law anyway, signing it would eliminate the 10-day wait needed for it to become law without his signature, and so permit starting the new collection system on July 1.

Foes of the compromise predicted that the scale might be tipped for a veto if it appears that Congress generally regards the compromise as a way out of the job of writing new increases in tax rates. Some Capitol leaders have said that spreading 25 per cent of a year's liability over the next two years, as provided in the compromise, would make further individual rate increases impossible during that time. In turn, this would contradict the Administration's revenue raising program.

No Good Reason

Indorsing the compromise, House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts, said that the country will be "disappointed" at not getting the Ruml plan, but that if the 75 per cent plan "results in no further increases in individual taxes it will have the advantage of letting the people know now just what they are expected to pay."

Senate Finance Committee Chairman George (Democrat) of Georgia, original author of the 75 per cent abatement proposal, said that the legislation would pass "with no difficulty at all," and that he

Edsel Ford Dead at 49

Henry Ford May Resume Helm Of Firm Because of Son's Death

By David J. Wilkie
Associated Press Staff Writer

Detroit, May 26.—Edsel Bryant Ford died today, leaving the gigantic Ford Motor Co. to carry on temporarily without its president, treasurer and nominal general manager. The blow may throw the burden of its direction back upon the shoulders of its founder, the 79-year-old Henry Ford, his father.

Death came to the 49-year-old Edsel Ford at his home in suburban Grosse Pointe shores at 1:30 a. m., and was attributed in a family announcement to a recurrence of a stomach malady aggravated by undulant fever.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday in Christ Church chapel, Grosse Pointe. Burial will be private. The Right Rev. Frank W. Creighton, Episcopal Bishop of Michigan, and the Rev. Francis B. Creamer, rector of Christ Church parish, will officiate. The family has not indicated but interment may be in a family plot on a Ford-owned farm not far from Henry Ford's birthplace. There are buried the elder Ford's parents, several brothers and other members of the family.

The younger Ford's ailment dated back more than a year and a half. He underwent an operation for stomch ulcers in January, 1942. It was a recurrence of this malady that took the widely popular president of the Ford company to Florida for a rest and recuperation ten weeks ago.

He failed to regain his strength and discovered then that he had contracted undulant fever. He returned home, where his condition became critical last Saturday.

With the death of Henry Ford's only son came speculation and conjecture concerning the future of

Sicily, Sardinia, Pantelleria Hit; Mainland Facing New Air Blows

By Noland Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters In North Africa, May 26.—Italy soon will be struck by aerial blows of such magnitude as to dwarf yesterday's terrific hammering in which nearly 400 planes blasted and burned the island outposts of Sicily, Sardinia and Pantelleria, authoritative sources declared today.

As the Allies' great North African aerial circus settled into its day and night routine of bombing and strafing Italy out of the war, optimism ran high. Yesterday's loss of 11 planes was described as "remarkably small in view of the large attacking forces and proof of the superior tactics, equipment and leadership."

Messina Docks Paralyzed

The two-way pounding of the Sicilian ferry terminus of Messina by American four-engined Flying Fortresses and Liberators was believed virtually to have paralyzed the city's port facilities. The Fortress raid in particular was called "one of the most successful attacks of the North African campaign.' The Liberator fleet alone dropped 175 tons of bombs on Messina.

After having taken a heavy beating on Sardinia the previous day without offering much opposition, the enemy threw up an intense anti-aircraft and fighter defense over Messina yesterday. One group of 10 Fortresses was jumped by 40 German fighters before it reached Messina and shot down 12 of the Nazis without losing a bomber.

One American pilot, stressing the futility of the Axis defenses, declared "if they had a thousand fighters we would still have got through." The antiaircraft fire gave another crewman what he described as the "roughest show of my entire 50 missions," but it did not prevent the big planes from smashing Messina's ferry slipways, railroad yards, supply dumps, railway shops and military stores.

Superiority Maintained

The daily Italian communique acknowledged that Messina "was repeatedly attacked and important damage was caused."

Both the American heavy and medium bombers and their Lightning and Warhawk fighter escorts maintained their great combat superiority over the best the Axis was putting into the air in this theater.

Twenty-six more enemy aircraft were reported shot down yesterday and the previous night—23 of them by American raiders over Sicily and three by British Wellington bombers. This brought to 355 the number officially reported de-

Travel on Inter-City Buses Discouraged In Gas Emergency

By Tom Moore McBride
Post Staff Writer

The Washington-Baltimore gasoline shortage was worse than ever yesterday as persons who had begun the week with gas in their tanks began to run out and the Office of Defense Transportation warned that the situation will become progressively tighter as the full impact of the Midwest flood strikes Eastern deliveries.

President Roosevelt took cognizance of the District shortage yesterday and instructed heads of all Federal departments and agencies to restrict operation of Government vehicles "to the bare minimum necessary to carry on essential governmental activities."

Emphasis on the critical nature of the shortage was echoed last night by Ralph K. Davies, acting petroleum administrator, who said stocks of all principal petroleum products available for civilian consumption had dropped to a level that was only 26.8 per cent of normal.

Theodore Wiprud, secretary of the District Medical Society, said the drought for physicians' cars continued unabated, despite the

Jap Resistance On Attu Seen Crumbling

Japanese resistance on Attu Island appeared yesterday to be crumbling fast with one of the enemy's last three main positions in American hands and a second under violent assault.

Army air striking power in the western Aleutian Islands was supporting the assault by ground forces. A Navy communique said that Liberator heavy bombers, Mitchell medium bombers and Lightning fighters all joined the attacks on Monday.

Such heavy use of planes was the maneuver which authorities here had been hoping for. It undoubtedly resulted from a break in the weather. Tacticians had predicted that when planes could be brought into play in such force the enemy would be done for in a hurry.

Chichagof Valley was the first of the enemy positions to fall since the Japanese forces were split last week into three groups. It was cleared of the enemy last Monday.

Immediately, combined units of the original American northern and southern landing groups turned to an attack along the ridge north of the valley, and this, the Navy communique said, "was reported as continuing."

The ridge stands as a bulwark between Chichagof Valley and Chichagof Harbor, one of the two remaining main enemy positions on the northeastern tip of the island where all Japanese troops have been pocketed. The other Japanese position is the area immediately north of Lake Nicholas, which is between 2 and 3 miles southeast of the Chichagof vicinity.

Capture of the ridge between the valley and the harbor would place United States forces in a position for a quick cleanup of the harbor area.

Yesterday's communique also reported continued American aerial forays in the South Pacific where on Monday Avenger torpedo bomb-

With the adherence to the U. S. S. R.—which in this war has failed to join in any formal international agreement—the success of the first international parley on postwar problems has been assured.

Not Later Than September

Japs Will Offer Olive Branch To China, Korean Says Here

By the Associated Press

A Korean leader who predicted the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor two months before it occurred, told the House Immigration Committee yesterday that the Japanese plan to offer China a separate peace not later than September and that officers already have been chosen by Premier Tojo to head an invasion army against the United States.

KILSOO K. HAAN

The informant, Kilsoo K. Haan, Washington representative of the Korean National Front Federation and Sino-Korean Peoples' League, submitted to the committee on October 29, 1941, documents and maps his co-workers had gathered in the Orient. Committee attaches said these showed detailed plans of the Japanese for attacks in the Pacific.

Yesterday committee members apologized for not heeding the warning Haan had given them.

Haan was appearing on bills for repeal of the Chinese exclusion laws.

Terms of the expected peace proposals, which Haan said had already been submitted to the Japanese supreme war council last November, are, according to the Korean representative:

1. That China is to withdraw from the United Nations and remain neutral.

2. That Japan is to restore to China all of the occupied territories, status quo as of 1937; however, Japan is to reserve the right to control and use for the duration all the railroads and harbors now under her domination.

3. Japan and China to name an equal number of delegates to an international commission, to reorganize Manchukuo for joint Sino-Japanese ownership after the war.

4. Japan to grant China one billion yen lend-lease credit.

Haan also told the committee that Premier Tojo gave a party at his Tokyo residence last month in honor of the aged Mitsuru Toyama, head of the Black Dragon Society, and disclosed that Rear Admiral Katsutaro Miyazaki had been chosen to lead a naval force against the United States between June and October, 1943, and that General Shunroku Hata is to head the invasion army.

Order of the Bath

Honorary Knighthood Given MacArthur and Eisenhower

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), May 27.—King George VI bestowed today upon Gens. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Douglas MacArthur the honorary rank of Knights, Grand Cross, of the Order of the Bath, military division.

General Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief of North Africa, and General MacArthur, commander in chief of the southwest Pacific, were honored "in recognition of most valuable services in command of troops of the Allied Nations."

In the case of British citizens these appointments would permit the generals the title "sir" but American citizens holding office are forbidden by the Constitution from accepting foreign titles without the consent of Congress.

Gen. John J. Pershing, commander in chief of the A. E. F. in World War I, was honored similarly by King George V.

The appointments implied political as well as royal recognition for the services of the two generals, since such appointments are made by the King only upon the advice or consent of his ministers.

The Order of the Bath is the senior order of British knighthood which has a military division. The rank of knight, grand cross, is the order's first class.

It is held by such top-ranking British commanders as Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, deputy commander in chief in North Africa, and Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in chief in India.

The honorary appointments are reserved for non-British persons.

The American generals will be presented the insignia of the order, a 30-ounce gold collar with 9 imperial crowns, but will not receive the accolade—that is, they will not kneel before the King and be dubbed knight.

5 Block-Busters Per Minute Sent Hurtling Upon Big Inland Port

By Lowell Bennett
International News Service Staff Writer

London, May 26.—The great industrial city of Duesseldorf, irreplaceable cog in the Nazi war machine, took its place tonight with other German armament centers virtually knocked out of the war by the Royal Air Force.

A vast armada of R. A. F. bombers—at least 75 per cent of them four-motored giants—raided Duesseldorf last night in what was officially described as "very great force." There were at least 500 and possibly as many as a thousand planes in the huge bombing squadron.

They visited upon the Rhineland center of war production damage and a weight of bombs said authoritatively to be comparable to those of Dortmund on Monday morning, when the heaviest aerial attack in all history was directed against this Ruhr Valley center of production.

More than five two-ton block-busters hurtled down on Duesseldorf per minute during the assault, in which a number of four-tonners and tens of thousands of incendiaries also were dropped on the city.

Dortmund, Duisberg Idle

Even as details of the Duesseldorf attack were being released by the British Air Ministry, reports from neutral countries described Dortmund, Duisberg and other often-bombed Nazi cities as "idle" from the viewpoint of war production. The authority for this statement was given as Dr. Walther Funk, Nazi minister of economics.

Officially described by one of England's most conservative newspapers, the Yorkshire Post, as a "preliminary to invasion," the Duesseldorf raid played its part in a history-making joint Allied air offensive. It preceded by only a few hours new sweeping attacks by R. A. F. planes against Axis targets in France and the Lowlands.

Duesseldorf, which turns out magnetos, torpedoes, submarine equipment and prefabricated parts for Adolf Hitler's U-boat fleets, was last raided on January 27. On that occasion, several hundred tons of bombs, including many 4000-pound "blockbusters" were dropped in the space of 20 minutes. After a December 2 attack, 190,000 were reported homeless at Duesseldorf.

This latest raid against Duesseldorf was the fifty-second visited upon that city since the war began. Weather was not favorable, and 27 big British bombers were lost. But the vast billowing clouds of smoke which prevented immediate adequate reconnaissance were proof in themselves of the devastation wrought by the onslaught.

"Night Fighters Worried Us"

The pilot of one of the big Stirling bombers that took part in the raid said:

"The ground defenses were ineffective, but the night fighters worried us. There were plenty about."

Two night fighters were shot down.

The Air Ministry said the assault on Duesseldorf was the biggest ever launched in indifferent weather. Clouds and poor visibility prevented the crews from bringing in full details of the bombings, but it was said officially that it would not be surprising if the city was thoroughly paralyzed and could be crossed off the list of "targets for tonight."

Duesseldorf on the Rhine is Germany's third largest inland port, the seat of general administration departments governing virtually all important iron, steel, heavy engineering and armanents concerns in the Rhine and Ruhr districts.

War Sidelights

Goto, New Jap Minister, Sees Peril

New York, May 26 (AP).—The Tokyo radio announced today the appointment of Fumio Goto, former home minister, as minister of state without portfolio, and shortly afterward carried a statement by him warning the people they were "now facing an unprecedentedly grave situation."

His statement, recorded by United States Government monitors, said that "the war situation has further increased its seriousness, as you already well know."

He asserted that "the most urgent demand in our nation at present is to consolidate further our total national strength" and to strengthen the domestic structure "for the decisive battle."

Yamamoto Burial June 5

New York, May 26 (INS).—The Japanese are going to make it a "gruesome twosome" when they bury Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto with great honors on June 5, a broadcast recorded by OWI said today.

Yamamoto, planner of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, will be laid to rest beside another noted stabber-in-the-back, the late Nipponese Fleet Admiral Togo, who pulled off Japan's "Pearl Harbor" against the Russians in 1904. June 5 is the anniversary of Togo's funeral in 1934.

Russians Shatter 1600 Nazis; Heavier Fighting Imminent

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), May 27.—Sixty-seven German planes were destroyed in huge air battles northeast of Novorossisk, and an attack by 1600 enemy troops was shattered northwest of the city Wednesday in a violent eruption of fighting in the Caucasus, Moscow reported early today.

Both German and Russian reports told of renewed fighting in the Kuban bridgehead still held by the Nazis, and a special Moscow broadcast said the 67 German planes were shot down in air combats out of aerial fleets attempting massed raids against Red army troops northeast of Novorossisk.

Russian fighters repulsed the attacks, but lost 20 of their own planes, said the broadcast.

The Germans, meanwhile, declared they had improved their positions in the lower Kuban district near Temryuk, killing 400 Russians and capturing 600 more. This broadcast report said heavier fighting was imminent.

On the Donets sector near Lisichansk, 125 miles southeast of Kharkov, the Germans "under cover of a smoke screen tried to cross to the left bank of the northern Donets River," the midnight communique said.

"They were met with a volley of fire and hurriedly retreated. Many Hitlerites were drowned in the river."

West of Moscow, it reported, "our units wiped out about 200 German officers and men, demolished five dugouts and silenced two enemy artillery batteries."

national anthem and "The Star-Spangled Banner," while a battalion of soldiers, sailors and marines stood at attention.

President Barclay and President-elect Tubman then were escorted into the diplomatic reception room of the White House, where President Roosevelt was waiting to greet them.

The official welcoming committee was made up of Mrs. Roosevelt, Vice President Wallace, Postmaster General Frank Walker, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, Representative Sol Bloom, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, Secretary of Commerce Jones, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Attorney General Biddle.

President Barclay comes here to repay a visit President Roosevelt made to Liberia last winter on his way back from the Casablanca conference. On that occasion, Mr. Roosevelt reviewed American troops in Liberia and inspected the large Firestone rubber plantations there.

The Liberian leader's itinerary follows the usual pattern for kings, queens and presidents who have been coming to Washington in the last year or so. Today he will move to Blair House, visit the Capitol at 12:15 p. m., when he will speak to the Senate. Then he will talk to the House at 12:30 p. m. He will hold a press conference at Blair House at 2:30 p. m., and be Secretary Hull's dinner guest at the Carlton Hotel in the evening.

The White House guest list for the state dinner in President Barclay's honor last night follows:

Others in Guest List

Others were Senator Capper of Kansas, Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, the majority leader; Representative Bloom, Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States Fleet; Lieut. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps; Marvin H. McIntyre, Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, secretaries to the President; Undersecretary Welles; Paul V. McNutt, director of the War Manpower Commission; Harry L. Hopkins, special assistant to the President; Wallace Murray, chief of the Division of Near-Eastern Affairs, State Department; Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, White House naval aide; Byron Price, chief of the Office of Censorship; Frederick P. Hibbard, former American charge in Monrovia; Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University; Emory Ross, general secretary of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America; Juan Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways; Stanley Woodward of the State Department's Protocol Division, and Brig. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis, U. S. A., aide to President Barclay.

General Davis, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, worked his way up from the ranks, and is the highest-ranking Negro officer in the American Army.

Swiss Engineer Reports Duisburg 'Utterly Destroyed'

London (Thursday), May 27 (INS). "Not a building was standing anywhere in Duisburg—everything was simply flattened," according to a Swiss engineer who witnessed the R. A. F.'s record raid May 12.

The engineer, quoted today by the Daily Express on his arrival in Geneva, said "I should never have believed a large town could be so utterly destroyed."

"Fire services were completely disorganized," he said. "Nothing could be done except watch the fires. Everybody seemed stunned with compete inertia."

When dawn broke, "thousands started to leave, not knowing exactly why or where. Anywhere was good enough, as long as it was away," he asserted.

Hitler Demands Another Army Of Rumanians

By the Associated Press

Ankara, May 25 (Delayed).—Germany was reported today to be exerting the strongest possible pressure on Rumania to send another large army to the Russian front this year.

Information from usually reliable sources in Rumania said the pressure was being applied by Baron Manfred von Killinger, German Minister, and one observer predicted that by late fall between 18 and 25 Rumanian divisions would go into the Soviet Union.

Rumanian forces suffered heavy casulties in Russia last winter, particularly at Stalingrad, and at one time Rumanian leaders were reported firmly decided against another expeditionary force to the Eastern Front.

This decision was strengthened, the Rumanian sources said, by German failure to carry out a promise to provide armor for 20 Rumanian divisions before the end of spring.

However, these reports asserted German declarations that without Rumanian aid the Germans might be forced to yield the entire Ukraine to Russia and a Nazi promise to reconsider the status of Transylvania, which Rumania ceded to Hungary in 1940 under German pressure, had gradually weakened Marshal Ion Antonescu's determination to stay out of Russia.

The ship was so badly damaged that it subsequently was sunk by United States forces after members of the crew were taken aboard other ships. Reports reaching the Navy Department indicated there were no casualties to personnel. Her skipper was Lieut. Comdr. David B. Coleman, 37, of La Mesa, Calif.

The Niagara, formerly a private yacht, was acquired by the Navy from Mrs. H. Edward Manville of New York in 1940. It was used as a motor torpedo boat tender.

New Nazi Vision—Hordes of Allied Ships Pass Rock

By the Associated Press

Transocean, German propaganda agency, said today in a dispatch datelined Algeciras, Spain, and broadcast by Berlin, that a large Allied convoy was seen this morning passing through the Strait of Gibraltar in the direction of the Mediterranean.

Transocean, which has issued similar reports in the past, in an apparent attempt to gain information, added:

"Among the ships laden with troops or war equipment was a 50,000 ton Cunard liner. Anchored at present at Gibraltar are three British aircraft carriers, three battleships, 12 destroyers and eight corvettes as well as two United States gunboats and two British submarines. One French, one United States and three British transports are lying at the Gibraltar roadsteads."

Canada's Secret Weapon Is Ready

Otttawa, May 26 (AP).—Canadian army officers overseas have developed a "dramatic new equipment" which has proved successful and the enemy will learn of it "to his cost when the time comes," Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom high commissioner to Canada, said today.

Italy's Islands Heavily Bombed

s oyed in the last week.

One Lightning pilot who scored a victory yesterday is Maj. John G. Bright of Reading, Pa., who had destroyed eight Japanese planes while he was a member of the volunteer "Flying Tigers" in China. First Lieut. John A. Mackay of St. Albans, Vt., bagged two Messerschmitt 109s and Second Lieut. Warren A. Holden of Waterloo, Iowa, shot down a pair of Focke-Wulf 190s.

The American raids began early in the morning, and throughout the daylight hours bombers or fighters were almost continually over one of the three Italian islands. Warhawk fighter-bombers and Mitchell mediums gave the airfield and docks on Pantelleria their almost daily battering.

An especially effective attack was made by Marauder medium bombers and Lightning fighters on Porto Empedocle, a small harbor on the southern coast of Sicily. Smoke and flames were visible for 25 miles, returning pilots said. Mitchells and Lightnings struck the docks at Licata, a few miles from Porto Empedocle. Lightnings dropped two bombs on the mouth of an important railway tunnel near Cap Gallo, 7 miles west of Palermo, Sicily, with undisclosed results.

Others of the twin-boomed speedy Lightnings set fire to the administration buildings and a hangar at Milo Airfield near Trapani on Sicily, shot up two gun positions and strafed shipping at Nubia and at St. Agnone. The fighters also shot up shipping in the ports of Terra Nova and Aranci in northeast Sardinia.

Other points attacked included Portoscuso, Terranova and Bobba Di Falco. Many bombs were reported dropped on dispersed aircraft on the Bobba Di Falco field.

Recruiting of Canning Army Urged to Combat Food Waste

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

Unless American communities do an extraordinary job of recruiting volunteers to take their turns in canning factories, many crops will waste in the fields and a diminished supply of canned fruits and vegetables can be anticipated, the Office of War Information warned yesterday.

The socialite, the lawyer, the doctor, the teacher and the housewife must help out even if they can put in only parts of days, OWI said, because canning is essentially a home town industry and the importation of great numbers of workers for the seasonal peaks is not feasible.

Approximately 400,000 workers will be needed for the September harvest, the War Manpower Commission estimated. The number will be greater if regular cannery workers do not curb their tendencies to go into bigger war industries, it was intimated.

Meantime, the Senate Agriculture Subcommittee investigating the OPA's plan to roll back prices of meat, butter, and coffee by using processor subsidies held a closed meeting to decide whether its members could think of any way by which food subsidies could be outlawed.

Senator Bushfield (Republican) of South Dakota, said later all were solidly in favor of turning thumbs down on the program as announced by the OPA. If their view prevails in Congress, he said, the effect would be virtually to nullify effect of the rollback order.

Earlier the subcommittee heard Ernest C. Strobeck, secretary of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., declare the Government "instead of rolling back prices on butter should establish adequate guaranteed prices for milk to all producers."

The dairy farmer has no confidence in subsidies, Strobeck said, and "can't understand why the Nation can't pay for its food as it goes."

More Borrowing Power Asked

Another part of the subsidy program was under study by the House Banking and Currency Committee, which continued questioning of J. B. Hutson, president of the Commodity Credit Corp., which has asked a billion-dollar increase in its borrowing power.

Hutson told the committee that when its wheat loan program for this year is announced in early June, the corporation will have only between 100 million and 125 million dollars left. The wheat loan program will take about 300 milion dollars this year as against 400 million dollars last year, he said.

Chairman Steagall (Democrat) of Alabama, said, "We want to know the very least amount you can get by on and I'm just wondering if you need a billion dollars to carry on a billion dollars worth of business."

25 Generals Killed

Tension Eases As Flooded Rivers Drop

By the Associated Press

Surging waters closed a big explosives plant yesterday, but elsewhere along the Midwestern flood front tension eased as rivers dripped slowly but steadily at many points.

The overflow from the Mississippi, rising more than a foot in two hours, swept past sandbag barricades and gushed into the Atlas Powder Co.'s buildings at Wolf Lake, Ill.

Farther north, while crests slipped downstream and the remaining seawalls stood up to the test of tremendous pressure, Federal officials and representatives of six States met in St. Louis to consider plans for getting inundated agricultural land back in the food-for-victory program.

21 Deaths Caused

During May, muddy waters have submerged 3,926,000 acres in Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Indiana, routed 160,000 persons and caused 21 deaths in the worst floods in the midlands since 1937, when the Ohio and Mississippi Valley disaster made more than one million homeless and took 466 lives.

But conditions took a turn for the better as the Mississippi fell at St. Louis and the Illinois crested at Beardstown without invading the city.

A drop in the Mississippi cheered the force struggling to save the Central Illinois Public Service generating plant at Grand Tower, Ill. Supt. J. B. Cotter commented: "We think we have it whipped."

Levees Dynamited

Army engineers dynamited breaches at the lower ends of two levees—one in Perry County, Mo., and the other above Gale, Ill. This permitted water that had submerged 74,000 acres on the land side of the levees to pour back into the Mississippi.

The Illinois River fell at Peoria and the Keystone Steel and Wire Co. resumed operations. The Weldon Springs (Mo.) Ordnance Works also began production again.

Illinois Selective Service headquarters termed the floods "the worst in Illinois since 1844," and advised local boards to defer induction of necessary farm workers up to 60 days.

Chinese Retake Strategic Point In Ichang Sector

Chungking, May 26 (AP).—Chinese troops have recaptured an important strategic point and killed 600 Japanese in a battle on the outer ring of Ichang in central China, a high command communique reported tonight.

Ichang is the center of menacing Japanese thrusts along the Yangtze River in southwestern Hupeh Province in the direction of Chungking. Earlier the Chinese Central News Ageny had reported the blunting of three enemy drives fanning out of the Ichang area.

Chinese forces also suffered "considerable casualties" in the latest battle, which was west of Lungchuanpu, northeast of Ichang, but they seized big stores of military booty, the communique declared.

Across the Yangtze from Ichang to the south, enemy troops were reported advancing northeastward after taking Changyang, 12 miles southeast of Ichang.

Chinese shore batteries drove back still other enemy forces attempting to cross to the north bank of the Ching River south of Changyang, the war bulletin said.

2 Navy Planes Sink U-Boat In South Atlantic

Two Navy patrol planes sank an enemy submarine in the South Atlantic several weeks ago, the Navy reported yesterday, and as the craft finally disappeared beneath the surface with its guns firing it left 30 or 40 survivors afloat.

To date no report has been received here of the landing of any of the survivors, the Navy said, although life rafts were dropped to them by the planes.

The initial assault on the surfaced enemy warship was made by a P. B. Y. bomber piloted by Ensign Thurmond Edgar Robertson of Spartanburg, S. C. He dived his heavy plane on the submarine and crippled it so badly that a second plane piloted by Lieut. Gerard Bradford, jr., of Mobile, Ala., was able to finish the job.

Nazis Reported Considering Weakling Purge

Talk of a Nazi Party purge to eliminate possible weaklings at a time when an example of strength is needed on the home front came from Germany yesterday on the heels of a hint that Finland fears Germany will be forced to consider the Russian Front as of secondary importance this summer.

The Berlin radio quoted Robert Wagner, gauleiter for Alsace and Baden, as saying in a speech:

"We cannot allow the party, at the time of heaviest fighting, to be burdened by members who are likely to give the German people the wrong ideas of the value of the party."

A Finnish broadcast quoting the Helsinki newspaper Uusi Suomi said that an Allied landing in Europe this summer might be considered a certainty.

Mrs. Dempsey Shared Bed, Court Told

By the Associated Press

White Plains, N. Y., May 26.—An indisposition kept Hannah Williams Dempsey from the Supreme Court room today where a witness testified in the former heavyweight boxing champion's divorce suit that he saw the one-time musical comedy star and Benny Woodall asleep in the bedroom.

"I walked through the bedroom and saw Woodall asleep with his trousers on and shoes off," testified Harry Goldman of The Bronx.

"What did you see about Mrs. Dempsey's dress?" inquired Arthur F. Driscoll, attorney for Dempsey, now a lieutenant commander in the Coast Guard.

"She was covered up," Goldman replied. "She was in bed. She had blankets on."

Dempsey has charged his wife with intimacies with former Lightweight Boxing Champion Lew Jenkins and Woodall, who was Jenkins' former trainer. He seeks custody of the couple's two children, Joan, 8, and Barbara, 6, as does Mrs. Dempsey, who has filed a countersuit for divorce. Her allegations have not been made public.

Mrs. Dempsey's illness caused adjournment of the afternoon session, but before the proceedings ended until Tuesday, Goldman testified about gifts Mrs. Dempsey gave to Woodall and parties at the apartment of Madeline Webb, who now is serving a life term for murder after conviction resulting from the slaying of a woman in an attempted jewel robbery.

Goldman, who testified that he attended many parties in Mrs. Dempsey's Manhattan apartment, and that he drank quite a bit and sometimes could not recall what had happened, clung to his story under cross-examination by Gerald Donovan's Mrs. Dempsey's attorney.

Goldman said that on other occasions Mrs. Dempsey and Woodall "were kissing one another in the car and in restaurants," and that she gave Woodall a camel's hair coat, shirts and a "self-timing wrist watch" for Christmas presents.

"Did you ever see anyone run out the back door when Mr. Dempsey came in the front door?" Driscoll asked.

"No," Goldman replied. "Occasionally they would run for the back door when they heard a bell ring."

Once, he testified, he was sitting at the bar when Joan and Barbara came in. "A bell rang. We thought it was the doorbell but it was the telephone. I saw Benny Woodall run for the back door."

Radio Transmitter Dropped From Sky Aids Rescue of 18

London, May 6 (AP).—A portable radio transmitter dropped from a British plane to 19 survivors of a ship torpedoed in the North Atlantic provided the means whereby a destroyer was directed to their rescue, the Air Ministry reported today.

It was the first time that the apparatus, described as foolproof and about the size of a home coffee grinder, had been used for this purpose. The equipment automatically sends out S O S signals when a crank is turned.

Heavy seas and bad weather prevented aircraft which had flown about 5,0000 miles in an eight-day search, from picking up the men, who were jammed into a single

15 Held by Italy, 144 by Japan

Names of 15 United States soldiers held as prisoners of Italy and 144 held by Japan were announced yesterday by the War Department, which listed none from the Washington area.

Among those interned by Japan were Pvt. Paul R. Miller of Hagerstown, Md., and, from Virginia, Pvt. Hubert C. Gilliam, of Gate City; Pvt. James J. Paul, jr., of West Norfolk, and Pvt. First Class Raymond W. Tweedy of Lynchburg.

Reds Deny Giving Japs Weather Aid

Moscow, May 26 (AP).—Tass, official Soviet news agency, denied today rumors—which it attributed to "isolationist circles" in the United States—that the Japanese were obtaining from meteorological stations in Russia information of value in their operations against United States forces.

"Tass is authorized to state that this is a falsehood," the dispatch said. "It is being spread for absolutely tendentious purposes."

Edsel Ford Dead; Father May Take Over the company, its executive personnel and the distribution of the Edsel Ford holdings in the great enterprise that grew from a $28,000 investment in 1903 to fabulous proportions in a few decades.

The Ford Motor Co. itself had an asset value of more than 718 million dollars as of the close of 1941, according to a financial statement filed in Massachusetts. What were the personal fortunes of Henry and Edsel Ford were closely guarded family secrets. So, too, were whatever arrangements that may have been made for the ultimate disposition of the company assets and those personal accumulations of wealth.

Believed to Hold 40 Per Cent

At the time the Ford family became sole owners of the company through the purchase of minority holdings in 1919 for approximately 75 million dollars, Edsel Ford was credited with ownership of 40 per cent of the stock; his father with 58 per cent and his mother, Clara Bryant Ford, with the remainder.

He was born in Detroit November 6, 1893, at the time his then more or less obscure father was completing his first automobile in a brick barn in Detroit.

To inherit the Edsel Ford interest are his widow, the former Eleanor Lowthian Clay, to whom he was married in 1916, three sons, Henry, Benson and William, and one daughter, Josephine. The three sons are serving in the armed services, Henry as a lieutenant (j. g.) in the Navy; Benson in the Army Air Corps and William as a naval air cadet.

Sources close to the Ford family speculated today that the company's board of directors—consisting of the elder Henry Ford, Henry II, Benson and Charles E. Sorensen, vice president and production genius of the company—would meet soon and name either the elder Ford or Sorensen president.

Ford long has insisted he wanted no title with the company. He will be 80 years old July 30. He turned the office of president over to Edsel in 1919, soon after the latter had completed a five-year apprenticeship in factory and office and served two years as vice president.

Originated Assembly Line

Sorensen was 61 years old last September. Danish-born, he has been associated with Ford since 1905 and has been credited with developing many projects conceived in Ford's mind. He originated the moving assembly line for mass production of automobiles and later adapted it to bomber plane production at the Ford-operated Willow Run plant.

B. J. Craig, secretary and assistant treasurer of the Ford Co., has been carrying on most of the duties of treasurer for several years, although Edsel Ford held that title. The company never has had a general manager, but the duties of that office were assigned to the younger Ford by common consent.

At the deathbed this morning were Mrs. Edsel Ford and three of the four children. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford were not present at the end, but hurried there as soon as possible.

Members of the Ford organization who talked with the elder Ford today said he was bearing up better than some of his associates.

Roosevelt May Appeal to Rubber Strikers to Return

dent of the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union, a warning telegram that if he fails to end "obstructive activities" of the New Bedford, Mass., local of his union, the matter would be sent to President Roosevelt for "appropriate action."

Last Wednesday the Teamsters stopped making deliveries to the New Bedford Rayon Co., after a member of the union was fired as a result of a jurisdictional row with the C. I. O. Textile Workers Union. The C. I. O. has a closed shop contract with the New Bedford company and secured the dismissal of the employe in accordance with the contract after he, along with six others, switched affiliation to the Teamsters.'

A warning from the board to the local union issued Monday was ignored, WLB officials said.

New walkouts were reported at Buffalo, N. Y., and La Crosse, Wis.

The Buffalo walkout halted production for a second time in five months at the U. S. Rubber Reclaiming Co.'s plant. A. C. I. O. Rubber Workers spokesman said the stoppage was unauthorized. He ascribed it to War Labor Board delay in considering a wage dispute. The company said employes left their jobs without presenting demands.

The La Cross Rubber Mills Co. also said its workers walked out without presenting demands. Union officials declined comment.

Ottawa, May 26 (AP).—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands arrived here today by air from England for a brief, unofficial visit with Crown Princess Juliana and her three princesses, the youngest of whom, Margriet Francesca is to be christened June 29.

The Queen was accompanied on her trip, via Montreal, by the Netherlands Foreign Minister E. N. Van Kleffens, who is expected also to visit Washington.

They were met at the Uplands Airport by Princess Juliana and the Princesses Beatrix and Irene and a group of Canadian officials headed up by Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King.

It was the Queen's third transatlantic flight.

Hero of Lae Prefers to Talk of Sydney's Charm

Capt. John C. O'Donnell, D. F. C., 23-year-old veteran of the battles in the New Guinea skies, yesterday preferred to speak about the "Battles of Sydney" above all else.

O'DONNELL

"We sure enjoyed our stay in Sidney, Australia," he said with a broad smile of remembrance on his face, "and the conquest of the hearts of that city was a wonderful assignment after the tough fights in the jungles and the skies of the South Pacific."

Captain O'Donnell is now here on a short furlough to see his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. O'Donnell, 2520 Fourteenth Street Northwest, whom he has not seen since December 7, 1941, when a telegram recalled him from a short visit to active duty.

Captain O'Donnell's brother, Horace, works at the Glenn Martin plant in Cleveland, producing the bombers his brother flies. Miriam H. O'Donnell, their sister, is an employe of the War Department.

After 14 months of continued service, Captain O'Donnell yesterday looked well and happy and he had few complaints to make. "The Japs are good fighters," he said, "and we'll have to give it our best to lick them."

He gave his best when caught by a swarm of Zeroes last May, after returning from a bombing mission over Lae, New Guinea. A running air battle of 35 minutes ensued, it was reported in an Associated Press dispatch, in which his right engine was put out of service. The plane's gunners shot down four Jap fighters and Captain O'Donnell pulled his machine home safely despite numerous hits.

Never before that time has a bomber of this type been known to fly so long on one engine.

For his exploits, "The O'Donnell" received the Distinguished Flying Cross and was promoted to the captaincy last November. His home town is Oakland, Md., where he was graduated from high school. He later went to University of Maryland and left Antioch College in July, 1940, to join the Army Air Corps. He was stationed at Langley Field, Va., when the war broke out. In February, 1942, he was sent overseas and has been in the South Pacific battle area ever since.

A Salute TO THOSE WHO FLY THE ARMY AND NAVY "E"

A symbol of patriotic effort, the Army and Navy "E" is Industrial America's most coveted prize. Having earned it speaks volumes for any plant. And earn it one must—by long hours of hard work; by unflagging enthusiasm for the job to be done; by almost fanatic devotion to the cause for which we are all fighting.

There is something else, too, that every producer must have—the cooperation of the railroads. They bring to industry the materials to be fabricated for war use. With rails extending even into the remotest of raw material regions, they pick up the precious "wants" of industry and carry them right to industry's doors . . . then later haul to camp or seaport the processed materials and supplies so necessary in fighting a victorious war.

"North Western" is one of America's railroads engaged in the transportation of war essentials. We are glad to play a part in this mighty effort—and proud not only to serve those who fly the Army and Navy "E" but also all others who are engaged in freedom's cause. These industrial fighters will continue to have our enthusiastic cooperation, and the service we render will be limited only by the supply of materials we are able to secure to keep our rolling stock in top condition.

Nation-Wide Drive For Copper Planned

A Nation-wide scrap collection drive to provide copper for ammunition is contemplated by the War Production Board, it was disclosed in testimony made public yesterday by a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

Warship to Be Named for D. C. Hero Killed at Pearl Harbor

Six destroyer escort vessels, to be christened Saturday at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, will be named as memorials to five commissioned officers of the Navy and a petty officer who died on war duty. One will be named for Ensign Marshall Eugene Darby, jr., of Washington, who was killed at Pearl Harbor.

Ensign Darby was the son of Col. and Mrs. Marshall Eugene Darby of 4737 MacArthur Boulevard Northwest. Mrs. Darby will be the sponsor of the ship bearing the name of her dead son.

Another Washingtonian to take part in the ceremonies will be Ensign Sara Blackwood of the WAVES, on duty here, who is the daughter of Comdr. J. Douglas Blackwood of the Medical Corps, who was killed in the Solomons. Ensign Blackwood will act as maid of honor to her mother, who will sponsor the ship. Mrs. Blackwood lives in Philadelphia.

Others for whom the ships will be named are:

Lieut. (j. g.) Walter Wesley Coolbaugh of Clarks Summit, a flier kiled in the Battle of the Coral Sea; Ensign Robert P. F. Enright of Bradford, Pa., killed aboard the destroyer Hammann; Commander Francis Martin Robinson, Fourth District personnel officer who died in the naval hospital here last November 3; and Boatswain's Mate First Class Adolfo Solar, Philadelphia, killed at Pearl Harbor.

Servicemen Home For Only 3 Days Get Food Rations

To save time for servicemen home on brief furough, the Office of Price Administration announced yesterday that it had cut "red tape" for their food ration certificates, as well as shortening to three days the minimum food-allowance period.

After June 2, all United States servicemen, as well as Allied soldiers and sailors, on leave for 72 hours or longer may apply for ration certificates before leaving camp. Previously, a week was the minimum leave for which extra food could be obtained.

A "furlough ration unit" based on the anticipated amount of rationed food that would be eaten at nine meals, has been established, consisting of 8 points for processed foods, 8 points for meats and fats, ¼ pound of coffee and ¼ pound of sugar.

This unit is for each nine meals or fraction thereof. A soldier on leave for four days and applying for a 12-meal allowance would receive two units, enough for 18 meals.

The Department of Agriculture Chorus and the Navy Band, under the direction of Lieut. Charles Brentler, will provide music. A Navy Band concert starting at 3:30 p. m. will precede the 4 o'clock program.

In case of bad weather, services will be held in the Departmental Auditiorium, at Constitution Avenue between Twelfth and Fourteenth Street Northwest. There will be no admission fee, and the public is invited.

French-born Henriche Odile Lazou, who was office manager of the French Embassy here from 1928 until diplomatic relations with Vichy were severed, will soon begin her basic training as a WAAC at Fort Devens, Mass., it was learned here yesterday.

However, as a WAAC she was among the thousands who applied for overseas service upon enrollment. Flying and fluent French and Spanish are listed among her accomplishments, but she is willing, she says, to serve in any capacity the Army decides.

Gas Shortage Gets Worse as Tanks Run Dry

fact that several service stations had pledged themselves to keep some gas on hand for doctors. The stations, however, find it difficult to withhold gas from the lines of customers who swamp them immediately after supplies arrive. Wiprud said there appeared to be no official solution as yet for supplying doctors, but asserted one high Government official had called him to offer the gasoline in his car for doctors if it was urgently needed.

Meanwhile, Petroleum Administration for War officials said they were studying means of increasing the flow of fuel to Washington and Baltimore by means of new movements of tank cars to Greennsboro and barges to Richmond. Arrangements already have been made to bring an additional 15,000 barrels of gasoline daily to this section by tank car and barge from the Plantation pipeline at Greensboro, with the first of the increased supply scheduled to arive next week.

For the first time since the pleasure-driving ban got under way, the District OPA had no reports of violations yesterday. Inspectors had concentrated on bowling alleys the previous night and had discovered no infractions.

The American Automobile Association reported only "40 to 50" gas stations open in the District yesterday, most of them only for an hour or two. A gasoline tank truck en route to the Call Carl station at 604 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast played Pied Piper and had more than 100 cars trailing it by the time it reached there.

Nearby Virginia and Maryland were in no better straits than Washington. Fairfax County has not had a single gas station open since early Monday, officials said. Arlington had its few that opened swamped and a traffic jam was reported on Wilson Boulevard when one station opened.

ODT officials warned that their earlier prediction that the flood will temporarily shrink Eastern deliveries by at least one-fifth and possibly by as much as one-half still appears to be a reasonable estimate.

They reminded Eastern consumers that this decline has nothing to do with the gasoline shortage that had already occurred. The current shortage came about despite a 20 per cent increase in deliveries to the East since January, they said.

Joseph B. Eastman, director of the ODT, yesterday urged the public to stay off trains and intercity buses over the Memorial Day weekend. He said reduction of intercity bus services, caused by the cut in "T" gas coupons, made it doubly imperative to eliminate all unnecessary travel on trains as well as buses.

Tax Bill Expected To Escape Veto

could see "no good reason why the President would not sign it."

Representative Dingell (Democrat) of Michigan one of three who opposed the compromise in conference, cited President Roosevelt's letter opposing the Ruml plan, and observed, "if I read the President's letter correctly there will be a vote for the compromise—I certainly hope so." Representatives Robertson (Democrat) of Virginia and Forand (Democrat) of Rhode Island, original authors of the bill once voted by the House, criticized the compromise plan. Robertson, however, said, that he had committed himself to vote for it, and planned to do so.

C. I. O. President Phillip Murray wired Capitol leaders that the compromise plan was a "tax grab" giving overwhelming benefits to the wealthy, and urged its defeat.

Special Board Urges Rail Pay Raise

and aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

The War Labor Board has possessed similar authority to grant increases, but since the April 8 "hold the line" order, this power has been curtailed drastically. Under an interpretation of the order issued May 12 by Byrnes, increases outside of the "Little Steel" formula may be made to "going rates" for a particular job to eliminate "gross inequities," or in excess of "going rates" in "rare and unusual cases" to "aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

The panel report contained an impressive list of "gross inequities," portraying the rail workers as receiving considerably less favorable wages than workers in manufacturing and other industries.

"The correction of the gross inequities disclosed by the facts of the record is indispensable to the effective prosecution of the war," the panel said.

The amount was "the minimum noninflationary adjustment" possible, the panel said.

The rail workers demanded a 20 cents an hour general increase in pay, a 70-cent minimum wage compared to the present 46 cents an hour minimum, and the union shop. Demands for a 30-cent an hour increase for 300,000 operating rail unions will be submitted to another emergency panel on June 7 in New York City.

It was reported that representatives of the rail unions received the announcement with some disappointment, having expected a larger increase.

Observers agreed that the War Labor Board, acting under present restrictions, would not have been as generous, had it granted any increase at all.

WLB originally contended for jurisdiction over the rail case, against the claims of the National Mediation Board. The Mediation Board finally secured an executive order giving it and panels set up under it, jurisdiction, with the understanding that Byrnes would hold veto power over decisions on stabilization grounds.

Among the "gross inequities" listed by the panel, are the following:

If the railroad workers, who generally work 48 hours a week, were paid time and a half for work over 40 hours a week, instead of at straight time, an adjustment of 8.33 per cent or 6 cents an hour would be required.

During the years 1941 and 1942, the railroad workers received a 10-cent-an-hour general increase while wage rates in all manufacturing industries increased 19.4 cents an hour.

Average weekly earnings for the railroad workers was $36.40 for the year ending in October, 1942—$40.03 for factory workers in 25 industries.

Arlington Boy, Football Star, Is Lost at Sea

Merrill W. Hoover, 20, of 4323 North Pershing Drive, Arlington, Va., has been lost at sea while attempting to warn his sleeping shipmates of impending disaster, it was announced yesterday by the U. S. Coast Guard.

HOOVER

Hoover, the son of Mrs. Eva Hoover Strohm, was a star football player at Washington and Lee High School, where his record of 30 scoring place kicks out of 32 attempts has never been equaled. He was chosen on the all-Northern Virginia football team. He was also a track star, and had won many medals for shotput.

He enlisted in the Coast Guard September 4, 1942, and was serving aboard a Coast Guard vessel engaged in Atlantic patrol duty. His vessel was laying to in a heavy fog and rain with visibility almost zero. Another vessel was sighted bearing down rapidly on the Coast Guard ship., and general alarm was sounded. Hoover rushed forward to warn the men sleeping in the forepeak. A few seconds later the ships collided and he disappeared. It is presumed that he was washed overboard.

Hoover's attempt to warn his shipmates was successful, as every other man aboard the ship was saved. Letters from Hoover's shipmates to his family, state he was aware his action would mean certain death, and he knew he was sacrificing his life to save those of his shipmates.

He was awarded an athletic scholarship to Clemson University. After attending that school for one year he returned to Washington, where he attended American University. While here he pledged Alpha Theta Phi Fraternity. He was also past master counselor of George Washington Chapter of De Molay.

Beautiful Models Parade for Churchill

THERE was one very hush-hush conference staged for the benefit of Winston Churchill in Washington which was no military secret. It was a parade of beautiful models dressed in the latest New York fashions.

It came about when the Prime Minister asked Mrs. Harry Hopkins about the latest styles worn by American women. He said he would like to see some of them. So Mrs. Hopkins got Mrs. Averell Harriman and together they organized a fashion show.

Sending to New York for the latest gowns, they staged a private, ultra-exclusive fashion show for the Prime Minister of Britain, with the help of several imported models.

Churchill got quite a kick out of it. Friends say that his photographic mind will remember most of the details, and the first thing he will do when he gets back to London will be to tell Mrs. Churchill all about it.

"She's sure to ask me," he remarked, "just what the women are wearing in America."

Eager John L. Lewis

ONLY insiders know it, but John L. Lewis wanted re-admission to the A. F. L. so badly he inclosed with his application a check for $60,000 advance dues.

He hoped to take his old friends by storm and win immediate admission. The A. F. L. executive council was sitting at the time he sent the check, and would not meet again until August. Lewis hoped they would act pronto, so he could lay plans for throwing his weight around at the next A. F. L. convention in October.

But quick admission of the Mine Workers was blocked by two independents inside the A. F. L., partly by the White House, where temperatures rose rapidly for fear Lewis, bitterly anti-New Deal, would swing the A. F. L. away from cooperation with the President.

Lewis had nursed his plan to rejoin the A. F. L. for a long time. Recently he had begun to feel deeply the public resentment against his coal strike and also to feel the weakness of his position outside both of the big union organizations.

In trying to worm back inside the A. F. L. he used the good offices of Big Bill Hutcheson, boss of the Carpenters Union—and herein lay the greatest irony of the entire operation. For it was Hutcheson, now a willing emissary for John, who fell flat on his back under a blow from the fist of Lewis at the Atlantic City convention in 1935.

Wooden Mosquito

ASK the man in the street whether it's true or false that Germany is now being bombed by planes of wood, carrying no guns, and accompanied by no fighters. His answer: False. Correct answer: True.

The RAF is now using such a plane, and most successfully. It is the new Mosquito bomber, made of spruce plywood, and using speed instead of armament for its protection.

Persons who remember the famous air race from England to Australia in 1934 know how the Mosquito got its start. Winner of that race was the DeHaviland Comet. Only two planes of this type were ever built, but they served as a model for the devastating Mosquito, which is dodging the fighters and antiaircraft fire over Germany today.

The Mosquito operates on a wholly different theory of attack and defense from the big four-engined cannon-and-machine-gun jobs that have done most of the R. A. F. bombing. It has a top speed of 400 miles an hour, which means the fighters can't overtake it. It dodges into a specific target, such as a railroad yard, drops its small load of bombs with deadly aim, dodges out again.

At present the Mosquito is made only in Britain and Canada, but its performance has so deeply impressed U. S. Air Forces that plans are on foot for its production in the United States.

No Secrets in Mexico

IT CAN now be revealed that Secret Service agents had a lot of trouble keeping the President's visit to Mexico a secret. In fact, practically every literate Mexican knew or thought he knew what was going to happen. The American press kept the secret and most of the American public was in the dark. But not the Mexicans.

The tip-off was President Avila Camacho's public request for congressional permission to leave the country "for not more than 72 hours." This made it clear that he was not going to Washington. And it was not hard to guess that if he crossed the border, he would be met by no less than his opposite number, the President of the United States.

Another tip-off was the fact that Avila Camacho arrived in Monterrey three days in advance of the meeting, while Mexican newspapers were allowed to speculate freely.

No wonder Mike Reilly was worried. Reilly, chief of the White House Secret Service detail, had gone to Monterrey in advance, to smell out any danger spots. He had a tip that certain hardware firms in the city were run by Germans, and hardware stores handle arms and ammunition. Also he was fearful of the shaky roadbed of the Mexican railroad between the border and Monterrey.

Every mile of the line was carefully checked by an official of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and as for the hardware stores, Reilly found that they had been dry-cleaned by the Mexican government after Mexico's declaration of war.

In making inspections, Reilly worked closely with Gen. Eulogio Ortiz, former chief of staff for Pancho Villa and a great admirer of General MacArthur. It is General Ortiz's ambition to be sent to Australia to serve with MacArthur.

Sen. Mead Appeals for Enduring Peace as Catholic U. Graduates 589

Catholic University's graduating class yesterday heard a challenge by Senator Mead (Democrat) of New York to fulfill a "solemn duty to the maimed and wounded of this war and to those who have made the supreme sacrifice" and grasp the opportunity "to establish the foundation for an enduring peace."

"Let this war be the last war," the Senator said in his commencement day address, warning the more than 2000 students, parents and friends present in the university gymnasium that "unless we embrace that opportunity, we lay the groundwork for a war of annihilation" of all human values and civilization.

The Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, S. T. D., coadjutor bishop of Richmond and secretary of the board of trustees, presided over the exercises, handing degrees to the 589 graduating students.

Among the graduates, those from the Washington area are:

I feel like a NEW MAN since I discovered THIS AMAZING WAY to RENEWED STRENGTH!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach

2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

You may overcome the discomforts or embarrassment of

Sour Stomach Jerky Nerves
Loss of Appetite Underweight
Digestive Complaints Weakness
Poor Complexion

Getting value out of the food you eat is your No. 1 health problem whether you eat 500 or 2,000 pounds yearly.

To do this, scientists say, you must have an adequate supply of natural stomach digestive juices and rich, red-blood must be present.

Improper diet, overwork, undue worries, colds, the flu or other illness often impairs the stomach's digestive functions and reduces the red-blood strength.

A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

Undigested food sours, causes gas . . . bloating . . . fails to supply the necessary body energy . . . tissue repair . . . often resulting in nervousness and loss of energy.

So with ample stomach digestive juices PLUS rich, red-blood you should enjoy that sense of well being which denotes physical fitness . . . mental alertness!

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection SSS Tonic may be just what you need as it is especially designed to promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach and to build-up blood strength when deficient.

These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Five Soldiers At G. U. Almost Too Brilliant

A sergeant, a private first class and three buck privates have provided a unique classification problem in the Army's specialized training program at Georgetown University.

All are college graduates, three are former college instructors and one received his law degree at Heidelburg in Germany. Four are expert linguists and the fifth is a graduate engineer.

Sent to Georgetown for determination of their special qualifications before being assigned, the men are Sergt. Leopold Basnizki, 30, a native German; Private First Class Sam Friedman, graduated in engineering from Ohio State University in 1939; Pvt. P. M. Sweezy, professor of economics at Harvard since 1934; Pvt. J. Thomas Dale, instructor in German at the University of Minnesota and at New Cumberland, Pa., and Pvt. George J. Siefert, instructor in Latin and Greek for six years at Catholic University.

Army officers were amazed at the high grades scored by the quintet on aptitude and language examinations when they first arrived at Georgetown. But Private Dale has a logical answer.

"I was pretty familiar with those language exams," he told a Post reporter yesterday. "You see, I used to give my students the German one, and I assisted in giving them in French and Spanish. Naturally I hadn't memorized them, but I knew what was in them. It would have been more surprising if all of us had made low grades than good ones, because these tests are given to first and second-year college students."

In the morning, the five enlisted men met for discussion groups with Georgetown professors. The rest of their time is devoted to calisthenics, guard duty, drill, kitchen police and the hundred and one odd details assigned to all soldiers.

Their futures? They assume only that their abilities at foreign languages will be brought into use. Sergt. Basnizki speaks German and Italian, Pvt. Siefert reads French and speaks Italian and German, Pvt. Sweezy speaks German and has made seven trips to Europe, Pvt. Dale speaks German, French, Spanish and reads Danish and Norwegian.

National Leaders Scan Postwar Difficulties of Migrating Youths at Session

As a framework for the Institute on War and Postwar Problems of Youth Migration to be conducted here today, contributing factors and figures of the situation were probed last night at a preliminary session in National Education Association headquarters.

The material presented last night will be the foundation for conferences today on various phases of migration of young people to Washington for war work and their problems, premigration, postmigration and postwar.

The institute, which will attempt to establish a more effective urban and rural service to the young migrants, is sponsored by the Alliance for Guidance of Rural Youth under chairmanship of Dr. Latham Hatcher. Participating will be delegates from Washington agencies, who will coordinate their services in an effort to provide a ready solution to the problems arising from migration.

Final Session Tonight

In addition to presentations of reports on services available in the various aspects of the problem, talks will be given by Mrs. Elizabeth Jones Alexandria, executive secretary of the Travelers Aid Society, "As the Travelers Aid Sees the Problem," and Charles Allen, director of the Rural Press, OWI, "What Can the OWI Rural Press Do About It?"

A final general seesion will be held tonight to coordinate information presented and prepare action toward solution of the problem.

As background material for the conferences today, highlights of a recent study of the wartime youth migration in Maine, made by Prof. E. J. Niederfrank of the University of Maine, were presented by Donald J. Shank of the committee of youth problems of American Council of Education. It was indicated as of September, 1942, about 30 per cent of employable manpower in Maine had shifted from local industry to war industry, with a reduction in school enrollment.

Postwar Provisions

Shank suggested about three-quarters of this group will return to their original homes at the close of the war and war centers are making no effort to hold them and no provisions for their future welfare.

A discusion of Mrs. Eugene Meyer's recent series of articles based on her cross-country tour through war production centers, was given by Douglas Ensminger, principal social scientist, Division of Farm Populaton and Rural Welfare, Department of Agriculture. He contrasted the present-day community solidarity in small towns and the trend toward disintegration in cities where workers are congregatng.

Ewan Clague, director of the Bureau of Employment Security, Social Security Board, discussed the future of youth migration in the postwar world, as viewed in a recent study made by his bureau.

Turbo-superchargers...
for results see page one

ANY FRONT, Today—This is the tail of a bomber—the kind that is turning broad daylight into twilight for the Axis. The history-making details are in your newspaper nearly every day.

One of the reasons why our planes can successfully attack the most heavily fortified areas in the world in daylight is because they can go "upstairs." They can operate thousands of feet above the range of the best Axis anti-aircraft fire—where the cold reaches 60 below zero and the air is so thin that ordinary engines lose four-fifths of their power. But American planes can reach these heights and maneuver and fight there because they are equipped with General Electric turbo-superchargers.

The turbo-supercharger is a fire-eating machine that takes its power from the red-hot exhaust, and uses that power to cram fresh air down a big engine's windpipe fast enough to give it "full military power" at almost any altitude. Because one part must operate in an arctic 60-below-zero, while the other end spins at a blistering 1500 degrees, and because the rotating parts have to travel twelve times as fast as the plane's engine—the turbo-supercharger is one of the toughest of all machines to design and build.

General Electric designed and built the first turbo-supercharger for a plane in 1918 and in the intervening 25 years has been working continually with engineers of the Army Air Forces and plane manufacturers to perfect it.

When the demand came for more high-flying planes, G. E. greatly increased its facilities to manufacture turbo-superchargers and turned over its designs and know-how to other manufacturers chosen by the Army. Development of the turbo-supercharger is another example of the engineering and research that are today developing better war weapons and will tomorrow provide products for better living in the peacetime world to follow. General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THINGS TO REMEMBER:

★ If it's an American-built high-altitude bomber or fighter, it's turbo-supercharged.

★ The turbo-supercharger is an outstanding example of the co-operation of American industry and the armed forces, each working in its own sphere.

31,256 G-E employees are now serving in the armed forces. G-E employees at home are buying more than $1,000,000 worth of War Bonds a week.

Exit For Mr. Dies

Nothing could be more welcome than the prospective dissolution of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. For the Dies Committee was one of the most dangerous consequences of the Comintern. This it was because it has investigated ideas rather than activities. And the ideas which Mr. Dies has chosen to investigate have been not so much un-American as unconventional. Scan the list of persons indicted as subversive by the Dies Committee and you will find that the charges against almost all of them are based on what they have thought and said, rather than upon anything they have done. In most of the cases, moreover, the thoughts and utterances have been directed, not against the American system of Government, but against economic and social conditions in the United States.

To indict men as un-American on such grounds is not appreciably different from the Japanese practice of indicting them for harboring dangerous thoughts. It is the very essence of Americanism to permit men to think and speak freely. This is a point which Mr. Dies has consistently missed. There is nothing at all un-American about seeking to use our free political institutions to effect economic and social reforms. Thomas Jefferson sought unsuccessfully to subvert the growing industrialization of the country at the end of the eighteenth century and to impose upon it an agrarian economy. Abraham Lincoln successfully subverted the slave economy of the South. If some of our contemporary social theorists want to subvert the private profit system, they are entitled to try through legitimate channels.

In his efforts to show the influence of the Comintern in the United States, Martin Dies has magnified that influence out of all proportion to its real significance. This is because he has evolved the curious and naive doctrine of guilt by association. In conformity with this doctrine he has branded as communistic all men who have associated with communists or who have espoused ideas which communists happen also to have espoused. It is a doctrine which finds its logical reduction to absurdity in the present position of international affairs. For under it we are all communists today, since we are linked with communists in the United Nations and share the communistic conviction that fascism must be destroyed.

As for genuinely un-American activities, we have laws prohibiting them and law-enforcement agencies adequate to cope with them. These agencies, employing competent professional investigators, are capable of gathering concrete evidence of illegal conduct and of submitting it to appropriate courts of law. The work which Mr. Dies was supposed to do lies within their province. The work which he actually has been doing is itself un-American, when it has had to do with ideas. He will do service to his country if, as he has promised, he brings it promptly to a close.

Edsel Ford

Edsel Ford was one of those men of whom it is said that their destinies are thrust upon them. From a relatively early period in his boyhood he must have been well aware of his responsibilities as heir to the great industrial empire his father was creating. As far as is known, he never evinced any inclination to rebel against destiny, as some rich men's sons and even princes have done from time to time. At nineteen Edsel Ford left school, put on overalls and went to work in the old Highland Park plant. Three years later he became secretary of the company, and four years after that, its president. For the past 20 years or so most of the direction had been in his hands. He was responsible for many innovations in methods and policy, and the Ford empire, as it exists today, was perhaps as much his creation as his father's. His mind was at once less original and less restricted, his interests outside the factory more varied and more conventional. He patronized the arts, was something of a sportsman and preserved, at least in public, a circumspect reticence about the broader problems of philosophy, morality, sociology, history and education.

What consequences will his unexpected and premature death have for the future of the Ford empire? Since 1919 control of the company has been entirely in family hands, and there seems little doubt that Henry Ford, like many another industrialist before him, hoped for the establishment of an industrial dynasty which would rise to greater and greater heights of power and achievement. Edsel Ford leaves three grown sons. Little is known about their abilities or inclinations, but since all three are now in the armed services, none is able to step immediately into his place. Henry Ford himself is in his eightieth year, and perhaps no longer equal to the physical strain of directing so vast and complicated an establishment. And nearly all those outside the Ford family who were intimately associated with him in the building of the company have long since withdrawn; many of them indeed are dead.

Poll Tax

The sailor who interrupted the debate in the House on the anti-poll-tax bill explained afterward that he had come to see how a democracy works and found them (the Congressmen) "fighting the Civil War all over again." That is an excellent description of the effect upon legislative tempers of the inopportune resurrection of the poll-tax issue. The Post holds no brief for the poll tax. It is generally conceded that the few Southern States that still make payment of poll taxes a prerequisite to voting do so for ulterior motives. By insisting on payment of the poll tax they succeed, in effect, in disfranchising Negroes, as well as a large proportion of the poorer white population. The result is that members of Congress from some Southern States are elected under a system of voting that can be called democratic only by courtesy.

The question nevertheless arises as to whether any substantial progress in the direction of a more genuinely democratic system of congressional representation would result from Federal legislation abolishing poll-tax requirements in elections for Federal office. Opponents of the measure attach great significance to the constitutional issue involved. They argue that the anti-poll-tax bill violates the constitutionally guaranteed right of the States to judge the qualifications of voters. We think such arguments are sound, but we also think that the importance of the constitutional issue has been exaggerated by both friends and foes of anti-poll-tax legislation. The burning issue—the one that causes tempers to rise and leads to the acrimonious debate that fans Southern antagonisms and lines up North against South—is the race issue.

To the embattled Southern opposition anti-poll-tax legislation is regarded as a devious device for forcing the South to enfranchise Negroes who have been prevented from voting by inability or unwillingness to pay poll taxes. As a result, some hot-headed Southern opponents of the bill just passed by the House have served notice that the Southern poll-tax States would find means of evading a Federal legislative mandate aimed at reform of their voting methods. This is not an empty threat. There are innumerable ways of preventing a free exercise of the voting privilege if the people are so minded. Educational and literacy tests can be, and have been, perverted to such base ends. And if all else fails, a most effective device for keeping people from exercising the franchise is terrorism. Voters have to be assured protection at the polls and in their homes in order to make the legal right to vote anything more than an empty privilege.

Is the Federal Government prepared to accord protection to disfranchised voters in parts of the country where the State authorities either cannot or do not choose to accord it? Of course, the Federal Government is in no position to undertake such policing tasks. The responsibility rests with the States, and we must depend upon the people of the States, too, to support and enforce demands for reforms in election practices. They have already done so in some Southern States. They will be much more likely to do so in the remaining poll-tax States if they are left to accomplish reforms without being subjected to a kind of Federal compulsion that would be effective only in sowing dissension at a time when national unity needs to be sedulously cultivated.

Coal Case

Those who desired tough tactics in dealing with John L. Lewis may be disappointed in the War Labor Board's latest declaration on the coal dispute. It affords the labor chieftain another chance to crawl back off the limb on which his arrogance had placed him. But it represents no yielding to him on the essential principles involved. It does not authorize him to break the President's hold-the-line order. And it upholds the authority of the WLB.

Negotiation through the process of collective bargaining is the ideal method of settling disagreements between management and labor. Had the coal operators and the spokesmen for the United Mine Workers possessed the wisdom and statesmanship to bargain rationally in good faith before their contract expired, the coal crisis need never have developed. In resuming negotiations at this time, they will have two distinct advantages over the earlier period. The need for arriving at a satisfactory solution has been much more clearly impressed upon both sides. And the issues on which they are to bargain have been sharply defined by the WLB.

Since any settlement must be retroactive to April 1, it is now obviously to the advantage of the coal companies to reach an agreement as speedily as possible. What John Lewis will do is less easy to predict. He may, of course, persist in his all-or-nothing demand and balk at the WLB's prohibition against an increase in the basic wage rate. But the board's recommendations open the way to reasonable gains for the members of his union. Continuation of the six-day work week already inaugurated by order of Secretary Ickes will certainly improve their weekly earnings. Through negotiation they can receive further benefits in the form of adjustment on the portal-to-portal issue, increased vacation pay and relief from the charges heretofore made for lamps, fuses and other equipment. These considerations, together with OPA efforts to improve their rations, may lead the miners themselves to bring pressure on Lewis to accept any reasonable concessions the operators are prepared to make.

It is unfortunate that the labor members of the WLB felt unable to join in the majority decision forbidding a general wage increase. This is a decision basic to the wage-stabilization program. Their opposition may encourage Lewis to adhere to his original demand. The outcome of this renewal of bargaining remains to be seen. The nation will hope that the disputants can now come to terms. Certainly the WLB has outlined for them a sound and practicable basis for agreement.

Taking Counsel

A change in the British representation on the Combined Production and Resources Board calls attention to the quiet collaboration which continues day after day among the Allies even when the Churchill-Roosevelt duo are not in personal consultation. Sir Robert Sinclair is the British representative on this board. He has been recalled to London to take over the duties at the ministry of production of Sir Walter Layton who is going back to his newspaper business. In Sir Robert's place will be Sir Henry Self, no stranger to Washington, where he used to be posted as head of Britain's air mission. Sir Robert Sinclair has done well in his stay in Washington, and in London he will be able to look back on many friendships contracted in the common pursuit of mobilizing the three countries of the United States, Britain and Canada to harmonious production schedules.

There are other combined boards in existence in Washington: The Food Board, the Shipping Adjustment Board, the Raw Materials Board, the Munitions Assignment Board, the Chiefs of Staff. They are all testimony to 24-hour collaboration. On the civilian side, of course, the Combined Production and Resources Board is outstanding. This brings together the men in the responsible positions in their own governments: Captain Lyttleton, Britain's Minister of Production; Mr. C. D. Howe, Canada's Minister of Munitions and Supply, and Mr. Nelson. These men sit together in Washington through their deputies. But the deputies act as the eyes and ears of their chiefs, aside from doing their operating functions. At first the hope was to pool the resources of their respective countries on the principle of specialization. To take examples, Britain would build Spitfires for the Allies, because the Spitfire is the best fighter plane extant, and the United States would build General Sherman tanks, because these are the world's best tanks. Pooling has not been carried out so logically. But the aim has been in that direction, and the result has been constantly to improve the efficiency of Allied output, and thus of Allied striking power.

The habit and virtue of wartime collaboration which these boards attest will be of immeasurable usefulness in years to come. It is sometimes feared by ultranationalists that the taking of counsel together, whether formally under pledge of alliance or informally under wartime combinations, means an abridgement of sovereignty. In point of fact, it is an exercise of sovereignty. In the case of the combined boards the collaboration is a decided aid to efficiency in carrying out national policies. Take the case of Mr. Nelson. It is upon him that the country is leaning to guide the production of war materials. How much better equipped he is by having at his elbow the experience and the information and the aid available in other countries!

It is ironical that if there had been as much collaboration inside this Administration as there is between the Allied governments, there would not be the administrative mess which we have today. Doubtless the czar system is at fault. A satrap has no zest for talking things over, and a satrap whose satrapy is never properly defined is bound to get into trouble with his fellow satraps. All that follows is interdepartmental confusion and a progressive decline in administrative efficiency. This is now actively impeding the war effort, instead of guiding and expediting it. Sooner or later we must do in the domestic sphere what we are doing as between governments—namely, harness the men with authority as colleagues in one overall organization. Then they would see their jobs in the large and be afforded the opportunity of working out any conflicts of authority.

Silent now the great hands lie
That moved the world and made it sing:
As gentle as a butterfly
And stronger than an eagle's wing.

Modest and dignified, he strode
Across the long and lonely stage:
Music and magic together flowed
Resplendent in their equipage . . .

Magic to move the fingertips
And make the heart ignore its wrong,
To drive the mind into eclipse
Till there is nothing left but song;

Music magnificent, unique . . .
Who can forget who ever heard
A voice that had the power to speak
The ultimate and perfect word?

Baltic Legions

By Joachim Joesten

Nationals Drafted

REPORTS just received from Scandinavian and other sources indicate that the Nazis, fearful of a new Russian offensive that may carry beyond the 1939 boundaries of the U. S. S. R., are busy organizing volunteer legions in the Baltic States, to bolster the Reich's dwindling reserves.

These countries—Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and, in addition, White Russia—have been lumped under the Nazi regime into one large administrative unit called "Ostland." At the head of this German colony—for the principles and methods of administration are strictly colonial—stands Reich Commissar Hinrich Lohse, who has his headquarters at Riga and acts under orders from the Minister for the Occupied Territories in the East, Alfred Rosenberg.

Recruit Volunteers

Sporadic attempts to recruit volunteers for the Nazi crusade against Russia occurred immediately after the occupation of these territories, but they met with very little success. It was not even possible for the Germans to obtain the cooperation of full-dress quisling governments, although some individuals, including a number of ranking officers, were willing to collaborate.

As long as the German armies in the East were on the whole victorious, the enlistment of Baltic citizens into the Wehrmacht, or the "Waffen-SS" (Elite Guard), was done on a more or less voluntary basis. The chief incentive offered to the volunteers was restoration of their properties confiscated in the period of Soviet administration (1940-41). Only those who were ready to work or fight with the Germans were admitted to present claims at the reintroduction of private ownership some months ago.

The "volunteers" thus recruited were assigned to so-called SS-legions, one each for Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. These legions are integrant parts of the German army, although they are officered by Baltic citizens, including a large number of German Balts. The legionaries wear the field-gray uniforms of the "Waffen-SS," with the coat of arms of their respective countries on the left sleeve.

By orders of the OKW (German High Command) these "volunteers" enjoy the same rights as German soldiers as regards pay, rations, clothing and pensions. Their wounded and sick are treated in German military hospitals; invalids, war widows and orphans also are cared for, at least nominally, in the same way as German nationals.

Recruitment, in each country was done, up to the beginning of this year, under the auspices of a national committee, for example the "Friends of the Estonian Legion" in Tallin, whose chairman is a Colonel Soodla.

In the last days of February, 1943, however, all pretenses of voluntary enrollment were dropped and general mobilization was ordered throughout the "Ostland." All men between the ages of 17 and 45 are to be drafted into the "SS-legion" of their respective countries, unless they are assigned to service as drivers, in bridge and road construction battalions, or in the auxiliary police.

Russians in Germany

Russians living not only in Germany, but also in France and in other occupied countries are being impressed into this "Army of Liberation." All those who do not enlist are officially described as "Bolshevists" and treated accordingly.

This wholesale requistioning of foreign nationals for the "Waffen-SS" and other Wehrmacht units is proof that the normal reserves of the German Army must be running dangerously low.

It also shows that the Nazis have learned nothing from their previous disastrous experience with foreign legions. In last year's campaign, thousands of "volunteers" in half a dozen such legions—the Norwegian "Nordland" regiment, the Dutch-Flemish "Westland" the Danish Free Corps, the French Legion Tricolore, the Spanish Blue Division and others—deserted to the Russians. Those who did not, perished for the most part in the merciless Russian "meat grinder." As a result of the terrible losses, the Norwegian and Danish legions have now been dissolved, and other foreign divisions have been recalled home.

Obviously, the turn now has come to the captive Russians, Estonians, Letts and Lithuanians to provide the last shovelfuls for the "meat grinder."

Washington Courtesy

Washington was formerly a city of great courtesy. The social amenities were generally observed in public places. All this has largely disappeared. Nowhere is it more apparent than in a bus or streetcar. Children are not glaring offenders but their parents often sit placidly beside them while gray-haired men and women stand in the aisle.

If a few elderlies yield their seats to the ladies such a conspicuous act of gallantry may be contagious. Children whose parents have failed to teach them good manners may be thus taught by strangers.

Russia As Test

By Barnet Nover

Allied Bombing—German Strength

THE PENDULUM of sentiment in Allied countries regarding the efficacy of air bombing has, during the past year or so, twice swung from one extreme to the other.

At the time of the R. A. F.'s 1000-plane raid on Cologne in May, 1942, growing skepticism regarding the possibility of defeating Germany through bombing alone gave way to a revived faith in air power. In 90 minutes 1500 tons of bombs were dropped on the great Rhineland industrial and transportation center. The damage was tremendous.

Yet this and other raids on Cologne and other German cities during the spring and summer of 1942 did not prevent the Reich from carrying out large-scale offensives on the Eastern Front and in Africa, offensives which came perilously close to succeeding.

So once more faith in bombing as the sovereign road to victory suffered a decline.

NOW THE PENDULUM has again begun to swing the other way. Fewer planes are being employed in the great raids on Ruhr and Rhineland industrial centers than were used in the raid on Cologne. But recent raids, such as that on Dortmund this week, are believed to have been among the most destructive of the war. And the total volume of bombs dropped on the Reich since the war began is now beyond the 100,000-ton mark.

Moreover, the Allied raids are now more frequent and cover a wider area and often are carried out around the clock, thus straining German defenses to the full.

The cumulative damage which Allied air power has done to German production, transportation and morale is believed to be considerable. Yet during the coming months there is every reason to believe that Germany will be bombed on a scale and with an intensity that, by comparison, will make all past efforts in this regard look like child's play.

So, while the Allies have certainly not succeeded in knocking out Germany by bombing up to now it cannot be assumed that this objective will not be achieved through a multiplication and intensification of the raids.

"When adequate forces are available to hit Germany in six or seven places at once," said Major General Bradley, the inspector general of the United States Army Air Forces, the other day, "the war will be brought to a speedy conclusion."

THIS DOES NOT MEAN that Great Britain and the United States plan to confine their attack on Germany this year to aerial assaults alone. It does mean that whatever other methods are used to bring the war home to the Reich the air weapon is not going to be neglected.

In the meantime, the Eastern Front and the Mediterranean are, though in different ways, likely to provide a clew as to how much Germany has been weakened, in a military way, by Allied bombing.

It has been an article of faith in Allied military circles that Hitler will not let this summer go by without launching another offensive in Russia. For, it is pointed out, the only hope Germany has of matching the increasing strength of the Allies in the west is by shifting its land and air forces from the Eastern Front to the Atlantic and the Mediterranean areas. But that can only be done if the Red Army is either destroyed or weakened so as to be deprived of all offensive power.

Yet a large-scale German offensive in Russia can only be launched if the 190 German and 28 satellite divisions which, according to Winston Churchill, Hitler is maintaining on the Eastern Front can be fully supplied. This will depend, in turn, on the state of German production and transportation.

If German production and transportation have been as hard hit by Allied bombing as some believe, the expected German offensive on the Eastern Front may not take place. If it does it can only mean that the effect of Allied bombing has so far been short of decisive.

BOMBING as an instrument of victory is likely, however, to get an earlier testing in Italy than in Germany.

Unlike Germany, Italy has no stockpiles to fall back on and with the Allies in control of all of North Africa, she is also far more vulnerable to air attack. This vulnerability will increase greatly when and if the islands of Sardinia and Sicily are occupied and put to use by the Allies.

Day after day the airfields, harbors, dock installations, shipping, munitions dumps and oil depots of those islands are being subjected to devastating attack from the air. And resistance to this attack has been declining to the point where it may be said hardly to matter. There is reason to believe, therefore, that the invasion of these islands by Allied troops will be merely the completion of a task the greater part of which air power had previously performed.

It is by no means certain that the same thing will be true of the invasion of the European mainland. Prudence dictates that we should discount such a hopeful possibility. Yet the possibility exists.

Extra Hour

There is a movement on foot which today's Post (May 19) states is spreading among the Government departments, voluntarily to work an extra hour May 31 in commemoration of our war dead. A very commendable idea but one which seems to have been advocated by those not acquainted with the laws regarding hours of service.

The law prohibits the acceptance by the United States Government of voluntary services. The so-called "dollar a year" men, of whom there are hundreds now serving the Government, are paid their dollar a year in order to get around that law.

The law also allows the head of any department to increase the hours of labor without additional compensation but a subsequent and therefore superseding act stipulates that employes shall be paid time and a half for time over 40 hours per week.

The situation then resolves itself thus: The employes cannot be permitted to work the extra hour voluntarily without pay and should the heads of the departments issue an order requiring them to work an extra hour May 31 they would be entitled to time and a half for that hour provided they now work 40 hours or more per week. The hours now are 48 per week for most employes, with some agencies working as many as 54 hours per week.

Robert M. Lovett

Mr. Lovett's crime, according to The Post's report of the Interior Department Appropriations Subcommittee of the House, is that he belongs to some 400 organizations, some of which are thought to be subversive. Any man belonging to that many liberal organizations would be apt to belong to some that would meet with the displeasure of the House Committee. Even if the House Committee does not approve of Mr. Lovett's views, at a time like this when men are dying to preserve the rights of liberty, every precaution should be taken to avoid infringing on Mr. Lovett's rights. For if his rights can be taken from him, the same thing can happen to any individual.

Juvenile Delinquency

The migration of families from sections where they had no civic responsibility nor recreational organizations swamps many unprepared social organizations in places where the police were called in to handle disturbances and annoyances.

F. L. Thorndike in his "Your City," page 145, says: "The opinions of the people whose attitudes count most in the direction of our cities are too much influenced by the life the cities provide for people of social and financial status like their own and too little by the life of the entire population. This is especially true of the Southern cities. But these cities were notable for venereal disease, homicides, infant mortality, extreme poverty, low wages, lack of child conservation and creature comforts for a large section of the population."

In legislation, by which things have to be done in Washington, it is too much of a Southern city, rather than the Capital of the greatest Nation in the world and one that should be a model of all that democracy has to offer mankind.

Teaching History

In a recent interview Sir Bernard Pares, doubtless the leading English-speaking, first-hand authority on Russia, observed that Stalin has not only restored history in the Russian schools, but that he had also directed that less stress be laid on "civic training" for children. Under the Trotzky regime history had been banned or subordinated to the study of social problems.

Stalin's recognition of the value of history instruction may be compared or contrasted with the "new type" curriculum in our own country in so "integrating" or "fusing" the subject with what are called the "social (science) studies" that history, especially American history, is just about lost in the ensuing confusion.

The recent revelations of student ignorance of American history illustrate that the promulgation of fads and fancies by a number of our teachers' colleges has resulted in losing touch with common sense and a sound pedagogy.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Arlene on the Post-War Woman

All-Out Arlene, the WAAC of WAACS, says that after this war the question anybody will ask when told of plans for an American Legion convention will be: "Male or female?"

"The women war vets will have a national organization," predicts Arlene, "just as the men have, and will we have fun at our conventions!"

All-Out Arlene admits that there is one drawback, woman's aversion to being called a "Vet" of anything. It tends to date her. But she will get over that, Arlene thinks.

"I can see a Woman's American Legion right now marching down Main Street, crowding the best hotels and having a fine time," says Arlene. "When it comes to swapping stories of their experiences and adventures, the men soldiers will have nothing on the girls.

"In the postwar world the old crack, 'I'd like to know what there is about these conventions that's so appealing,' won't be made by the women to the departing legionnaires. They'll be finding out for themselves—and how!

"Through this war thousands of women in uniform are meeting women from all corners of America. "I've been in less than a year and I have buddies from all over America. These ties are going to be enduring. I'll want to see them again, and a female American Legion is the answer to the problem."

"How will the men feel about this?" we asked.

"Who cares?" demanded All-Out Arlene. "We women will come out of the global fracas in a dominant position. We will be a stronger force than ever before. No man will shove us around. The weaker-sister days are over."

"Don't you think it possible that when peace comes the girls in the war effort will return gracefully to their former positions in the life of the country?" we asked.

"Not a chance!" laughed All-Out Arlene. "If there's a so-called weaker vessel after this war, it will be man. We girls of the WAACS, WAVES, SPARS, WAFS, and so forth, are coming out of this struggle completely awakened to our powers and abilities. We are coming back with a realization of our strength. We are coming back hard-boiled."

"No more clinging-vine stuff?" we asked.

"None," declared All-Out Arlene, whose manner was a little top-sergeanty. "If you find any clinging vines they will be men."

"You don't really mean that women are going to lose their winsome, romantic, flowery and essentially feminine qualities, do you?" we asked.

"Cut the 'Hearts and Flowers' stuff," laughed Arlene. "It's corny. We'll like romance and we'll retain some feminine qualities; but war is war. It does things to a girl, take it from me! And when the cease-firing order is given she will be a new woman—a heavy-duty model that will investigate all strange noises for herself, rout burglars, slaughter her own cattle, do her own furniture moving—and take no nonsense from anybody. Don't say you weren't warned!"

The uncertainties of life and its positions of grandeur were seldom more strikingly testified to than by the scene in Washington which found the former King of England sitting in the galleries, comparatively ignored at first, while Winston Churchill held the floor. Not so many years ago a visit by Edward meant street parades, dinners and whoopla demonstrations. And Mr. Churchill could be (as, indeed, he was) run down by a taxicab in Fifth Avenue, New York, and taken to a hospital before anybody knew who he was.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Last Days Of A White Elephant

NOW THAT the O. P. A. has broken down, the radical reorganization which is inevitable cannot be successful unless we recognize that no one could possibly have made a success of O. P. A. It is easy to put the blame on Mr. Henderson and his lawyers, on Mr. Prentiss Brown and his politicians and public relations men. But in fact O. P. A. has failed because it was founded on a popular fallacy—on the fallacy that if you freeze all prices, including wages, by legal decree you can keep them frozen at a time when war requires a radical readjustment of production and consumption.

LIPPMANN

There is no use blaming the Administration because the fallacy is now proved to be unworkable. The truth is that the fallacious doctrine was imposed on Mr. Henderson by public pressure against his better judgment, and the trouble with the Administration is that it lacked the conviction and resource to resist the pressure and to lay down a sound doctrine and a workable plan. Thus for two years it has administered badly a policy which no one could have administered well.

IN NO other country in the world have men imagined that all prices could be kept frozen by decree. Hitler did freeze all prices, wages and profits three years before the war. But Hitler backed up the decrees by the complete regimentation of industry and agriculture, by the conscription of labor, by his ruthless police and by the concentration camp. Even at that, with all that power behind the decrees, he has had to use also the devices of subsidies, equalization funds, and requisitioning. How anyone could have supposed that we could make the freeze work by unarmed decrees from the OPA is mysterious only if we remember how many Americans have believed that liquor drinking could be abolished by prohibition and war outlawed by signing a treaty to outlaw it.

As a matter of fact the American experiment in universal price-freezing has been from the start an economic absurdity and in practice a most curious deception. In 1942-1943 the total net production has been, let us say, 110 billion dollars of goods, of which say 50 billions were military. These goods at the various stages of production represent several billion prices and wage rates. Of all these prices, at least half, those paid by the war agencies, have been outside the freeze. The Army, quite rightly, has paid what it had to pay in order to procure its weapons. These military prices have priority over civilian. Why has anyone, who ever took an elementary course in economics, supposed that Mr. Henderson, Mr. Brown, or anyone else could keep a rigid ceiling on the civilian price structure when within the price structure there were rolling around and flying around the Army, the Navy and all their expensive warships, tanks, airplanes and what not?

THE supposed justification of this universal civilian freeze was that it would prevent "inflation." But that was a misunderstanding of the nature of inflation. For if by some miracle all retail prices were held fixed, inflation would still exist. If money cannot buy goods, money loses its value, and that is what inflation is. And since in wartime there is bound to be more money than there are civilian goods for sale, merely to make the goods cheap does not prevent inflation. At best it merely alleviates the effect of excess unusable money until the time comes when there again are enough civilian goods to restore the real value of money.

Therefore the true object of wartime economic policy is (1) to assure at reasonable prices the necessities of life to the mass of the people and (2) to drain off some of the excess money, and then to impound the rest of the excess until peacetime production can be resumed.

The object of the price-fixing of rationed necessities—food, fuel, clothing, housing, transportation—is social, not financial: to maintain the efficiency of the people in their war work. For that reason, rationing, subsidies, and the control of civilian supply, are justified provided they are administered so as to insure the possible and the necessary total production.

The object of financial policy—through taxes and loans, the restriction of credit and investment—is in the last analysis to keep the supply of inflated and therefore depreciated money in cold storage until its value can be restored and it can safely be spent.

THEREFORE, the true line of reorganization is that, proposed in the Jenkins bill, and very ably advocated on the floor of the House of Representatives by Congressman Herter of Massachusetts. It is to place in the hands of Mr. Chester Davis, who is responsible for the production of food, the rationing and pricing of food as well. Then, if Mr. Davis cannot sell food at reasonable retail prices after he has paid adequate prices to get it produced, the difference should be made up in the form of some kind of subsidy. The same principle ought to be applied elsewhere, for example, to all fuels—whether oil or coal—and the whole business of pricing and rationing placed in the hands of Mr. Ickes.

Then Mr. Davis, Mr. Ickes, and the other controllers of the production and distribution of essentials, should become a price committee, presided over by Mr. Byrnes, to determine general policy.

ON THE other side—the control of the wartime inflation—let us hope that with the compromise on the Ruml plan behind us, we can move on from this largely sterile debate to the real task of devising taxes and other measures which discourage wartime spending and promote the conservation of a larger and larger part of the war earnings until they can, without the loss of their purchasing power, be spent when peace is fully restored.

Purse String Curb Sought

No "Blank Checks"

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday sought to tie strings to President Roosevelt's emergency fund which would prevent him from using the money for purposes forbidden by Congress.

Reflecting widespread congressional revulsion against "blank check" appropriations, the committee approved continuation of the fund which carries an unexpended balance of more than 89 million dollars, but inserted legislative language intended to prevent expenditure of the money either to increase outlays made by Congress or for functions for which Congress has refused to appropriate.

Terms of the provision from which the War and Navy Departments were exempted, were so broad as to cause Congressional authorities which cannot be identified to question whether the language would not, in fact, bar use of the fund for many purposes for which it was created.

The fund was set up to enable the President to meet unforseeable fiscal needs precipitated by the war.

The committee substituted the provision for an amendment the House attached to the $143,639,591 urgent deficiency appropriation, which would forbid use of the fund for the National Resources Planning Board and the Farm Security Administration.

The deficiency bill and legislation appropriating $6,273,629,000 in new lend-lease expenditures were favorably reported to the Senate by the committee. In recommending passage of the lend-lease bill, the committee backed up the decision of its Deficiencies Subcommittee which struck from the measure two House amendments:

1. Cutting off the Federal salaries of Dr. Robert Morss Lovett, Government secretary for the Virgin Islands, and Goodwin Watson and William E. Dodd, jr., employes of the Federal Communications Commission.
2. Banning use of lease-lend funds for payments of subsidies on agricultural products.

Dr. Lovett, Watson and Dodd were voted from the Federal payroll by the House on recommendation of the Kerr Subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee which agreed with Chairman Dies of the Committee on Un-American Activities that the three men were affiliated with "subversive" organizations.

Senate committee members, said Senator McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee, the acting chairman, were in full agreement that the Kerr amendment should be removed from the bill in order to get the issue before a Senate-House conference where Senators would have an opportunity to study the House subcommittee's record on the three employes.

There was a difference of opinion in the committee, McKellar reported, as to "whether these men should work for the Government."

District Powers Bill Scheduled for Hearings June 3

Hearings on a bill to increase powers of District Commissioners will be held before the Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee of the House District Committee at 10 a. m. Thursday June 3.

Chairman Hebert (Democrat) of Louisiana, who introduced the bill in the House on May 6, said first witnesses to appear would be the District Commissioners, to whom the bill would give authority more comparable to that of other city heads than the District officials now enjoy. Representatives of civic organizations will follow Commissioners on the stand.

Among powers proposed for the municipal government by the bill are those of suspending with or without pay any District employe appointed by them, of appointing employes as contracting officers, of settling property condemnation through title companies, of waiving annual professional license fees for men in the armed services, and of adopting regulations for persons or utilities required to furnish bond with the District.

Postwar Plan Snags

By Robert C. Albright

Post Staff Writer

Drafting of a composite Senate resolution committing the United States to a fixed course of postwar cooperation yesterday was reported to have hit a snag on provisions for an international police force and other details.

As a result, Senate action on a series of resolutions for United States participation in postwar planning was expected to go over until early fall, when Congress returns from a scheduled late summer recess.

A Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee meanwhile was proceeding with studies of 10 widely conflicting postwar resolutions, and may make a report to the full committee before the recess.

The real test will come later in the closely divided Foreign Relations Committee, where a once isolationist minority will attempt to hold the resolution to general terms. Indirect notice already has been served on the Administration that bitter debate will follow any attempt to commit the Senate to anything more definite than a pledge to cooperate with United Nations allies toward a goal of lasting peace.

So indefinite a commitment would defeat the purpose of the bipartisan Ball resolution asking machinery now to administer relief, rehabilitation and peaceful settlement of disputes, as well as provision for a United Nations military force to suppress future aggression.

Senator Joseph H. Ball (Republican) of Minnesota, who with three Senate colleagues initiated the move for definite Senate postwar commitments, made it plain yesterday that he would fight any generalized compromise. It was even more doubtful that a simple "lasting peace" pledge would win Administration support.

Ball and an influential cross-section of both parties in the Senate feel that the postwar resolution should be fought out in the Senate on the question: "How far is the Senate willing to go to assure a lasting peace?" If the issue is posed on that basis, Ball believes that all of the points in his own resolution, including the provision for international policing, can win a two-thirds vote of the Senate.

To the Senate subcommittee, which has been holding secret hearings on all ten resolutions, the question wasn't quite that simple. Some of the Administration members, while agreeing with the objectives of the Ball resolution, were reluctant to launch the Senate on a debate that might have international repercussions. Others favored postponement until there was a clearer understanding of issues growing out of the dispute between Poland and the Soviet Union.

Members of the subcommittee stressed that no decisions of any sort have yet been reachd by the Senate group, nor are any likely in the immediate future. Hearings are still incomplete and before they are closed State Department winesses will be called back for further questioning.

The Federal Phone Bill

Going Up!

By Robert De Vore

Post Staff Writer

The Federal Government last night was chastized for failing to practice the economy in travel and telephone usage it preaches to the Nation as the Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures estimated at more than 100 million dollars Uncle Sam's bill for communications and travel in the year ending next June 30.

The committee headed by Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia, in a report to Congress and the President, emphasized that this estimate did not include expenditures for these purposes by the Army and Navy.

"With the public at large obliged to reduce travel and communications, it is no more than fair to expect their Government to do likewise" the report declared.

Time to Call a Halt

"When agencies not essential to the war effort allow their travel and communication expenses to double—treble—even swell to nine times their peacetime levels, when departments and agencies allow increases totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars—then it is time to call a halt to such wasteful and unpatriotic expenditures."

In a statement accompanying the report, Senator Byrd criticized some of the outlays as "so excessive as to warrant immediate action by Congress."

The committee's spending estimates were based on known expenditures for the six-month period ended January 1, 1943 of $15,573,633 for communications and $35,672,853 for travel of Federal employes.

The Government could not have spent more money for long-distance telephone calls, the committee observed, had it made 495 three-minute calls around the world at the equator daily.

Calls "to the Moon"

Pointing out that the War Production Board spent nearly $1,500,000 dollars for telephone charges, the report sought to emphasize the "tremendous proportions" of this figure by remarking that WPB, for the same money, "could put in hourly three-minute calls to the moon, 221,463 miles away, hour of the day, every day of the year—at Government rates."

Sixty per cent of Government communications, aside from those of the War and Navy Departments—were incurred by eight agencies, with the Office of War Information and WPB leading the list, the report showed.

In the six months from July 1 to December 31, 1942, communications bills for the agencies studied showed a 100 per cent increase over the $14,805,993 for the same purpose in the entire 1941 fiscal year.

Fifty-two per cent of expenditures for travel was incurred by six agencies. The Department of Agriculture was the leading offender, the committee found. The Justice Department took second place and WPB third.

Navy Corsair Fighter Proves Superiority Over Any Zero

The Navy's Corsair fighter plane, first such craft in the service to have a 2000-horse power engine, was officially described yesterday for the first time as decidedly superior to all models of the famed Japanese Zero, even in maneuverability.

Fighting in the South Pacific has proved the superiority, the Navy said it had been informed by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet.

"Our naval and Marine pilots at Guadalcanal are enthusiastic about this plane, which so regularly turns out a first-rate job," Nimitz declared.

These pilots have reported that the Corsair has the Zero licked in every phase of combat performance; interception, maneuverability, climb, speed, fire power and armor.

Earlier American fighter models than the F4U were superior to the Zero in armor and fire power but generally not in other respects. This compelled American pilots to rely on their skill in evolving new tactics which quickly offset the tactical advantages inherent in the Zero's characteristics but prevented our fighter groups from using a maximum variety of combat methods.

The Corsair is equipped with a Pratt and Whitney engine and Hamilton standard propeller.

It is made by the Vought Company, Stratford, Conn.

West Virginian Declines $8000 Job to Be Major

Raymond Kenny of Grafton, W. Va., nominated Monday by President Roosevelt to be Region IV director of the War Manpower Commission, yesterday afternoon said that he would ask Senator H. M. Kilgore (West Virginia), to withdaw his name for consideration.

Kenny, present State director of the Department of Public Assistance for West Virginia, said he would enter the United States Army with the rank of major.

Leo R. Werts, acting director of the regional WMC office, when he learned of Kenny's decision said that he knew of no one else under consideration by the WMC office for the post Kenny was to fill.

The WMC position carries with it a salary of $8000 a year, while a major in the Army receives approximately $4600 annually, including allowances. Kenny from 1933 to 1936 was administrative adviser to the Resettlement Administration in Washington and from 1938 to 1941 was employed by the Social Security Board.

In the meantime, Warts, whose regular position with the WMC is executive director at the headquarters, will continue to function as acting regional director, he said.

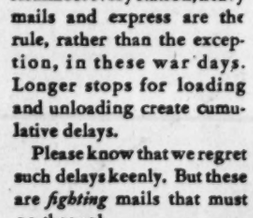
IT'S FIGHTING MAIL, SIR!



Thank you for your patriotic patience with these unavoidable wartime delays

At almost every station, heavy mails and express are the rule, rather than the exception, in these war days. Longer stops for loading and unloading create cumulative delays.

Please know that we regret such delays keenly. But these are fighting mails that must go through.

The patience and good sportsmanship of our passengers has been remarked by Santa Fe people, all along the line. We're truly grateful for this helpful attitude.

Please minimize the inconvenience to you of such delays by taking an earlier train whenever you possibly can.

New Employes Seen Declining In Washington

The major effect of the 48-hour week in the Washington area will be a reduction in the number of new employes here, according to Brig. Gen. William C. Rose, chief of the executive services of the War Manpower Commission.

Addressing members of the District of Columbia unit of the Controllers Institute of America Tuesday night at the Carlton Hotel, General Rose said:

"On the basis of our limited experience in the operation of the 48-hour week in non-Governmental establishments in the District, I believe that we can assume the major effect of the longer work week will be a reduction in the number of new employes hired either to replace men withdrawn by Selective Service or to meet increasing labor requirements.

"In general, business activities in the District of Columbia are still increasing, but the increased work load will be met through longer hours worked by existing employes. This will make it unnecessary to further complicate present congestion by importing additional numbers of workers into Washington from other areas."

Speaking on the national manpower situation, General Rose said: "In December, 1942, we had an Army and Navy of approximately 6,400,000 men. Our global strategy now calls for 10,800,000 by January 1 next year. This means we must withdraw about 4,300,000 additional men from our present manpower pool. The 48-hour week order was one step to assist in stretching our manpower resources . . ."

Their Duty

Bank Directors Must Count the Currency

New York, May 26 (AP).—Bank directors have the responsibility of preventing fraud with the depositors money, says the New York State Bankers Association, even to counting the bank notes and weighing the silver in the vaults.

In the average town, directors are merchants and businessmen. Recommendations to them from the bankers, who are nominally under their direction, are included in the primer, "How Directors Should Examine Their Bank," issued by the New York association.

The book includes the recommendation that every bit of money in the bank should be counted where possible, and that otherwise bundles of currency should be selected at random for actual count, and all bundles be thumbed to make sure there are not counterfeit.

Silver money, when not counted by hand, should be weighed and the count approximated, the report suggests.

17-Million Cost To N. Y. Central Seen in Pay Plan

Albany, N. Y., May 26 (AP).—Frederick E. Williamson, president of the New York Central Railroad, estimated today that an 8 cents an hour wage increase for more than 1,000,000 railroad workers would cost his company more than $17,000,000 this year.

The increase, retroactive to February 1, was recommended today by an emergency board of the National Railway Labor Panel for members of 15 so-called non-operating unions.

Williamson's estimate of the cost to the New York Central was made at the annual meeting of the company's stockholders who heard him add that, in view of the wage increase, "it is not plain what our dividend course will be in the future."

He reported net income of $21,229,976 for the first four months of 1943, as compared with $49,000,000 for the entire year of 1942. He estimated net income at the rate of $5,000,000 a month, as against $4,000,000 a month last year.

Trade Expands As Stocks Push To 3-Year High

By the Associated Press

New York, May 26.—The stock market climbed another notch on expanded volume today as Wall Streets talked about the "inflationary portents" of wage boost recommendations of Federal agencies for soft coal miners and railroad employes in nonoperating unions.

Major progress of the share list was made in two jumps—in the first hour and near the close. In between, prices settled back a bit under the weight of profit selling. Final quotations for the general run of rail and industrial leaders were only a little under the best to around a point. A scattering of blue chips advanced 2 to 3. Merchandising stocks came up buoyantly in the late proceedings.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite advanced .5 of a point to 51.5, the highest mark registered in more than three years Transactions increased to 1,321,870 shares after a week averaging well under a million daily. Yesterday's business amounted to 889,260 shares.

Stocks up a point or more at the end included Santa Fe, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Case, Oliver Farm, Johns-Manville, Air Reduction, Westinghouse, Union Carbide and Coca Cola. Fractionally improved were U. S. Steel, Goodyear, United Aircraft, Douglas, General Electric, Texas Co., Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Great Northern and Union Pacific. Du Pont jumped 3¼, Eastman Kodak 2½ and U. S. Gypsum 2.

Rail issues paced a moderate rise in the bond market. Chicago wheat closed unchanged to up ⅛ cent a bushel. Hogs were weak. Cotton futures had final losses of 15 to 25 cents a bale.

North American Plan Approved by SEC

Philadelphia, May 26 (AP).—A proposal by the North American Company of New York to distribute about July 1 not more than 75,000 shares of its holdings of the common stock of its subsidiary, Pacific Gas and Electric Co., in payment of a dividend of its common stock, was approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission today.

The distribution will be on the basis of one share of Pacific stock for each 100 shares of North American common. No certificates will be issued for fractions of shares of Pacific stock, but in lieu of certificates cash will be paid at the rate of 29 for each share of North American common.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 26 (AP).—An upturn of about a cent sent rye to new highs for the past six years today as the aggressive demand for that grain, which got under way last Saturday, continued unabated. Profit-taking on the upturn was heavy, but could not stem the rise and final prices were not far below the day's highs.

At the close rye was up ¾-1 cent. July 5-5⅛-⅝. The day's highs were about 7 cents above last Friday's lows and the December contract at one time was within ¾ cent of the $1 mark. Wheat finished unchanged to ⅛ higher, July 1.44⅝@1.44⅞, corn was unchanged, July 1.05, and oats were ⅛-⅞ up, July reaching a new seasonal peak.

Dutch Leonard Gives Browns Four Hits as Nats Win, 1 to 0

Lou Novikoff Goes Hitless, Cubs Lose, 4-2

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 26.—The dramatic return of Lou Novikoff to the Chicago Cubs' line-up after a 61-day holdout was a fizzle today as the Mad Russian went hitless in four trips to the plate, the Cubs saw the two-game winning streak ended, 4 to 2, by the New York Giants, and only 4638 fans entered Wrigley Field to hail their hero.

Novikoff's part in the day's batting efforts consisted of a ground out to second base in the second inning with no one on base; a pop fly to short in the fourth with a teammate on second and one out; a fly to deep center in the sixth with two out and men on first and third; and a fly to deep right in the eighth with two out and a man on second.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

There's been a change made in the District Boxing Commission. Police Lieutenant John Agnew has been replaced by Police Inspector Clarence Talley, for reasons not quite explained by the District Commissioners, beyond the announcement that they deem it more fitting that a police representative of higher rank be seated on the Boxing Commission.

POVICH

We'd say Lieutenant Agnew gave it quite a whirl. He was an excellent boxing commissioner. If there were to be changes made, the District Commissioners might well have retained Agnew and brought in a new face for one of the other two jobs on the commission, held by civilians.

Of the lot, Agnew was the most aggressive, most hep man on the commission. He was wise to the ways of the fenaglers in the boxing business and he knew which end of a glove to pull on his fist. Agnew rarely missed a fight. If he didn't rank top-hole as a mere police lieutenant, if the Commissioners didn't believe his rank brought enough dignity to his Boxing Commission post, that's a strange way of looking at matters we'd say.

Agnew is stepping down on orders, and for him there can be no recourse. His successor, Inspector Talley, beyond being a fight fan, acknowledges that he has had no experience in dealing with the slick gents who inhabit the boxing business. But he's willing to try, on orders. He need only to equal the accomplishments of Agnew to be a success in a pretty thankless, nonpaying job.

In our time, we have been heckled by champions at the art of throwing the knife, and giving it a twist after the blade penetrated, but we have never writhed in quite the pain that the letters of Miss Isabelle M. Parks unfailing by produced.

Through it all, Miss Parks of 2515 Thirteenth Street Northwest has been one of our favorite correspondents, nevertheless. She is an unreconstructed rooter for the New York Yankees, and this department's every failure to give the Yankees due credit during their long dominance of American League affairs always produced an instataneous reprimand from Miss Parks. This has been going on for 15 years, honest.

We never could get mad at Miss Isabelle Parks, though. Her letters were always so deucedly smart, even when they hurt. We always thought she missed her calling. She could be the prefect columnist oynic. She knows how to fry a person in cold type. But this day, she has written us a letter we're compelled to print, both in gratitude to Miss Parks, and to acquaint you with the sort of a person she really is. We give you Miss Parks:

"Dear Mr. Povich: This is practically in a class with a Brooklyn fan paying tribute to a Giant baseball player, but even I have to break down and say that you did a really wonderful job on all the arrangements for the game last night. Honestly, it was great.

"You didn't overdo the side attractions—some people fail to realize that they can be overdone. The people you had were good and the time allotted to them was long enough to be enjoyable without taking up too much of the evening. I might mention that it is about the only "benefit performance" I have heard of where not only all the advertised attractions made an appearance, but two added starters actually showed up—and two really star unannounced attractions.

"For myself Bing Crosby was the only person necessary to make the entire evening a complete success. It was too delightful to find Bing just exactly the casual, carefree, happy-go-lucky guy he seems to be on the screen and radio. And, in addition, to see the dear old Babe again! Well, you know what that means to almost any fan, much less a Yankee fan. I thought it was most generous of Wavell to say a word and I trust he was a tiny bit thrilled by the thrill his presence gave the crowd.

"In passing I might mention that Arch McDonald should be congratulated for his introduction of Crosby. I've heard a lot of masters of ceremony who said a star attraction didn't need an introduction, but he's about the first who didn't then proceed to take 15 minutes to make the introduction.

"Now don't misunderstand me—I wouldn't have you think I'm taking back any of the things I ever wrote you—BUT last night was grand. Congratulations! Sincerely yours,

ISABELLE M. PARKS.

Braves Defeat Cards, 4-3, In 11 Inning Night Contest

St. Louis, May 26 (AP).—Mort Cooper picked the wrong man to pitch to in the eleventh inning tonight, and the Boston Braves clipped the Cardinals, 4 to 3, on Charley Workman's single. Al Javery held the Cards to six hits.

Cooper gave up a hit to Eddie Joost to open the Braves' half of the eleventh, and with two men down and Joost on third, elected to walk Johnny McCarthy to get at Workman.

Lou Klein and Walker Cooper both clouted home runs for the Cards; the former in the first, the latter in the sixth tying the score after the Braves had taken the lead with a three-run outburst in the fifth.

That fifth inning was really the payoff, for Walker Cooper's error on Stan Musial's throw allowed the third run to reach second, all set for a scoring single by Joost. Two

Spence's Hit Drives Home Lone Score

Niggeling Holds Griffs to Five Safeties; 13,500 Witness Game

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

The Nats made a run in the seventh inning last night and with Dutch Leonard pitching that's all they needed to see 'em home against the St. Louis Browns. Leonard made the lonesome run stand up nicely for a 1-0 victory to the high satisfaction of the 13,500 after-dark customers.

That run was produced by an entirely unexpected source. It sprang from the bat of Stan Spence who had gone into the game with a cool, very cool, .093 batting average for the season. But Spence was a .667 hitter last night, accounting for two of the Nats' five blows.

It was a struggle for Leonard, who eventually outpitched his fellow knuckle-baller, Johnny Niggeling by holding the Browns to four hits. Displaying a lack of faith in the Nats' hitting, Big Dutch himself rapped out a hit that figured in the winning run. It was one of the Nats' five hits.

Outpitching Leonard

To the point where the Nats finally fabricated the night's only run, Niggeling was outpitching Leonard. The only blow he gave up in the first five innings was Stan Spence's single in the fourth.

But in the sixth, Jake Early got tough. He led off with a single through the box. After Sullivan flied out, Leonard made one futile attempt to bunt, and then whaled a single to center that moved Early to second. They languished on base while Case popped up, but Spence checked in with his pay-off single to center that scored Early.

Leonard shut the Browns out in the first four innings with three hits and then he really settled down. He blanked 'em in the last five innings with one hit. He struck out eight along the way, with his knuckler doing some fancy tricks.

So lively was his knuckler, in fact, that Leonard had reason to rue it at times. Twice it put him to deep trouble. He shoved third strikes past batters only to see them reach base because Jake Early couldn't hold the butterfly ball.

That happened the first time in the sixth inning when Clift struck out and then romped to first after the pitch got away from Early. The Nats rubbed him out happily when Gerry Priddy started a fancy double play on a grounder of Laabs' bat on a hard chance.

Leonard had to pitch himself

Lieut. Agnew Ousted As Ring Commissioner

Inspector Clarence Talley Named As Successor at D. C. Board Parley

Lieut. John J. Agnew was relieved of his post as a member of the District Boxing Commission yesterday following a meeting of the District Board of Commissioners.

Inspector Clarence Talley, night superintendent of police and right-hand man of Maj. Edward J. Kelly, was named in his place.

Agnew, who has served as a member of the ring body since August, 1941, when he was appointed to serve out the unexpired term of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, who retired, was reappointed for a two-year term in May, 1942. He was to have served until May, 1944, but was asked for his resignation when it was decided a higher rank official in the Police Department should serve on the ring board to "add dignity and prestige to the position."

Inspector Talley, a North Carolinian by birth, has been on the local police force for 22 years. Admittedly not an expert, Talley was recommended for the position by Major Kelly.

Vince DiMaggio hit a homer with one on in the second inning and another with two aboard in the third to lead Pittsburgh's attack which totalled 16 hits.

Last surviving member of the team which brought the prized International Challenge Cup to this country for the first time in 1909 and kept it here through 1913, the 66-year-old polo and racquets champion died just nine months after the death of Devereux Milburn, another member of the Nation's most famous mallet-swinging quartet.

Flying Junior Wins 5th at Charles Town, Pays $155.60

D. C.-Owned 3-Year-Old Wins Easily

Ler-Lin Finishes Second, Fair Flame Third in Feature; Ralph Kirk Rider

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 26.—A scattered few bettors struck gold here this afternoon. Flying Junior, a 3-year-old owned by C. E. Nelson of Washington, D. C., won the fifth race and returned across-the-board prices of $155.60 to win, $47.20 to place and $12.80 to show. Going to the front at the first turn, Flying Junior was never headed from that point to the wire and finished a length and a half in advnace of Mrs. L. M. Hansen's Ler-Lin with the Shenandoah Stables' Fair Flame, third in the field of eight going 6½ furlongs.

Apprentice Jockey Ralph (Boo) Kirk made Flying Junior his first winner of the year. This was the second victory in two years of campaigning for the winning geleding. Flying Junior was eased up in his most recent start when Jockey Scotty Prain was blinded by flying mud.

Carrying only 104 pounds, Flying Junior showed a liking for the slow oval Fair Flame, with Jockey Buddy Root up, made repeated tries to get to the leader and weakened. Ler-Lin's closing bid, engineered by Jockey Leon Garrett, fell short.

Ralph Kirk's brother, Carson, was the winning rider in the sixth race, best offering on a card that was shifted around due to the change in track conditions by the result of last night's rains. The elder Kirk rode Cornelia Jane, owned by Dr. H. B. Langdon of Charles Town, to an easy victory. John Flynn's Whip Snake and Mrs. M. E. (Liz) Whitney's Tippy were second and third in this field of six. Cornelia paid $4.60.

Heavily played favorites figured in both ends of the $11.20 daily double. H. G. Tonkin's Oomph, paying a win mutuel of $4.60, won the opener in a gallop by four lengths, with True Warrior second and Amplify third. The second event went to A. L. Leith's Zalleen Zee, a $4.20 shot. The daughter of Clock Tower won by four lengths and defeated, among others, War Smoke and Shaillen.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Trainer Clay Sutphin has shipped the Labrot horses back to the farm although they were doing O. K. here. Sunset Boy, Attache and Toy-Quay were in the van. Sutphin said that the Army had taken two of his men on the farm and he had to work there himself. Jockey J. Thomas, known as "Old Folks," has gone to Wheeling. There's a train from Washington to Charles Town, leaving Union Station at 8:15 and arriving here at 10:40. However, the 10 a. m. train from Washington connects with the regular bus at Martinsburg. The bus stops at the Charles Town station, only five blocks from the track. The program here will remain at eight races. However, two of the events will be for $600 claiming price. Dan Chamblin has shipped ten horses, the property of W. B. Sasilear and S. H. Rogers to Wheeling.

Trainer Willie Zimmerman handled the sale of Alsace to Mrs. Vince Glorioso for Harry J. Dipaula. Heavy rain before yesterday's program caused the card to be shifted but the track dried quickly. President A. J. Boyle has promised horsemen to raise the purses as soon as business would allow. The track ambulance was all by its lonesome on the parking lot yesterday. Starter John Morrissey is doing a good job, as usual. Jockey Buddy Root has lost few close ones this season. His defeat on Dividend might be accounted for by the fact he lost his whip leaving the gate. See you on the rail. . . .

BILL.

First race—SAINT PYREWICK appears best suited of these sprinters. FLICK likes this course and belongs close. CLAIRE WHIZZ should be first flight

Second race—SOME WHERE is getting ready to win and this looks like the right spot. SHY MISS is fairly consistent and will be a factor. PALGENE for the show end.

Third race—GINOBI needs only a ride in this company. TROSTAR is definitely improving and is a threat. MACIE MARGARET for the show.

Fourth race—FIRST DRAFT gets my call. The route suits. RINGMOND had class once and is dangerous. BOMINT may get a piece of the cash.

Fifth race—VENDOR'S LIEN has done everything asked and I'm forced to string along. CHOP STICKS is one to beat. NYLEVE is a fair sort and will be close.

Sixth race—ROYAL ECHO and TECO TACK are a close fit in this field and I prefer them in the order named. BILL'S ANNE might be along in time to be dangerous.

Seventh race—SIR REG had been threatening and may go well in this field. ROUGH GOING and YANKEE LAD to fill out the cash circle.

Eighth race—JACK HORNER likes the long route and should win despite top weight. BIG JACK and TIME PLAY for the place and show.

Best bet—VENDOR'S LIEN.

Charlie Petro, Galiano Meet Next Monday

Charlie Petro, Southeast welterweight who has won 15 of 18 professional matches, has been matched against Pete Galiano, Baltimore veteran, in the feature match on next Monday night's boxing show at Turner's Arena.

The Petro-Galiano bout, a 10-rounder, was a surprise move on Promoter Joe Turner's part, for yesterday he had planned to hold his next show on June 7.

Petro has only two blotches on his escutcheon since turning professional about a year ago. He has one draw. Also he lost to Joe Torres, a more experienced campaigner. Otherwise the brother of Southpaw Danny Petro has handled himself creditably.

The Southeast scrapper's most recent victim was Joe Sole, Richmond soldier, who suffered his first local knockout on the D. Petro-Wilson show, when Charlie stopped him in five rounds.

Galiano needs little introduction. A seasoned scrapper highly regarded in Baltimore rings, Galiano in more recent local bouts fought two eight-round draws with Maxie Starr, Harrisburg (Pa.) soldier.

Bethesda-C.C. Tops Coolidge, 5 to 4

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High diamonders defeated Coolidge, 5-4, yesterday on the winner's field, scoring the winning run in the eighth on a fluke single.

The Colts tied the score in the eighth off Arthur Baker, bringing Relief Pitcher Harvey Rettew in to get credit for the victory. Bob Brewer opened the Bethesda eighth safe on an error, stole second, went to third on another error and scored when pinch hitter Eddie Records' looper fell at the feet of the first baseman and Records won the race for the bag.

Sailors Call Bond Show Greatest Ever

Special Dispatch to The Post

Norfolk, Va., May 26.—The Norfolk Naval Training Station's star-studded baseball team contains several performers who have participated in some of the Nation's most impressive sports spectacles but all are agreed that Monday night's Post war bond game in Washington was tops.

Phil Rizzuto, the former Yankee shortfielder who has been in the last two World Series summed up the feeling of the Sailors when he said: "I always thought the first World Series I played in (1941 Yankees vs. Dodgers) was the most thrilling event I would ever take part in or see, but that show in Washington Monday outdid that."

The 1941 All-Star football game in Chicago rated first in Ace Parker's book until last Monday night. Ensign Parker, assistant coach of the Sailors said: "The best show I've ever seen. It had everything. It was a privilege to take part in it and the memory of that night will remain with me always." Said Charley Wagner, former Boston Red Sox moundsman who started against the Nats: "The most thrilling spectacle I ever saw or hope to ever see. I know I couldn't have gotten a bigger kick out of pitching a World Series game than I did Monday."

"Last year's American League service team playing the American Leaguers was about the finest program I had ever expected to witness, but I'll have to put that second to the Washington show," was the way Ben McCoy put it. "I can't get over the enthusiasm of the crowd and the appearance of so many celebrities," McCoy added.

Women's Tennis Event Postponed to May 29

The City of Washington Tennis Association announced today that the starting date of the women's tournament has been postponed from May 29 to June 5. This tournament will be staged concurrently with the men's tournament.

Soldier Field Loses 'Skins-All Star Game

By Charles Dunkley
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago, May 26.—The tenth All-star football game, which annually opens the Nation's gridiron season, will be played by the Washington Redskins, champions of the National League, and a squad of selected college headliners at Dyche Stadium, in suburban Evanston, on the night of August 25.

Dyche Stadium, with a standing room capacity of 50,000, is the home football field of Northwestern University.

Profits of the game will be donated to the Chicago Servicemen's Center, which weekly feeds and entertains 125,000 servicemen.

The site of the contest, it was announced tonight, was changed from Soldier Field, where last fall 101,000 spectators saw the Chicago Bears defeat the All-Stars, 21 to 0, to Dyche Stadium to restrict attendance, as far as possible, to fans in the Chicago area, in keeping with the wishes of the Office of Defense Transportation.

The net profits of last year's contest, which amounted to $153,945.92, were contributed to Army emergency relief and Navy relief. No other single sports event raised as much for war charity.

Although many of last year's collegiate stars are now in the service of their country, the all-star squad is expected to compare well with its predecessors. The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., sponsor of the game, is asking no blanket release of players in the service. However, several outstanding players in 1942 college football already have received permission from their commanding officers to participate.

For the first time there will be no "fan poll" to determine this year's starting line-up for the Collegians. Also, for the first time the squad will include undergraduate players. The coaching staff is to be appointed.

The All-Stars will assemble at Northwestern University, August 7, for three weeks of practice.

out of trouble in both the eighth and the ninth. He issued his only walk to pinch-hitter Hayes, with one out in the eighth and he was in a mess when pinch-hitter Vernon Stephens followed with a long single to right center that Case couldn't hold, moving a runner to third.

Whereupon Leonard knuckled down with his knuckler, lured Criscola into a pop-up and struck out Clift.

In the ninth with one out Leonard fanned Chartak but again the third strike eluded Early's mitt and Chartake reached first. That was all though. Mickey Vernon grabbed McQuinn's grounder for a force play and Leonard shoved a third strike past Ferrell that Ferrell didn't like one bit.

Early Wynn Hurls Tonight

Early Wynn, who checked in with a six-hit shutout job against the White Sox in his last start, moves back onto the mound tonight against the Browns in a second consecutive night game in the Stadium. He will have as his pitching opponent Fred Ostermueller, a left-hander who on occasion has bamboozled the Nats. While with the Red Sox, Ostermueller was usually effective against Washington.

Martz Suspended For Role in Fight

Edsel Martz, first string Eastern High catcher, has been suspended for tomorrow's Tech game by the Eastern High Athletic Board. The action was taken by the board as a result of Martz's action in starting a fight in the Wilson game Tuesday. Joe Artino will move behind the bat from right field with Bob Lamon returning to the lineup in the garden.

In Tuesday's Wilson-Eastern game Martz was the instigator of a fight in which players of both teams as well as spectators participated.

House Asked For National Baseball Day

Following the success of The Post's war bond baseball game, Congressman William J. Miller of Connecticut, on Tuesday introduced a resolution in the House of Representatives, recommending that June 26, anniversary of the birthday of Gen. Abner Doubleday, founder of the game, be designated as National Baseball Day.

His resolution read:

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the President of the United States be authorized and directed to issue a proclamation designating June 26, birthday of Gen. Abner Doubleday, who founded America's national game of baseball, as national baseball day, calling upon officials of the Government to display the flag of the United States on all Government buildings on that day, and inviting all organized and unorganized baseball clubs to play a baseball game on that day with admission to be free to purchasers of United States war bonds and war saving stamps."

Congressman Miller, a Republican from Norwich, Conn., was a member of the United States Air Forces during the last World War, loisng both legs in action.

Same Story, Jim Londos Wins Again

Ho, hum! Jim Londos disposed of another of the myriad contenders for his world wrestling championship last night, defeating grizzled Milo Steinborn with a backdrop after 27 minutes before some 1400 fans at Turner's Arena.

The champ was never in difficulty, although Steinborn employed all the wile and strength which have made him one of the best performers in the business. His pet maneuver, a rib-shattering bear hug, went for naught as Londos eluded the pressure repeatedly.

In the semiwindup Danno O'Mahoney, one of the few grapplers to upset Londos in the past decade, worked to a draw with George Macricostas.

Babe Sharkey and Dick Lever, a pair of barroom brawlers, waged one of the most spectacular battles of the evening for 15 minutes. At that point, Referee Tiny Bouque called the whole thing off, disqualifying both men. The reason for this action was that he was having trouble keeping them in the ring. So anxious were they to please the gallery that they insisted upon doing the bulk of their business practically in the laps of the ringsiders.

Lanky Abe Yourist and the Red Czar pulled an upset in the two-man team match, retiring Johnny (Tripod) Long and John Melas on two successive falls. This was an odd twist of the script, which usually calls for the heroes to take the first fall, lose the second and then come up with something miraculous in the final fall. Maybe the lads had to catch an early train last night.

Dr. Joe Bonik and Eddie King drew in the opener.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Health Plan Afoot For Federal Workers

A health program for Federal employes is being mapped out and Congress soon will be asked to indorse it. In fact, much of the agitation for a medical-care program to cover Federal workers here is coming from members of Congress. Plans to have Federal Security finance the program have been abandoned, however. . . . District Traffic Director Van Duzer yesterday said he was working on a plan to further stagger the hours of Federal employes when the gasoline pinch gets tighter and more private cars are laid up . . . Census employes at Suitland are already on a staggered system—7:30 to 9 starting hours—and their hours can't be altered further. Many Census employes who were late or absent Tuesday because of transportation troubles reported to work on time yesterday.

A dictionary of red tape language, as proposed here the other day, is catching on. Many Federal employes have sent in their definitions of meaningless verbiage used so frequently in Government. Here are a few contributions:

"We will explore the problem" (means) we don't know what the situation is and if we did know we wouldn't know what to do about it.

"Further information and substantiating documents are requested"—we've lost the stuff so send it in again.

"Prepare an answer"—you do the work and I'll take the credit.

"For remarks and recommendation"—It's got me stumped, you sweat for awhile.

"Liaison officers"—people who talk and listen well but who can't make a definite statement. (One dictionary meaning is much better.)

"A study is being made"—haven't done a thing about it yet.

"Matter is under consideration"—if I can find the stuff I'll look it over.

"Government expert"—a newcomer we haven't had a chance to work on.

If you have better definitions, send the mto this column. We'd like to have them.

Memorial Service Sunday

More than 180 Federal employes are dead and missing in the war, divided about equally between civilians and members of the armed forces. A number of civilian employes were killed in the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor. Their memories will be honored at the first annual Federal employes memorial service to be held in the Sylvian Theater on the Monument Grounds at 4 p. m. Sunday. Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the Manpower Commission, will preside. A memorial prayer will be offered by Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the Senate. Music will be furnished by the Navy Band and the Agriculture Chorus. Services will be held in the Departmental Auditorium in case of rain. Admission is free and Federal employes are urged to attend.

Office of War Information Director Elmer Davis has given up his ideas of resigning and what's more he's going to fight back at his critics . . . All streetcar travel on Wisconsin Avenue may be stopped at Friendship and riders made to take buses when the streetcar loop is finished at that point. The idea of making Arlington and Fairfax bus riders get off at Rosslyn and take the streetcars into Washington has again been abandoned. A check shows the streetcars couldn't handle the rush-hour traffic. It might be done during slack periods to save gas . . . United Federal Workers is again complaining about discriminating against Negroes in the Census Bureau.

The Ramspeck Civil Service Investigating Committee yesterday was told that the Budget Bureau made no effort to fit national policy. However, F. J. Bailey, assistant director, pointed out that of the bureau's 1577 recommendations on bills passed by Congress during the present session the President had accepted 1576 of them. The lone exception, he said, was the bonus bill for postal employes, for which the bureau recommended a veto. Bailey, a veteran of 42 years in Government, said he was constantly amazed at the tremendous amount of detail work the President does. He surmised that the President liked to handle Government matters.

BEW employes who want to work an extra hour Monday in honor of their dead are asked to make arrangements with their supervisors . . . Many employes say they'll put in the extra hour to give a pint of blood to the Red Cross . . . The Army denies reports that it plans to alter its new building at Twenty-first Street and Virginia Avenue to provide a large auditorium . . . Chairman Burch of the House Postoffice Committee is complaining bitterly over the personnel cuts the Postoffice Department has been ordered to make by the Budget Bureau.

Hankin View Of Flanagan Retained

PUC Member Denies Disavowing 'Desire To Prevent' Choice Of Commissioner

By Roger Young
Post Staff Writer

Public Utilities Commission member Gregory Hankin last night denied a report in a late afternoon newspaper that he had "disavowed any desire to prevent reappointment of James H. Flanagan to the PUC."

Hankin, who stated that his appeal to Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes to bring the long standing controversy between himself and Chairman Flanagan to the President's attention just before the time when Flanagan's reappointment will be considered was "just a chronological coincidence," said that he had told reporters yesterday:

"The reappointment of Mr. Flanagan isn't anything of my concern. The matter is up to the President and I am not expressing any opinion one way or the other."

May Reach President

A spokesman for Byrnes said last night that the stabilization dircetor had not had an opportunity to present Hankin's complaint to the President, but that his letter would be transmitted to one of the Whie House secrearies who "can bring it to Mr. Roosevelt's attention if he sees fit."

Although one District official expressed a belief that Hankin desired to have the President appoint someone other than Flanagan when the chairman's term expires June 30, Hankin said that his hope in addressing Byrnes was that the White House would get the "commission to act as a commission and not as individuals."

"I appealed to the President because it is high time that something be done about the Public Utilities Commsson," he contnued. "When reporters asked me about Mr. Flanagan's reappointment I told them that I didn't want them to say anything, yes or no, about that. I did not disavow anything."

Flareup In Pepco Case

The latest flare-up between Hankin and Flanagan, climaxing over a year of continuous dissention, came to light Tuesday in a dissenting opinion Hankin wrote to the PUC majority decision not to reconsider its recent rate decrease order for Potomac Electric Power Co. consumers.

Hankin complained in this opinion of Flanagan's not having shown him correspondence that had passed between Flanagan and Byrnes. He wrote a similar complaint to Byrnes, concluding with the request that this be brought to the President's attention.

Major Dickson Of Marines Talks To Realty Board

Individual prestige and glory was forgot by soldiers, sailors, Marines and their officers to win the battle of Guadalcanal, Maj. Donald Dickson of the Marine Corps, told more than 175 members of the Washington Real Estate Board last night.

He spoke as a staff officer and adjutant who took part in the initial landing of a Marine Corps unit to spend 109 days on Guadalcanal Island before returning several months ago to duty in the States.

Close collaboration between the services for the one purpose of exterminating the Japs brought victory, he said. Living conditions, he added, were discomforting but not decisive factors in the fight.

Presiding, Claud Livingston, sr., president of the board, reviewed war activities of its members. Deena Clark, a Stage Door Canteen hostess, explained work of that organization, and "Target for Tonight," official sound film account of an air raid by the bomber command of the R. A. F., was shown.

Store's Closing Sought by OPA In Potato Case

By Linton Burkett
Post Staff Writer

The Virginia and Arlington OPA will ask a six months suspension of the license of the Country Garden Market stores in Arlington and Alexandria at a hearing to be given to Samuel Shanker, operator of the stores, on June 15, at the Arlington County Courthouse, it was revealed yesterday.

Shanker, who also is under investigation for the alleged sale of potatoes at 12½ cents a pound, will be charged with violating OPA regulations in the sale of meat, cheese and fish, an OPA spokesman said.

The dealer was served with notice of the hearing yesterday by OPA investigators who also were taking depositions from purchasers of the potatoes allegedly offered for sale in the early part of May.

At the same time investigators said they expected to determine where Shanker had bought the potatoes, which is reported to have ben from a District wholesaler or dealer.

At the time that news articles on sale of the potatoes were printed, Shanker is reported to have said that he bought them from a legitimate dealer in Washington.

District OPA officials said later they could not find any evidence the spuds had been obtained in this city.

The OPA let it be known yesterday they were asking for a minimum suspension of six months on Shanker's license. The case will be heard by an adminisirator who has not yet been named, it was said.

At the time the potatoes were put on sale, May 7 or 8, the OPA spokesman said, a number of complaints had been received from customers who said they had been forced to pay a price of 12½ cents a pound. All of these, together with other data were forwarded to Richmond, Va., for State OPA action.

D. C. Auxiliary Fireman Need Put at 2000

The District desperately needs at least 2000 auxiliary firemen, Percival J. Ableman told the Federation of Citizens Associations' police and fire protection committee last night reporting on his recent investigations.

The force now numbers about 950, a reflection on National OCD's ignoring of its importance although in England fire workers are more solicited than wardens, he said.

He was directed by the committee to confer with District OCD Director Herbert C. Whitehurst on means of increasing fire auxiliaries and rescue forces in the District and report to the Federation at its next meeting.

In addition, he was instructed to tell the Federation that in conferring with Captain Whitehurst, the committee found him cooperative in correcting problems outlined in the committee's original report on OCD inadequacies and anxious to make other corrections but unable to do so because these matters are governed by national OCD. If Captain Whitehurst did not follow national orders, the District would be denied equipment from national OCD.

It was announced that Captain Whitehurst has advised that in the future he will deal directly with defense committees and lean heavily on them. C. H. Newell said that this should boost local civilian defense morale.

Announcement was made also that couplings for trailer pumps have been obtained and that WPB has allowed reducer units necessary to the pumps to be released for use on 45 of the 69 pumps owned. These Temporary cessation of the rubber collection drive, due to large stock piles of the scrap in reserve now, was announced yesterday by James E. Colliflower, chairman of the District Salvage Committee yesterday.

Management Study Feud Flares Openly

Committee Refuses Responsibility for Voluminous Views Of Chairman Jurans

A feud which had been gathering momentum for three weeks flared into the open yesterday when a speaker before the Better Management in Wartime Conference gave his ideas on what should go into a management policy for the Federal Government—but not until the committee of which he was chairman—and for which he was supposed to have reported—went on record as claiming none of it.

The committee had been specially delegated to draw up a plan for a Government management statement for the two-day conference of the Society for the Advancement of Management at the Washington Hotel. Its chairman was to have presented it.

But chairman and committee could not agree. So Assistant Lend-Lease Administrator Joseph M. Juran, the chairman, presented a 16-page typewritten report detailing ten suggestions for making Government management run more smoothly—but they were all Juran's own suggestions and not the committee's.

Clearly Understood

"In fact, before Juran took the floor the conference chairman, Lyman Moore, assistant administrator of the National Housing Agency, explained publicly that the speaker was speaking for himself and definitely was not reporting for his ten-man committee as had been the original plan.

Juran's committee had asked to be relieved of responsibility for the report in a letter to President James F. Grady of the Washington Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management, which sponsored the conference, a committee member said.

In a statement to the Post last night, "as an individual member of the committee," Maj. John C. Shover, charged that "after many hours with committee member representatives the chairman (Juran) found himself unable or unwilling to meet the view of a majority of the committee."

Juran's paper failed to take into account what has already been done to apply scientific management in the Federal Government, Shover asserted.

"This puts us in the role of not making any contribution and is hard on the society," Shover told The Post. In one draft of the paper which Juran submitted to the committee, Shover said, "here recommended a course of action which was tantamount to a policy of inflation.

Neither Is Bound

Due to the committee's "inability to agree," Juran said last night, "I gave the paper just as if there had been no committtee in the first place. I dod't bind them and they don't bind me."

So he changed the title of his talk from "A Suggested Statement" to "Some Essential Elements of a Management Policy for the Government," he said.

Both sides agree that three weeks just wasn't enough time to draw up the sort of thing they all had in mind, and according to Shover it's up to the chapter's new officers, who will be elected within several weeks, whether they'll go on with the project.

Members of the management policy committee include Wallace Clark, Morris L. Cooke, John M. Carmody, Cyril Upham, Marshall E. Dimock, John G. Hader, R. R. Zimmerman, Major Shover, Lowell H. Hattery and Milton Hygh.

Cause of Collisions

No tempers flared, however, and all seemed in peaceful agreement on the need for some kind of a management policy statement which was discussed by Undersecretary of Commerce Wayne Chatfield-Taylor before Juran took over.

Most of the "headlong collisions" in the Government's management of the war," the Undersecretary asserted, can be traced to a failure to include old and experienced Government administrators in the important new wartime agencies.

The conference was scheduled to end with a closed dinner meeting last night at the Washington Hotel.

Bill Would Curb D. C. Taxi License Transfer Racket

A new bill to break up racketeering in the transfer of taxicab licenses in the District was introduced by District Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech at a hearing conducted yesterday by Senator C. Douglass Buck (Democrat) of Delaware.

Keech's bill, somewhat milder than a similar one proposed a few weeks ago by Chairman Pat McCarran of the Senate District Committee, would make it unlawful to assign or transfer licenses for more than the prorated cost of the unexpired term, or to pay directly or indirectly more than such cost. McCarran's bill, upon which the hearing was called, would have made it illegal after March 1, 1944, to transfer any taxi license, and unlawful until that time to charge more than $25 for such transfer.

There were indications that Keech's bill which was drawn up at McCarran's request, would be accepted by the District Committee.

The strongest opposiiton to Keech's proposal came from Harry Davis, Diamond Cab president, who denied that any sort of racket existed, claiming that the only persons who could benefit by license transfer are those who are forced to go out of the presently thriving cab business, mostly to go into the Army.

"It is not fair to the industry to misinform the press of a black market in cab licenses," Davis said.

Hack Inspector James Harrington, however, said that many persons who obviously got taxis only for the tire and gas privileges—such as those whose cabs were noted to park eight hours a day in front of Federal buildings—had sold out since the OPA cab freeze. He cited the case of a 1939 Plymouth with a Blue Book value of $125 selling for $500.

Public Utilities Commission Chairman James H. Flanagan testified that the PUC had known the racket existed for some time, but had not been able to find proof until after the OPA last September froze the number of cab licenses allowed in the District to some 5000. From April 1, 1942, to March 31, 1943—the cab license year—1846 licenses were transferred, of which 1489 were transferred after September 1.

Edwin A. Glenn, cab union official, stated that the proposed bill was unnecessary since the recent cab gas allowance cut from 11½ to 5 gallons a day had made the licenses practically worthless. Glenn also stated that of the 5000 cabs operated in Washington, at least 3000 were part-time operations by Government employes.

Dr. E. R. James Law Librarian Of Congress

Dr. Eldon R. James, formerly Harvard Law School librarian, has accepted appointment as law librarian of the Library of Congress to succeed the late Dr. John T. Vance, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. James resigned from the Harvard faculty in June 1942 and has more recently been a staff attorney of the War Department Transportation Corps' legal division.

Receiving his LL. B. from the University of Cincinnati Law School in 1899, he practiced law for 12 years and then joined the law faculty at his alma mater. He taught law also at the University of Wisconsin, the University of Minnesota, and the University of Missouri.

Adviser in foreign affairs to the Siamese government and a judge of the Supreme Court of Siam from 1918 to 1924, he was appointed professor of law and librarian at the Harvard Law School on returning to the United States at the end of that service. The library doubled its collections under his direction.

At the same time Dr. James helped develop the Index to Legal Periodicals and served as editor from 1926 to 1942. He was president of the American Association of Law Libraries, 1933-34.

More Workers To Give Extra Hour Monday

Plans to observe Memorial Day on Monday, May 31, by voluntarily giving the United States Government an extra hour of work without pay won fresh adherents among Federal employes yesterday, as several additional agencies indicated that arrangements to put the proposal into effect were under way.

All 6500 employes of the Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service will contribute the added hour of work in memory of America's war dead, and department heads for OWI's 3500 workers throughout the country have agreed to a similar plan for their staffs, it was learned.

WPB, where the idea originated with seven employes on May 10, was still considering the proposal, also being studied by department heads for the Justice Department's 5000 workers and by the Bureau of the Budget for its staff of 550.

Personnel heads at the Department of Commerce had come to no decision on whether or not its 12,000 employes should join the Memorial Day work-hour plan, but at the Civil Service Commission memoranda have already gone out to some 3800 staff members for further consideration of the proposal.

City News in Brief

The Commissioners gave this responsibility—that of providing relief through Federal funds for persons "temporarily deprived of financial resources by enemy action"—to Huff upon the recommendation of Civilian Defense Director H. C. Whitehurst.

Abortion Case Postponed

Dr. Edward Comstock Wilson, 63, of 127 B Street Southeast, who is charged with performing an abortion on a 21-year-old Government girl, had his case continued in Municipal Court yesterday to June 9.

The girl, who was admitted to Gallinger Hospital Tuesday, told police that she paid Dr. Wilson $25 for performing the illegal operation. He is at liberty on a $2500 bond.

Held in Attack

A 51-year-old chemist was held at the Tenth Precinct station last night without charge in connection with a criminal attack on a 5-year-old girl.

Missing from her home for three hours Tuesday night, the child was found by police about 12:30 a. m. yesterday asleep on a day bed on a rear porch of the suspect's home. The man was arrested at the house, but refused to make a statement. Policewomen rushed the child to Gallinger Hospital where physicians found evidence of an assault.

Meeting Postponed

The meeting of the Arlington County Democratic Executive Committee, scheduled for tomorrow night, has been postponed until further notice, due to the present gas situation, it was announced yesterday.

Spuds, Beef Reappear in D. C. Stores

Chain Groceries, Also Restaurants, Expected to Have 'Precious' Potatoes

With the arrival of five carloads of new potatoes in the city yesterday and the arrival of about 15 per cent more beef than was received last week, Washington's hitherto distressing food picture took on a brighter hue.

Packing housess said that for two weeks previously they had receive dshipments as low as 25 per cent of their normal needs.

During this week the shipments have been 40 per cent of normal, with packers not expecting them at any time in the near future to go higher than 60 per cent of normal.

In addition there is a fair stock of pork in the city and about 50 per cent of the normal supply of hams.

Two carloads of the new potatoes went to wholesalers and are expected to find their way to restaurant tables, while chain stores are reported to have received the other three cars, which would indicate there will be some available for the average housewife.

On other food fronts dealers reported plenty of lettuce, beans, greens and tomatoes, with the price of tomatoes taking a drop as the result.

Still scarce, however, were onions, and prospects of any easing of this situation were dim for at least two more weeks, it was reported.

Grocer Draws $100

The first Washington grocer to be tried for selling potatoes above ceiling prices was fined $100 with an alternative of 90 days in jail yesterday by Judge George D. Neilson of Municipal Court after John L. Laskey, OPA attorney, had asked that leniency be shown the grocer because "he did not gouge the public with his prices," and because the "situation was rather muddled but is getting somewhat clearer."

Louis E. Grossman, operator of a grocery store at 700 E Street Northeast, pleaded guilty to charges that he sold potatoes for 15 cents a pound when the ceiling was 9 cents at most.

Judge Neilson, declaring that such violations "can not be tolerated in these times," told Grossman that if Laskey had not pled for him he would have imposed a fine five times that given. "I am going to cooperate 100 per cent with the OPA," said Neilson. "This blackmarket must be wiped out."

41 Employes Of Hecht's Get Service Pins

More than 300 employes of the Hecht Co., all members of the "Ten-to-Fifty Year Club," gathered at the Statler Hotel last night for their annual banquet and 41 of them received pins for their years of service with the company.

QUIRK

Principal award went to George M. Quirk, vice president and store manager, who received a diamond pin for his 30 years tenure. The pin was presented by Charles B. Dulcan and Charles S. Nix, officers of the company.

Receiving ruby-studded pins for 20 years association with the firm were Mrs. Florence Austin, Mrs. Irene Crummitt, Michael D'Anna and Mrs. St. John Treuleben. Thirty-five employes received 10-year service pins.

Speakers were Charles S. Nix, president of the club, Bert M. Sarazan, toastmaster, and Mr. Dulcan. The banquet and meeting were followed by a dance and floor show.

Gifts of Flowers Urged for Veterans

A glimpse of the barren wards at Walter Red Hospital convinced Mrs. Jacob J. Johnson of Bethesda, wife of a retired Army general, that Washingtonians who plan to decorate graves with flowers on Memorial Day might well share those flowers with living veterans of this war.

The District and Montgomery County Red Cross Chapters cheered the plan and expressed their eagerness to assist, but a formidable obstacle in the form of the Office of Defense Transportation has intervened. Deliveries of flowers by automobile are halted until the gasoline situation is alleviated—and Red Cross cars, like the rest of the East Coast, are low on fuel anyway.

Mrs. Johnson's suggestion, therefore, is that Red Cross Gray Ladies and nurses' aides who go regularly to military hospitals could serve as agents in their own neighborhoods to transport flowers if Washington residents would be willing to share their supply.

If your office threatens to be a temporary oven, your best clothes bet is a cool, stand-offish fabric like shantung. This is one that holds up sitting down, and puts up a decent fight when it comes to creases. The dress has a fly-front: not a fake, but one that opens up all the way so you won't have to get into a tizzy putting it on. The flared skirt has enough width to prevent the innocent bystander from getting an intimate glimpse of your knees if you acquire a seat on a bus. You can carry eyeglasses, pencils, etc., in the hip pockets . . . an advantage, in our estimation, as we are forever mislaying those items. Generally speaking the tailoring is pretty slick, too.

Rayon shantung in black, brown, or pine green with white dots. Sizes 14 to 20. $6.00 and it's yours.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It startles the truthful parent to discover with what ease her 3-year-old can embroider a tale, or with what convincingness she can look her right in the eye and assert positively that she did not take any cake—though the telltale marks of her small fingers are on the frosting.

The pattern of behavoir called the truth is a slow developing one. Children lie before they either know or will speak the truth. Lies are useful and until conscience is developed and truth is more satisfying than a lie, the child will use them.

Fanciful tales are called lies, but they are merely the imagination running riot. Since the possession of imagination is an asset to any one, we should hesitate before we label a "tall tale" a lie and throttle the child's inventiveness.

Label it what it is—a good story—and enjoy it for that. But make it plain that not for a moment do we—or may the child—confuse it with reality.

These stories are fun to tell and interesting to hear. But the truth is something else and one must make a distinction between the two. Children make that distinction if we show them the way, meanwhile, they have an opportunity to stretch their imaginations even while they must whittle the truth down to its rightful proportions.

So be prepared for exaggerations from the child who is having his first intoxicating glimpse of a thrilling world. Listen and comment and put them where they belong in the realm of fiction.

You should expect those lies which spring to the child's lips in response to our sensed disapproval. Cut down the child's opportunity to hide behind a lie by offering him no chance to use them.

"I see you broke the flower pot. Where did you put the pieces?" If we aren't too threatening, the truth will out, how it got broke, where is the incriminating evidence and how the child feels about it.

One will get only a lie if the parent faces the already apprehensive child with the bald question, "Did you break the flower pot?" A lie is always the response, in the forlorn hope that the moment of reckoning may be avoided.

Knowing children will lie to escape punishment, to make themselves superior (when in truth they are suffering from inferiority) to glos over anything of which they are ashamed we must not expect the impossible.

It takes years and a personal philosophy to give individuals the courage to tell the truth. We have to be understanding of the difficulties of truth-telling, even as we recognize and correct the mistakes the child makes in his road to that goal.

Our leaflet, "Lying, Its Cause and Correction," may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Cheese Is Meat Substitute

How do you spend your red stamps, all on high point meats, cooking fats and butter, or some of them on yellow cheese? Cheese furnishes more to the diet than butter and it is good nutrition to allocate two points a week for cheese for each member of the family. When you cannot have meat for the main meal of the day, serve fish or an egg or cheese dish, or fowl or beans, to insure a good quality protein. You must have one of these as a source of protein or the day's menu will be inadequate. When cheese is used for protein, as with macaroni and cheese, use a full cup.

RATION POINTS

USED WASHING MACHINES can no longer be sold at excessive prices. Office of Price Administration has placed ceiling prices on them, whether sold by dealers, auctioneers or individual owners. Machines guaranteed for 12 months or more have ceilings of from $34.75 to $147.50; those guaranteed for at least six months may not sell for more than from $29.75 to $142.50; those sold without guarantee have maximum prices of $10 to $105.

Wool Garments Require Special Care

Woolens can easily be ruined by improper pressing. The Bureau of Home Economics, Agricultural Research Administration, makes these valuable suggestions:

Wools sold as washable, such as challies, may be ironed like other laundered clothing . . . but always with a warm iron—never a hot one—and on the wrong side.

For most wools, steam pressing is the only way to take out wrinkles, smooth the surface and sharpen creases. If you haven't a steam iron, use an ordinary iron and two clean press cloths, one of wool and one of firm cotton cloth. Or, simpler yet, use one of the new treated press cloths and follow directions on the package.

Steam-press on the wrong side if wool is likely to shine from pressing, or if the weave has any raised pattern. Right-side pressing may be best if wool is thick. Try a little place and see which way gives the nicest press.

Be sure to leave a little moisture in, or the wool will look hard and lifeless.

Women's Club News

By Genevieve Reynolds

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Yes, the gas famine is upsetting club schedules. But for the most part the members seem to be made of sturdy stuff, for they walk, board street cars or buses. A few are bringing out their bicycles and pedaling to and from meetings.

Still there seem to be two theories of thought on the matter. Many clubs feel their activities must go on—vital to defense or probably to the morale of members. A few think it unpatriotic to crowd public conveyances during the present gas shortage and are postponing events. Two cancellations reached my desk this morning. No doubt there will be others dribbling in. The D. C. League of Republican Women has called off its annual benefit, garden and card party scheduled to take place at the home of Mrs. William S. Corby, 9 Chevy Chase Circle, June 1.

Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, league president, pointed out that the annual party had been planned before the gas shortage in Washington reached a critical stage.

Commenting on the matter, she said: "I believe it the patriotic thing for us to cancel this party in order to relieve public transportation which already is overburdened."

Mrs. Gann said members could consider it a phantom party and send in contributions. The decision to cancel the party was reached at a special meeting of the league's entertainment committee yesterday.

Another Postponement

Ladies of the Georgetown University Hospital board have decided to turn the annual card party and dance into a silent or phantom one too. Instead they have sent out letters to a vast number of friends and patrons asking them to contribute the usual fee to help carry on work of the hospital. Mrs. Joseph L. B. Murray was appointed chairman of the letter committee. Mrs. Wallace Yater is president of the organization.

Bits of This and That . . .

Mrs. Marie Hollinsworth, regent, is tea hostess at final meeting of Elizabeth Jackson Chapter D. A. R., tomorrow, 3 p. m. at the Chapter House. . . . Due to arrive in Washington soon is energetic Sally Goodsteen, head of the MIGRANT CHILDREN'S COUNCIL in Cleveland, Ohio. While in town she will be the guest of Miss Amy Good, 115 Concord Avenue. An enthusiastic worker among migrants or so-called "Okies," she is ready with plenty of new information on their status. Moreover, if you are interested in the subject and need a speaker next week or ten days, dial National 1173. . . . D. C. FIRECRACKER COOTIETTE CLUB, NO. 8—all members of the club must belong to the Ladies Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars—initiated a large group of candidates recently. Formed, October 19, 1940, the club has for its aim the aiding of T. N. T. Pup Tent of the Cooties in the District. Other functions of the organization are to promote fraternal, social reunions among the members and to emphasize allegiance to the U. S. A. Government. Steve Michka, the seam squirrel of T. N. T., initiated the new charter of the club.

P. E. O. Sisterhood

Mrs. Carl T. Curtis, wife of Representative Curtis of Nebraska, was hostess to members and guests of Chapter B, P. E. O., at a tea held Tuesday afternoon at the Congressional Club.

Mrs. Curtis had assisting her Mrs. William E. Andrews, Mrs. Eliamae Colvin Thomas, and Mrs. Willa B. Hammond.

Others assisting were officers of the chapter, Mrs. Robert H. Young, president; Mrs. J. E. Phillips, vice president; Mrs. Hiram B. Jones, recording secretary; Mrs. W. B. Cafky, treasurer, Mrs. Warner W. Stockberger, chaplain, and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, guard.

The tea, which followed the regular meeting of the chapter, was preceded by a program of music given by Mrs. Helen B. Turley, contralto, accompanied by Mrs. Beatrice Voight, and a talk on "Pan American Pattern," by Miss Irene A. Wright, an officer in the Department of State, Division of Cultural Relations.

Miss Wright, who gave the final talk on the "Latin-American" study program which Chapter B has had for the topic of its year's work, recommended they make up their minds what foreign policy they wish the U. S. to adopt at the end of the war, and then become articulate in their convictions concerning that policy, "upon which," Miss Wright said, "hang the issues of peace and war, of life and death for individual Americans and this nation."

Describing the Pan American pattern for international cooperation as markedly different from systems built upon the principle of universal dominion or of the balance of power, Miss Wright referred to Winston Churchill's suggestion that global association for collective security take the shape of regional councils in Europe and Asia. "We of the Americas have already created a regional understanding in the New World," Miss Wright continued. "The inter-American system as expressed in the Pan American Union is simple, flexible, workable, requires no blanket surrender of sovereignty, affords opportunity for frequent consultation and results in gradual formation of a body of pertinent international law. In effect, it functions as a continuing peace conference which meets before, not after, hostilities.

Special guests of honor attending the tea were several officers of the District of Columbia Chapter of the P. E. O. Sisterhood, Miss Jane Mackay Anderson, president; Mrs. Ward M. Buckles, first vice president; Miss Jessie O. Elting, second vice president, and Mrs. R. E. Brewster, treasurer; also Mrs. Robert M. Ferguson and Mrs. M. H. Fohrman, past State presidents.

World Problems

All sections of the globe were represented when the Executive Council of the World's Y. W. C. A. convened yesterday for a three-day session in the Garden House of the Dodge Hotel.

Preceding the conference resident members of the World's Y. W. C. A. commission on postwar reconstruction met Monday and Tuesday in the rooms of the Washington Federation of Churche sto thresh olt the problem of the post-war era.

Subjects of special consideration will be reports on the war emergency services of the World Y. W. C. A., world movement, effect of war on life of women and postfar reconstruction. One of the highlights will be a report by Miss Ruth F. Woodsmall, general secretary, who returned recently from a visit to England, Sweden and Algeria.

It doesn't take high-priced and high-point-value coupons to make the most nutritious meat dishes. Ranking low in points is nutritious liver. When properly cooked it has great appetite appeal. A liver loaf will make 1½ pounds of meat go a long way. Let's plan it in a day's menu.

Remember when planning the day's menus that nutrition is knocked out unless there is appetite. Appetite is only aroused by meals with taste appeal and tempting appearance. Serve well-cooked meals in the most attractive way possible. Following are suggestions for "three squares."

Breakfast Menu

Orange juice.
Cereal With Milk.
French Toast, Jelly.
Coffee. Milk.

Luncheon Menu

Cheese Omelet.
Mixed Green Salad.
Honey Nut Biscuits.
Fresh Fruit. Tea.

Liver Loaf, Fried Onions.
Candied Carrots.
Cabbage Salad.
Deep-Dish Apple Pie. Tea.

Honey nut biscuits require no sugar. They require little effort, too, to achieve a delicious hot bread. Try this recipe:

HONEY NUT BISCUITS

Mix 1/3 cup chopped nuts with 1/3 cup honey and 2 tablespoons melted fat. Place in muffin pans. Sift together 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder and 1 tablespoon salt. Cut in 4 tablespoons fat. Stir in ¾ cup milk. Drop the dough into muffin pans. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees, for 12 to 15 minutes. Turn out while hot. Makes 10 biscuits.

To make the following liver loaf will require 9 points for the pound and half of meat. This is the recipe for making the loaf:

LIVER LOAF

Let 1½ pounds of beef liver stand in boiling water for 5 minutes. Drain and then chop. Mix together the liver, 1½ cups dry bread crumbs, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons minced onion and 3 tablespoons minced parsley. Shape into loaf. Place in baking dish. Brush top with melted fat. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, about one hour. Baste occasionally.

Liver loaf will furnish good nutrition as well as a meat dish that is patrician in flavor. Onions and liver are boon companions, so fry the onions and place a border of them around the meat loaf.

Recipe for making the liver loaf is given on this page

Mary Haworth's Mail

Chronic Heavy Drinker Has Become Insufferably Arrogant Toward Family Since Getting Desk Job With Coast Guard; Uniform Has Gone to His Head

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Please help a woman who is on the verge of self-destruction. I am married to an habitual drunkard. He has a desk job in the Coast Guard, and since he was put in uniform he is more unbearable than before. As if drinking wasn't bad enough, he now thinks the women are crazy about him. I wouldn't live with him except for the children,—a girl of 20 and a boy of 17. They are two of the finest youngsters any parent could want; but they are as miserable as I am. They always plead with me not to answer my husband when he starts abusing me; but it is pretty hard to take so much.

He is constantly reminding us that he gives us a home, although both the children work for the Government and have to hand their indorsed pay checks over to him every pay day; and then ask him for every nickel they need. He spends $10 to $15 a week on liquor and even takes some every morning before going to work. We came here two years ago, just so he could get an easier job; and my children had to leave their friends just to satisfy him.

My boy is now in bed very sick; and with the strain of this constant abuse the poor kid is a nervous wreck. My husband demands that I lay out his clean clothes every morning, as well as his pajamas at night; and even expects me to turn back the bed covers for him. I work hard to keep a nice home, and wash and iron twice a week because we don't have enough clothes to last a week. Since coming to Washington, I have never been inside a movie, have never seen any of this beautiful city; and have only been downtown twice.

I know you will think I am a fool; but I hate to break up the home because of the children. If my boy is called to serve his country,—and I say "if" because he isn't well,—I am going to encourage my daughter to join some branch of the service and then I will have no reason to maintain a home. I am in my middle forties and have been married 21 years. This abuse just started since we came here to live; and has increased since my husband now considers himself a "Beau Brummel." I wish he would leave, but of course he realizes he has it too soft. Please advise me. H. B. L.

Instead of Growing, Man's Just Swelling

DEAR H. B. L.: This is no time for you to "go to pieces," in furious resentment of your husband's damn-fool behavior. The fact that he is giving a crackpot performance in uniform,—crazy drunk alike on liquor and an exaggerated sense of his own importance,—makes it all the more imperative for your to keep your wits about you and plan the permanent overthrow of this Household Hitler, in terms of strongly patient, carefully calculated waiting for the proper hour of insurrection to strike.

Since your son and daughter have the ability to be self-supporting, and would not be even nominally dependent on "the old man" now, were it not for his despicable policy of misusing his parental advantage to filch their uncashed pay checks to spend as he pleases, while keeping them on dole,—there is really no basic reason why you should continue much longer setting them the sorry example of moodily kow-towing to him. Indeed, the only excuse I can see for playing "a delaying action" is your son's current illness. If he were able to be up and around and back on the job, I would advise you to stage a "walk-out" now. That's the only kind of "back talk" that would get a reasonable hearing from your husband,—whose ballooning self-conceit since taking a desk job in Washington reminds me, incidentally, of one wit's comment about the effects of life in the Capital on newcomers. He said: "It causes some to grow and others to swell." Your husband's poisoned pup reaction is a case in point.

Don't Waste Vital Energies in Argument

And speaking of "back talk," I believe that out of protective concern for your children's pitiful plight—defenselessly caught, as they are, in the hellish crossfire of angry quarreling between Pa and Ma,—I believe you should respond to their pleading, "Not to answer him back when he starts abusing you." Granted that it may be "pretty hard to take so much" from that contemptible source, and not give him back a piece of your tongue,—I think, in view of your son's illness and need of all possible quiet, that you should heroically keep silence; remembering, in doing so, that, "Silence is the unbearable retort." More of withering indictment, of devastating scorn and soul-shaking reproach can be conveyed by "chin-up" silence than by any amount of defiant harangue.

By employing silence as a defensive tactic in this emergency you will serve a doubly restful purpose—not only sparing wear-and-tear on your children's nerves, but conserving your own vital energies as well. Talk, any kind of talk, but particularly agitated talk, is probably the most physically exhausting universal habit of man,—a fact which any mental hygienist will corroborate. Strength of every kind,—of will and purpose, of body and nerve,—gathers force in "self-possessed" silence; and I cannot think of a greater all-around service you could render your harried children, in the circumstance, than to give them both benefit and infectious example of philosophic silence, directed at Pappy's tantrums.

Browbeating Behavior Shows Guilty Conscience

However, in giving your husband "the silent treatment," during the remaining time you must fend against him at close range, don't droop around in the children's presence like a broken spirit. Let it be understood by them that this is a "positive" technique you have adopted; a kind of boxing-ring proposition of "rolling with the punches," while you bide your time, to deal the knockout blow. Now, for one last suggestion: if you have been chiding your husband about his ladies' man cavortings, drop the subject. Much of his browbeating behavior of late undoubtedly is a "cover-up" for a guilty conscience; and the more you press the sore spot, the more violently will he react. If he is intent on making various kinds of a fool of himself, you can't stop him by "jawing;"—wherefore I propose that you make the situation as easy as possible on yourself, by ironically indicating that he is welcome to as much rope as he wants. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

A Nice New House

Some women are thinking of the world of tomorrow as a bright new Paradise of gadgets. Some are thinking of it as a peaceful return to the good old days of dependable maids, simplified shopping and abundance of nylon stockings. But many, including most of the Nation's feminine leaders, are thinking of it as a chance for a new start toward improving human beings and human relationships.

This last named group of women is being heard from increasingly. Its members are writing, speaking, studying and planning about tomorrow's problems. Undismayed by scoffers who call them visionaries or Communists, they are keeping up their clamor for a better organized and planned world.

What are they saying? Have they gotten beyond the stage of abstract phrases and altruistic dreams? Do they stand together on any big essentials?

Women's Ideas Of New World

Generally speaking they are not talking so much about "universal brotherhood" as the definite ways of expressing that brotherhood at home. Their interest centers largely in the social phases of tomorrow's world. The making and keeping of the peace they recognize as a joint problem of men and women everywhere and one that calls for international cooperation They recognize of course this must come first. But what of their special responsibility as women in the future?

Some enlightening answers to this have been provided in a series of 30 articles in The Christian Science Monitor on "Women and the World We Want." Among the needs of tomorrow that the women contributing to this series emphasize are:

More economic and social security for the family.

The rights of all children to better health and education (not dependent on papa's pocketbook).

Fair play for women wage earners.

Better housing and better town planning, with more reference to children's needs.

More attention to the problem child and the prevention of crime.

Enlarged social service by the school and the church and the community generally.

More international cooperation between women's groups.

More noblesse oblige on the part of women homemakers to help improve their communities.

Women's Ideas Called 'Visions'

"Utopian," a self-styled "realist" might call such a program. But many of women's projects that have come to pass have been called "visions," from those of Joan of Arc down to the housewife's first-broached suggestion for a new rug.

The women contributors generally recognize that this is a time of stock taking, a time for appraising the bad and getting rid of it while reaching for the good. As Dr. Miriam Van Waters, superintendent of the Massachusetts State Reformatory for Women, and nationally known authority on juvenile delinquency points out, "war calls attention to peacetime neglects."

Englishwomen who have contributed to the series emphasize their plans for better housing. Naturally that will not be such a problem in the United States. Yet, as Eileen L. Younghusband, J. P. of London, observes the apartment house, whose conveniences are preferred by adults, is not the right housing for children and, she adds, "we have not yet designed these (apartment houses) so that they give children the chance they need to run, to make a noise, to play in safety."

In the employment field, Mary Anderson, director of the Women's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, says women must have fair play in the postwar world. She points out that a large number of women must work to support themselves, that many others have to be the total or partial support of dependents and that such responsibilities will be increased by the war. She urges a "far sighted employment program of readjustment for men and women and of fair play to both."

German Woman Gives Views

A German woman contributing to the series is Dr. Magdalene Schoch of the Harvard Law School faculty. She sees organized American women facing a responsibility to "pick up the broken threads and establish new contacts with groups of European women" and particularly to furnish help and encouragement to that advanced vanguard of German women that was driven underground by Hitler and who must be counted upon to lead in German reconstruction.

Lurking behind nearly every writer's viewpoint may be seen the same impulse that led primitive woman to improve her cave, make it more comfortable—the impulse that started the arts of civilization on their way. Back of their viewpoint is every housewife's discontent with her house as it is and her secret planning for something better. As Elizabeth Denby, Britain's leading housing authority expresses it; "There is a growing conviction that the kind of life most workers and their wives and children have to live is not good enough. We want something more interesting, beautiful, happy and clean."

Club Federation Provides Fund To Aid Nurses

The D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs voted to support the Federation of Churchwomen's "Washington welcomes you" program at its annual meeting yesterday. The federation decided to organize a program for the training of housekeepers' aids, thus helping solve the labor shortage problem.

More than $2800 worth of war bonds have been purchased by the federation and proceeds from all member clubs have been included. The total has exceeded $75,000.

Previously a fund of $250 had been provided for the support of three nurses during their period of training. Now that the Government has made provision for nurses' training, it was decided to divide the fund among all the trainees for personal incidental expenses.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

All that stands between you and the middle-aged spread at any age is muscle tone and backbone. From the southernmost rib to the pelvic rim there is nothing to hold you in shape but the spinal column in back and an interlacing of muscles in front.

This mesh of muscles forms your abdominal girdle. If you let it lose tone, it can't hold the abdominal organs in place against the pull of gravity. The organs sag and push down against the muscles in an outcurve that pulls the spinal column inward until you have a sway back. So unless you don't mind having the middle-aged spread and sway back, you will keep these important muscles in tone.

To tone and strengthen them in the shortest time possible, take some of your exercise in a position which counteracts the pull of gravity. Get out the ironing board and prop one end up on a footstool, with the other end resting on floor. Lie on the board with your feet elevated and head down.

Take the first exercise lying on your back. Flex alternate knees to chest, with other leg straight up board. Then swing alternate legs, from hip with knee straight, up to right angle with trunk.

In doing both of those exercises, be sure to keep the small of the back pressed flat against the board, with the abdominal muscles pulled up and in. Between exercises, rest on the board with knees flexed and hugged to chest.

To get at those hard-to-reach muscles which come in on the biast, flex left leg and rest foot on right leg just above knee. Pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles and push left knee sideward, hard. Relax. Repeat five times, then perform with right leg flexed and foot resting on left leg.

Now, lie on side on board, legs straight. Raise top leg from the hip, high up in air, hold, lower. Repeat 10 times, change sides, and perform another 10 counts.

No midsection conditioning program is complete without a twister for the waistline. Lie on back again and flex knees, keeping them together, with feet clear of board. Keep upper part of back flat on board and twist hard at waist to touch alternate thighs to edge of board on each side.

Random Paragraphs Picked Up in Passing—
About Persons of More Than Passing Interest

RUSTLINGS OF THE CAPITAL GRAPEVINE: One of the town's most prominent and most popular bachelors is, at last, seriously contemplating a walk down that well-known aisle. The romance began a number of years ago in the Philippines . . . Louise Atwill, one-time wife of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, says she has no plans for another marriage when she gets that divorce from Lionel Atwill. "It'll be an interlocutory decree, and in Washington that means a year of waiting," she said. "After that, you never can tell. Anyway, after three husbands, I think I've had enough of marriage—for a while." . . . When pretty Patricia Prochnik and the management of a local night club severed her singing contract there last week, a lot of steady customers in the armed forces dropped out. The daughter of the former Austrian Minister has a flock of Army and Navy friends that turn up regularly wherever she happens to be a featured performer. The night club manager must have realized that; he kept her picture on the doorway advertisement for several days after she departed . . . The British Embassy's Assistant Naval Attache, Lieut. P. H. B. Otway-Smithers, may, or may not, be paying court to Doris Duke Cromwell—as that gossip columnist reports—but he cagily refrains from committing himself about it. Asked, point-blank about the report at a dinner the other evening, he blandly replied to the nosey inquirer, "I'm sorry. I don't even know what you are talking about."

When a drugstore sticker becomes a pass to a wartime Government building—it's news.

Well, it has . . . and is. That recently completed drugstore near the Pentagon Building posed quite a problem for Pentagon employes the first two days it was opened. Located there, obviously, for the express purpose of saving the valuable time of warworkers, the emporium management and prospective customers had to face hard facts before business could get under way. In a word, the customers soon discovered that stepping over to the drugstore and returning to the Pentagon Building with newly purchased package in hand involved an endless amount of red tape and frenzied activity.

The employe had to present his pass and package, and the latter had to be opened for inspection. It was all too time-consuming, and harrowing. But just about the time most of the customers were deciding they would do their drugstore buying back in Washington after working hours, the rule changed. Now any Pentagon employe can step over to the drugstore, return with package and be admitted without having the latter inspected—provided the parcel is wrapped and carries the seal of the drugstore.

It happened on Capitol Hill the day the Duke and Duchess of Windsor unexpectedly appeared in the House gallery, just before Prime Minister Churchill's speech began. The two, with several friends, were waiting for the elevator on the first floor when a silver-haired woman spotted them, and fixed her eyes admiringly on the duke. A second later, she had pushed through the crowd and was at his side.

"Has anybody ever told you," she asked, "that you look just like the Prince of Wales?"

The Duke flushed to the roots of his blond hair; then smiled and bowed. "I have been told that," he said graciously, "but not lately."

As a rule, Capital press photographers are past masters at recognizing titled celebrities on the Washington scene. For example, you can't find one who wouldn't know Crown Princess Martha of Norway, no matter how big the crowd or how distinguished the company . . . but quite a corps of cameramen the other day failed to recognize two other princesses and a prince who have been around here just as long as Princess Martha.

The scene was the United Nation's doll festival. Crown Princess Martha had no sooner come into view than the cameras started clicking. Later, noting the boy and two girls, who stood near Her Royal Highness, one photographer decided to get a picture of them, too. "And now," he said to the crown princess, "would you mind telling us who those three children are with you?"

Princess Martha didn't mind. She said they were her son, Prince Harald, and her two daughters, Princesses Ranghild and Astrid. "And the Harald," she added helpfully, "is spelled with two 'a's.'"

Ever see a brown-eyed admiral? Yes, you read it right the first time . . . and I'd still like an answer. Here's why. Apropos of practically nothing, one of Washington's wittiest women posed that question at a party the other night.

"Why, certainly, we've seen brown-eyed admirals!" was the answer of everybody present.

"Name one," she challenged. Nobody could. Every admiral mentioned turned out to have either blue, gray, or hazel eyes.

"I'm sure I can produce a brown-eyed admiral," thoughtfully said Jonathan Daniels, but he couldn't cite a single person in point. Neither could anybody else.

Now, of course, there are brown-eyed admirals; and by the law of averages there should be as many with brown eyes as blue or any other shade. Only point I'm making is that the question did arise at a sizable Washington party . . . and even after considerable thought nobody present could remember if he had ever seen a brown-eyed admiral. So I mention this in passing for only one reason: If you know any brown-eyed admirals, I wish you'd pass on the word to me. At least one woman at that party vows that until she finds out about all this, she'll never let her brown-eyed son enter Annapolis!

Ensign, Mrs. Evans Wed in Florida, On Honeymoon

Ensign William Edgar Evans, jr., U. S. N. R., and Mrs. Evans, whose marriage took place Monday evening in Sarasota, Fla., are traveling through Florida until June 4 when they will go to Jacksonville, Fla., where Ensign Evans is stationed at the Jacksonville Naval Air Base.

Miss Charlotte Fox was the bride's only attendant and Ensign Evans had his father as best man. Ushers were Robert J. Miller, formerly of Washington; Archibald Reagin of Tampa, Fla., and Lieut. Eston G. Matheny of Camp Wheeler, Ga.

Purely Personal

The Ambassador of Costa Rica and Senora de Escalante, who went to New York last Saturday, have returned to Washington.

Mrs. Walter Raleigh Amesbury, jr., has come to Washington from New York to join her husband, Lieutenant Amesbury, who is on duty here at the Navy Department. Mrs. Amesbury, who is the former Miss Ceceile M. Dudley, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Franklin J. Dudley of New York and London, was married in New York in February. A member of the New York Junior League and a leader in many charity activities, Mrs. Amesbury is now living at 2024 P Street.

Miss Rita Vernon will be the guest of honor at a party on Sunday, at which the Misses Helen, Margaret and Katherine Connor of Rhode Island Gardens will entertain. All-Woman Board Aims To Humanize Rationing

Arlington County Serviced by Feminine Contingent Doing War Work With a Smile

By Peggy Preston

It's an all-woman, all-out ration board and its creed is to humanize this rationing business.

The 110,000 residents of Arlington County, whose daily lives have suddenly come under the scrutiny and jurisdiction of the OPA, are apt to swear by, not at, their rationing board. The reason—the ladies aim to please.

Made up of 11 paid personnel and some 100 volunteers, the board has quite a job on its hand. It services exactly twice the number of people who ordinarily come under the ruling of a board that size. But you ll hear no lamentations in the dozen or so rooms of the Clarendon, Va., building where this feminine contingent is toiling away at an all-time, all-high unpopular job. They haven't the time for it, for these are women warworkers with both feet on the ground. They're in the game for keeps and intend to do a bang-up good job of it.

Guiding personality behind the group is quiet, diligent, Mrs. Edward Gaumitz, executive secretary. A keen executive, Mrs. Gaumitz, whose husband is assistant to Milo Perkins of BEW, selected her staff with care and issued the directive of a "humanizing policy" toward the harassed public.

"No two cases presented to us are the same," she explained the other afternoon. "In so far as we are able, we seek to give help where it is needed and view each case with a judicial eye."

Working often far into the night herself, Mrs. Gaumitz requires but one quality in her staff members. They must have proved their absolute interest in a job that is anything but glamorous. As a result, practically every paid worker on the board served an apprenticeship as a volunteer. If they can take the grind of several months' work in the front receiving rooms and still retain their sense of humor, Mrs. Gaumitz is willing to take them on.

Typical example of such a board member is Mrs. C. F. Clayton, in charge of gasoline rationing for Arlington County.

Currently, Mrs. Clayton is having her first rest in a year. The gas drought has ruined her business for the time being. Blonde, good-looking and humorous, Mrs. Clayton thoroughly enjoys her job. It is her first fling at a day-in and day-out job.

Mrs. Clayton weighs and recommends. "If it is going to make the difference of ruining a person's life, in their own opinion, of course," she said, "I try and find some way to give them 1 extra gallon of gas. You have no idea how strongly people feel about being able to wangle that 1 small gallon. It can make them either for or against rationing. And we want people to be for it."

Among the other women in the offices is Mrs. Frederick Milner, wife of Colonel Milner, air adjutant general of the area, in charge of Ration Books 1 and 2, Mrs. Milner finds herself doing office work for the first time in her life.

"People are all right," said silver-haired, brown-eyed Mrs. Milner. "Only one person out of 10 tries to get an extra book. Occasionally we have trouble, but not often enough to mention."

There is Mrs. William Carl Holley, into whose hands come all requests for commercial foods and for an additional No. 17 coupon.

"I get more feet in my face than anyone in the place," reported Mrs. Holley, and explained that a person looking for extra shoes frequently gives proof by thrusting up the sole of his shoe.

Others, equally hard-working and interested in their jobs are Mrs. Beulah Goss of the Price Control Office, who is having her troubles with the black market; Mrs. Pauline McEachern of fuel oil, diminutive Mrs. James Strickland of tires and Mrs. Madge Lee, general secretary.

In charge of the volunteers is Mrs. H. A. Barber, jr., whose husband is a colonel on the general staff. Handling publicity for the board is attractive dark-haired Mrs. Herman Barter, wife of a naval commander.

John O. Propert and Bride, Mr., Mrs. DeRosa to Live Here

Saturday Is Favorite Bridal Day; Several Weddings Take Place Here

After brief wedding trips Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver Propert and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lawrence DeRosa, whose marriages took place in Washington last Saturday, will return here to make their homes.

Another wedding on the Saturday schedule of interest here was that of Miss Hannah Louise Hamlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hamlett of Powhatan, Va., and Robert Elonzo Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elonzo L. Morgan of Washington, which took place in St. John's Church, Richmond. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan will reside in Richmond following their honeymoon.

The marriage of Miss Betty Crocker Shields, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis F. Shields, and John Oliver Propert was held at 8:30 p. m. in the Chevy Chase Baptist Church with Dr. Edward O. Clark officiating, assisted by Dr. Clarence W. Cranford of the Calvery Baptist Church. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. J. K. Propert of Philadelphia and the late Mr. Propert.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a fitted lace bodice and full net skirt with a train and a finger-tip veil of illusion, held by coronet wreathed in orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid.

Kerper Propert, twin brother of the bridegroom, of Washington, served as best man and the ushers were Frank Propert, another brother; James Berry and Orville Luedtke.

A reception in the social hall of the church followed the ceremony. The bride attended Woodrow Wilson High School and Strayer College. Mr. Propert was educated in Philadelphia and has been in Washington for the last three years. Both are interested in church activities.

DeRosa—Puleo

Miss Josephine Mary Puleo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Puleo, became the bride of Daniel Lawrence DeRosa in the Nativity Church, the ceremony at 6 o'clock being performed by the Rev. Walter J. Norris. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo De Rosa of Washington. White mousseline de soie fashioned the bride's gown, which was made on princess lines with a long train trimmed in lace. A coronet of orange blossoms held her tulle veil and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids. Frank Cifala, cousin of the bride, gave her in marriage.

Mrs. Daniel W. Baker was maid of honor and only attendant, and Daniel William Baker, Chief Petty Officer, U. S. Coast Guard, was best man. An informal reception followed the ceremony, and when Mr. DeRosa and his bride left for New York Mrs. De Rosa wore a navy blue costume with white accessories and a cluster of white orchids. They will make their home with the bride's parents at 1312 Tuckerman Street.

Morgan—Hamlett

Miss Hannah Louise Hamlett wore a white organdie gown made with a fitted bodice, full skirt and long pointed sleeves for her marriage to Robert Elonzo Morgan. She carried gardenias, pale pink water lilies and swansonias. The Rev. J. A. Eckles performed the ceremony at 5:30 o'clock and a reception followed at the home of Mrs. S. R. Sanders in Richmond. Mr. Hamlett gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. W. C. Hamlett, who was matron of honor, was in yellow organdy with a matching picture hat. Mr. Morgan was best man for his son and the ushers were Guy Griffith and Lieut. Charles Thompson.

After a wedding trip to Asheville, N. C., the couple will be at home at 5014 Caledonia Road, Richmond. The bride attended State Teachers College in Farmville, Va., and Mr. Morgan is a graduate of George Washington University.

'Bataan,' at Loew's Palace, Epic of American Valor

Well-Chosen, All-Male Cast Revives Glory Of General MacArthur's Beleaguered Forces; Brief Supplementary Films Complete Bill

"BATAAN." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original screenplay by Robert D. Andrews, starring Robert Taylor, with George Murphy, Thomas Mitchell, Lloyd Nolan, Lee Bowman, Robert Walker, Desi Arnaz, Barry Nelson, Phillip Terry, Rogue Espiritu, Kenneth Spencer, J. Alex Havier, Tom Dugan and Donald Curtis. Directed by Tay Garnett. At Loew's Palace Theater.

IT IS STRONG AND BITTER MEAT that is offered the amusement palate in "Bataan," the attraction opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, but one somehow feels that it would be impossible to exaggerate the hardships and sacrifices suffered by General MacArthur's beleagured outposts before the fall of the embattled Philippine peninsula.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original screenplay by Robert D. Andrews concerns itself with the valiant stand of a composite detachment of 13 United States servicemen detailed to blow up a bridge and keep the enemy penned up in the valley, as a "delaying action" of vital importance to the outnumbered defensive forces. One in a weary captain in command of such personnel as he can muster. A new sergeant comes to his detail along with a seasoned corporal. An aviation lieutenant, trying to get his plane fit to take the air is another. A torpedoed sailor finds his way into the group and so does another corporal, with a dubious past in the service and a new name to camouflage his earlier transgressions. A Filipino patriot or two add further diversity to the group, an altogether polyglot cross-cut of the American fighting forces.

Out of their desperate predicaments, individual and collective valor and the indomitable spirit of the unconquerable has been contrived an epic of heroism that stresses the same qualities of heart and courage that already have been celebrated on the stage in Maxwell Anderson's "The Eve of St. Mark" and on the screen in such comparatively recent releases as "Wake Island," "The Immortal Sergeant," "Corregidor"—unfortunately bogged down with an abysmal "love story"—and others dedicated to the invincibility of free men in the face of a regimented and fanatical enemy.

There is nothing pretty about "Bataan" except the glow of pride it must ignite in every American breast.

The broad and bloody canvas, necessarily, has been executed in heavy crimson strokes. One by one, the detachment is whittled down from its original 13 to a lone survivor whose defiant last stand presumably signalizes the annihilation of the entire group. But not until they have given a magnificent account of themselves. There are times, to be sure, when the action approaches dangerously near to the borders of the unbelievable, until it is remembered that anything is believable in war, where fact more often than not transcends fiction.. Certainly, "Bataan," beyond the measure of any of its predecessors, demonstrates the capacity of the American fighting man to meet the requirements of barbaric warfare with unmatched resourcefulness in the utilization of such weapons as he has at his command—which, as history has proved in the instant case, were too few and too late.

A Nonpareil, All-Male Cast

M-G-M has cast the pivotal roles in its screen memorial to American courage with judicious care. Robert Taylor, in the role of Sergt. Bill Dane, left in command by the quick death of Capt. Lassiter, briefly impersonated by Lee Bowman, meets the rugged demands of jungle fighting with a rough-and-ready skill that belies the one-time implications that he was restricted to the impudent posings of a "collar-ad" actor. He makes a forceful figure as the tough top-kick. So does Thomas Mitchell, cast as Corp. Jake Feingold, a counterpart of the title character he portrayed in the aforementioned "The Immortal Sergeant," and George Murphy is quietly and impressively efficient as the aviation lieutenant who achieved the same sort of eventual glory as that other intrepid airman who flew disaster to the enemy and death to himself in "Flying Tigers." Lloyd Nolan, as the cynical renegade, who atones for his treacherous past largely against his will, finds himself in a role to which his talents are peculiarly attuned. Nolan has an odd gift for making obnoxious characters strangely sympathetic and likable.

It is the part of the landlocked gob, however, that will leave as indelible a memory as any in the picture. This wistful, ingenuous and wholly disarming young fellow, as played by Robert Walker, turns out to be the one who above any of the others threatens now and again to "steal the picture." It is a performance of infinite charm that never fails to illuminate its surroundings of gruesome glory with the clear light of character shining through brave but bewildered youth. Unless this is the "one role he could do best," Master Walker seems destined to an immediate future of more than ordinary promise on the screen.

There is no role of minor importance in "Bataan" and all are played on a high level of excellence rarely achieved. This would be by way of including Desi Arnaz, Barry Nelson, Phillip Terry, Rogue Espiritu, Kenneth Spencer, Tom Dugan and Donald Curtis in a round robin of acclamation.

Although largely answered by the vigorous developments of the major feature, the Defense Reel for the new week at the Palace will concern itself with the broad question of "What Are We Fighting For?" As a bit of an antidote for all the shooting, the M-G-M cartoon comedy, "Redhot Riding Hood" will inject a note of frivolity into the program, and the picturized "News of the Day" will serve as the final auxiliary of a grim but glorious salute to American valor.

A Great Film Revived at Little

By Marjorie Kelly

One of the finest pictures ever made yesterday began a revival run at the Little Theater.

Many of the most luminous names in modern theater are on the list of those who made "The Long Voyage Home" the brilliant production it is. The story is taken from four of Eugene O'Neill's one-act plays; direction is by John Ford, who directed "The Informer" and "Grapes of Wrath"; the scenario is by Dudley Nichols, who has done the scenario for another fine picture currently in town, "This Land Is Mine," and among the many excellent actors in the cast are Barry Fitzgerald, Thomas Mitchell, Ian Hunter and John Wayne.

With all this eminence, there is not one thing that stands out conspicuously as better done than any other. The film is a perfect blending of beautiful photography, careful, imaginative acting, even by the smallest bit players, well chosen background music, and realistic settings; and the whole bears consistent witness to John Ford's genius for selecting the exactly right detail. The uneasy creak of wet rope, the sound of a boat's whistle far off—the loneliest and weariest sound in the world—the rhythm of many accents, as sailors from various lands talk in their bunkroom on board the "Glencairn;" the gleam of light on the the wet boards of the deck—these are a few of the many details which make the picture.

A Story of Strong Men

With the exception of one scene in a tavern ashore, the entire action takes place aboard a battered, slow, old ship which is carrying a dangerous load of explosives. There are no women in the picture, except a group of bumboat girls who come aboard while the ship is in port, bringing fruit and liquor, and the taxi-dance girls in the tavern.

The entire conflict of the film, fights over women being thus automatically ruled out, centers in the attempt to get the cargo safely to England, and the struggle of Oley, who is played by John Wayne, to make this voyage his last. The youngest sailor on board, he has been 10 years getting home. The others tried from time to time to give up the sea and go home, but they no longer have any homes, after so many years. Oley has a home, and he has had his fill of the sea. This trip, he is determined, will not end as last voyages always have before—in a drunk and a brawl and an awakening to the realization that his money is gone and he will have to go back to sea to earn his passage home to Norway.

The film is packed with little incidents that you will remember and enjoy long after. Such things as an old tar shaking his fist at the sky when Nazi planes strafe their ships and howling vehemently all the things he hadn't liked about this difficult voyage. "Bombs! Bullets! Hash! Stew! By Yimminy, I qvit!"

This is one of the few moving pictures that ever deserved the adjective beloved of press agents, "unforgettable."

Teamed with it are a "goofey" cartoon on baseball, and a Government short entitled "What We Are Fighting For," which attempts, as the title indicates, the periodically necessary task of summing up just what it is all about.

HEDDA HOPPER

Again a Doubleheader!

Hollywood, Calif., May 26.—Xavier Cugat's last trip to Hollywood was mighty profitable. Besides doing a picture with Fred Astaire, he was paid $25,000 for his name, which was the title of a Paramount picture. Then they changed the name of it! When Cugat arrives here in June, he'll find himself coming and going because he'll be doing two at once, shuttling between Columbia's "Tropicana" and Metro's "Mr. Co-Ed." . . . Virginia Weidler, who's at the awkward age, is making personal appearances. She'd be wise if she'd take a couple of years off and go to school, as Shirley Temple did. I heard a fan remark that she's growing right out of her talent . . . "Good Night Ladies" comes high. Harry Cohn paid $150,000 for the rights . . . Milton Berle isn't returning to Hollywood to do "Four Jills and a Jeep" with Martha Raye . . . Jerry Lester, the comic Hollywood didn't go for, is breaking records in New York.

RICHARD ARLEN

The Millennium

Just 10 minutes after Saunders' speech, Twentieth Century postponed "The Last Train from Berlin" indefinitely . . . Blanche Ring is having wonderful time. Under contract to Metro, she's had four weeks' salary but not a lick of work, which is the first time that's ever happened to her . . . Richard Arlen's finished "Mine Sweeper" and has one more picture to go with Pine and Thomas. He was sent three play scripts to read by the Theater Guild . . . Miriam Hopkins is replacing Tallulah Bankhead in "Skin of Your Teeth." That will give her acting career a big boost . . . Sam Bischoff is trying to get rights for the Yiddish play, "The Room on the Corner," which is running in London, for Broadway . . . Tony Quinn's one of the laziest boys in town, and soon after he'd given a blood transfusion to John Decker, Decker yawned and said, "Don't know what's the matter with me. I feel so-o-o-o lazy!"

We Could Use Him

Hilary St. George Saunders talked straight from the shoulder at the Academy luncheon. He was disarmingly frank and truthful . . . James Hilton said 12 million of Mr. Saunders' books, written on the war, had been sold in Britain, whereupon Mr. Saunders said, "12 million in all—not alone in Britain." . . . Saunders checks and double checks every statement. When he did a story about commandos, he talked with them. He talked with the R. A. F. men who bombed Germany and the man in the street whose house had been blitzed. When his story went to the government, he gave the source of every bit of information, and 90 per cent of everything he wrote got through. He mentioned a commando raid in Norway where 12 men went to blow up the power works, and told us of a Norwegian guide who was shot through the stomach. They did everything to save him, couldn't and as he was dying, he said, "I'm too young to die, but if young men aren't willing to die for their country, they don't deserve to have one."

No War Films for Fighters

Warriors want romance, comedy, clever lines, pretty girls. When Saunders was visiting an outfit, they'd marched 12 miles and had 12 miles to go. When they were told a film was waiting for them when they got back, they did the 12 miles in two hours flat, and felt rewarded because they saw a Ginger Rogers film. Pictures like "Ball of Fire," "I Married a Witch," and "Major and the Minor" they adore. "But," Saunders said, "it's important that civilians keep up with the war on the screen. In England, where two out of every three people work for war effort, facts must be straight. Your films are the finest in the world, from the photographic standpoint, acting, and direction. But the soul of the picture must be equally good. Without that, you've missed your point. You're doing a fine job in Hollywood, and it may be presumptuous for me to say, I think you could do a finer one."

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Anyway, She Had a Nice Vacation!

Hollywood, May 26 (INS).—Good thing Joan Fontaine enjoyed her vacation in Mexico City so much, because she won't have another soon. David Selznick, who controls her movie destiny, has loaned Joan to Twentieth Century Fox for "Flare Path" and she'll do it as soon as she finishes "Frenchman's Creek" for Paramount. As a stage vehicle in London, "Flare Path" was a sensation. It played for over a year to packed houses, but it didn't fare so well on Broadway—could have been the cast.

JOAN FONTAINE

At any rate, Robert Kane, who will produce "Flare Path," is particularly pleased that Twentieth was able to borrow Joan, for it is an ideal vehicle for her. The story is that of an American boy who goes to London, becomes an R. A. F. flier, falls in love with an English girl. There's not as much of a war background as there is romantic appeal.

Interesting casting, at least to me, is the choice of the so-beautiful Hedy Lamarr for the slave girl in "Quo Vadis." Come what may, this long-discussed movie gets under way in August. So you can guess that Producer Arthur Hornblow is very busy lining up his cast. Walter Pidgeon, already mentioned by us for Petronius, has been definitely set.

And here is another bit of "Quo Vadis" news: Robert Leonard directs. A good choice, too, for Bob loves his spectacles. The job is a stupendous one and such directors as Mervyn LeRoy and Ernst Lubitsch were mentioned, but their other assignments interfered. For a time it looked as if it wouldn't be possible to get Bob, so everybody's happy now that his other pictures have been arranged so he is free to accept.

A line or two: Oscar Homolka is turning down a picture at Paramount to go East to be with his wife when she has her baby. He may do a play in the East for the Theater Guild . . . reports from New York are there was a Hollywood touch to the dinner John Perona gave Rex (Party Giver) St. Cyr at the El Morocco. Bing and Dixie Crosby were there and Bing, in one of his giving moods, sang and sang. Mary Pickford and Lieut. Buddy Rogers of the Air Corps were other guests.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Veronica Lake has been out of the Paramount Studio four days and too ill to answer the telephone. She is living with Rita Beery, Wally's former; Cecilia Parker expects her second child in about three weeks; Norma Shearer is in New Orleans to be near Marty Arrouge, her bridegroom, who is stationed near there; Henry Fonda, quartermaster third class, has gone to a new naval base and is now ready for sea duty.

Saw Dolores Hope, who is getting ready to join Bob, who is visiting camps; Irving Berlin has written a new song, "You Keep Coming Back to Me Like a Song;" great title. Errol Flynn is in the desert recuperating from a recent sick spell; Herman Spitzel entertained at the Troc in honor of his daughter, Jean, who is visiting him. She married Mel Viner of Washington a few months ago.

Lois Andrews and Jess Barker dancing to Emil Coleman's Orchestra at Ciro's; rumors still buzzing that Janet Blair is the secret bride of Lieut. Lou Busch. Janet says it isn't true, but it is true she will marry him; Teresa, Myrna Loy's former maid, found a gold mine in the dressing room when she discovered a whole dozen pairs of nylon stockings. That's real gold! Cheryl Walker and her secret groom, Dr. Jay Coumbe, are expected home. He goes into the Navy and Cheryl gets ready for her next Sol Lesser movie.

Army Orders Rule Studio Film Stage

Hollywood—An unusual method of keeping complete order when groups of more than 50 soldiers from Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army" are busy on the stage, has been evolved by the Warner Bros. production department, working hand-in-hand with Army officers in charge of the soldier-actors.

On sets where soldiers work in conjunction with civilian actors, a lieutenant from the Army show has been placed in charge, as a semi-assistant director. He works directly with Frank Heath and Jack Sullivan, long established assistants, transmitting orders from Director Mike Curtiz to the soldiers via public address system.

No time is wasted getting the men quiet, for an order of "at ease!" from the lieutenant brings complete silence immediately. This method of using military discipline has produced dividends in efficiency and lack of wasted time, and so far, in six weeks' shooting of the picture, has encountered no hitches.

LEONARD LYONS

Times Square Tattle

New York, May 26.

Shortly after Winston Churchill made his address to Congress last week, he met General Chennault, who bluntly asked: "What's the date?" When Churchill didn't immediately respond, Chennault repeated: "What's the date? When do I get the planes?" . . .

MYRNA LOY

Churchill remained silent, and Chennault continued: "I used to be a game warden, back home in Louisiana. And at the appropriate time I knew I'd get the check with which to fatten my birds. Now never mind the speeches. What's the date? I'm the game warden out in China and I've got to fatten my flock. So when do I get the planes, Mr. Churchill? What's the date?"

Ex-Senator Clyde Herring is grooming himself to succeed Prentiss Brown as head of OPA . . . Ernest Hemingway is leaving Cuba for a three-months' trip abroad . . . Fred Allen will devote his year's leave from radio to writing a play or appearing in one . . . The widespread reports that Leon Henderson would become the independent Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey are untrue. Henderson prefers his easy, big-money seat on the sideline of politics . . . The big shakeup at Governor's Island is expected within two months . . . Otto of Hapsburg will report to his draft board this week, to show cause why he shouldn't be in the Army.

A complete medical and dental entourage accompanied Joe Davies to Moscow . . . Brenda Frazier and her husband, Shipwreck Kelly, have purchased a home in Cuba . . . Jimmy Byrnes phoned Prentiss Brown at the hospital, and Brown asked: "How are things going with you?" The Economic Stabilizer replied: "Well, don't give up your room when your doctor discharges you. Save it for me" . . . Col. Carlos P. Romulo will rejoin General MacArthur next month . . . A new Army directive will make it specific—that under no circumstances will an Army officer be permitted to run for political office . . . Myrna Loy's Washington job didn't materialize.

Eve Curie's best seller, "Journey Among Warriers," could have been a Book-of-the-Month for this summer, but the author decided she couldn't wait that long . . . Jules Romains and the France Forever Club have parted. He now is in Mexico . . . Arthur White, regional director of wages and hours, may be commissioned into the Army shortly . . . Alvin Josephy, jr., of the OWI will become a Marine Corps combat-correspondent this month . . . Last week some of Winston Churchill's friends compared his speech with that of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek. "My method is simple," Churchill told them. "I like to use Anglo-Saxon words with the least number of syllables."

"Skeets" Martin was one of the most famous jockeys in the world. He rode for King Edward and won a Grand National. He now is 66, and for the past few years he's been living in Chur, Switzerland, two hours distant from St. Moritz . . . Billy Reardon, now of the Stork Club, saw Martin on the day Billy set out for the return trip to America and asked the jockey to come home with him. "I've often wanted to come home," Skeets sighed, and then explained that he was broke and ill and that he had just spent his last money arranging for his cremation. Reardon tried to get a refund of that money, but couldn't. "In that case," said the jockey, "I'll stay here. All my other investments fizzled. I don't want this one to."

Drew Pearson told Westbrook Pegler: "We have something in common now. You were 36 Horizontal and I was 36 Vertical in the Sunday Times' crossword puzzle" . . . Roseland Ballroom, Broadway's largest, is offering its customers a nightly game of musical chairs as a relief from jitterbugging . . . A Department of Justice official was asked his opinion of the announcement that the Communist International was dissolving. "That's something like Nicholas Murray Butler's announcement a long time ago," he said, "when, after long years of research, Butler decided that the Iliad wasn't written by Homer, but by another man with the same name."

Lord Beaverbrook retired early on Friday night, after a visit to Cafe Society Downtown. He was weary of the strange boogie-woogie music and puzzled by a young lady wearing a coat in the warm room. When the lady was asked why she was wearing the coat, her escort, a soldier, insisted: "Because I'M cold" . . . Lenore Lemmon, who worked in night clubs for nine weeks, is going overseas with a USO unit . . . Every resident at swanky Washington Mews first had to give consent to a block-party to be held there next month, for the Music Box Canteen . . . Major Thornton Wilder, who won three Pulitzer Prizes, probably is overseas by now.

Learns Butling From Batman

Hollywood—Eric Blore, one of the screen's two most famous butlers, learned the art from his batman in the first World War.

He made the revelation here while butling in RKO-Radio's Fred Astaire-Joan Leslie starrer, "The Sky's the Limit."

In the first world fracas, Blore was a lieutenant of the South Wales Borderers. His batman, Fleming, had been butler to the Earl of Cambridge.

"A man of tact, discernment, intelligence and loyalty," said Blore. "Never surprised by anything. When I returned to the stage after the war, I resumed playing monocled, mustached Englishmen. Then I went to New York, was offered a part in 'The Gay Divorcee' on the stage. It was a butler's role. I'd never played a butler, but I just patterned Fleming. On stage or screen I've been a butler ever since. I owe it all to Fleming."

Meet the New Chief Petty Officer!

GRACE McDONALD AND TOBY

Dancing star of stage and screen offers a congratulatory handshake to her pet wire-haired terrier, Toby, on his attainment of Navy rank, despite ineligibility for the Dogs for Defense branch of the service because he is too small. Not Toby, but Miss McDonald will be seen with Abbott and Costello in "It Ain't Hay," coming soon to RKO-Keith's Theater as successor to the current "This Land Is Mine"

New 'War' Films Will Focus on the Home Fronts

By Melrose Gower

Hollywood, May 26.—An impression is slowly growing throughout the movie-making area that the day of big war pictures is drawing to a close.

That does not mean, of course, that the making of such films has definitely ceased. Obviously, the coming battle panorama on the second European front will be unrolled on the screen; also there will be major celluloid chronicles of future naval engagements in the South Pacific; likewise, it is to be hoped devoutly, the all-out bombing and destruction of Tokyo will be recorded to gladden the eyes of this generation.

The main trend now, however, is to make the war serve best as a background against which to sketch with painstaking care the lives of millions of men, women and children affected by the terrible conflict. Every American citizen has borne his burdens in the past 18 months—some more than many of our people realize—and it is human nature to want to know how the other fellow, whether a near neighbor or an alien across the sea, reacts to similar problems, hardships and cruelties.

A Simple Story of Life

Which accounts for the thoughtful preparation Casey Robinson is devoting to a coming picture tentatively titled "Revenge." Written by Robinson, who also will produce it for RKO-Keith, the tale is laid in the Russia of today—but it is not a story of today's Russia. It is a human picture of the lives led by a Russian dancer, an engineer, a factory worker, a professor of philosophy, two orphaned children, a blacksmith. As Robinson explains it:

"I sincerely hope 'Revenge' will help the American public better to understand the Russian people; how they live, what they think. For theirs is a nation that will play a major part in global reconstruction after the war.

"In this picture I do not treat of Russia politically or historically, but simply and humanly. That is the way I hope to present the little group of Russians around whom the picture revolves—to have the audience meet them, live with them, understand them."

Laughton Starring in Another

Around this same thesis was woven the story of the Charles Laughton-Maureen O'Hara starring picture, "This Land Is Mine," now doing splendid business in the theaters. Its characters were plain people, reacting to the shadow of war on their European homeland. And the same was true of "Forever and a Day," which presented the lives of average English men and women—and was warmly welcomed by American theatergoers.

"Hitler's Children" was a box-office smash. Not because it was a big picture, which it assuredly was not, but because it was a true picture of the terrible wrong Nazi enslavement has done to the German race.

Similarly, RKO-Radio executives expect the public will want to see the picturization of James R. Young's factual book, "Behind the Rising Sun," now in production; will want to see it because it is the honest story of the innate cruelty of the Japanese people, as a crack American newspaperman saw them over a period of 13 long years.

United Nations Composite

At this writing Howard Hawks is preparing to produce and direct for Warner Brothers a picture called "Battle Cry" — and your correspondent doubts if there will be a single battle yelp in it. Episodic in form, it will chronicle the various lives of one individual in each of the United Nations; an American, a Briton, a Frenchman, a Greek, all down the line. Also, the same studio is working on an untitled screen play to recite the present story of the people of the South Americas.

"One Destiny," novel by Phil Stong, is the story of what happens to the little people in an American agricultural community during time of war. MacKinley Kantor's book, "Happy Land," is the tale of how the war affects a small town druggist and his family. Both of these are being prepared for the screen by Twentieth Century-Fox.

Down to Personal Equation

Yes, there will be other big war pictures—but not so many as in the past. This war is boiling down to the personal equation, to problems affecting millions of plain, run-of-the-mill individuals. And the simplest of these problems, as movie-makers know, can sometimes be terribly real.

As the old Yankee farmer mournfully answered, when met by another on the road of a Saturday evening and questioned whither he was going:

"I'm going to town to get drunk and, gosh, how I dread it!"

Gets 'Coventry'

Although she is the "sweetheart" of the 350 soldiers working in Warner Bros.' film version of Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army," Joan Leslie is not permitted, by regulation, to speak with any of them except in scenes.

Keith's Holds Laughton Film Second Week

Charles Laughton has one of the most difficult, as well as rewarding, roles of his career in "This Land Is Mine," which today begins its second week at RKO-Keith's Theater.

He plays the role of a sensitive, introverted, unhappy schoolmaster, who cannot control the boys in his form, who dares not leave his domineering mother even for a few hours to have dinner with the young fellow teacher he secretly loves; who sneaks milk to the cat under cover of the tablecloth to keep from having to listen to a lecture from his mother on how he, poor, frail, nervous boy, needs it himself—but who eventually dares to stand up to the Nazis in open court and tell them that their plans for world conquest are doomed, knowing the while that he is dooming himself by talking so.

The role, which might easily be carried to the morbidly ludicrous, is sympathetic throughout in Mr. Laughton's hands.

Other excellent performances in the film are Una O'Connor's as the demanding mother, and Maureen O'Hara's as the young schoolteacher.

Film Test Wins Her Two Bosses

Hollywood—It isn't often that a film test wins a screen aspirant even one contract. But Kim Hunter's won her two.

The 20-year-old Floridian, here only three months and playing on the stage of Pasadena Community Playhouse, was tested by David O. Selznick. He arranged the test at RKO-Radio studio. Heads of the latter got a peek at the results and promptly made a deal with Selznick to share Miss Hunter.

Now, on her first movie job, she's playing the feminine lead in RKO-Radio's new thriller, "The Seventh Victim."

Lads and Lassies in Uniform Dictate Production Schedules

Hollywood, May 26.—A new type of film fan now dictates to the men who fashion the world's movies.

Said film fan wears a uniform—the uniform of a soldier, a sailor, a marine, a WAAC or a WAVE.

He and she tell Hollywood what to put on the screen and, by golly, Hollywood obeys.

Literally thousands of letters from men and women in service pour into the studio daily. They come from every camp in the United States, from the Aleutians, from North Africa, from Australia, from scattered islands in the south Pacific. And the general tenor is the same. The lads and lassies wearing Uncle Sam's service cloth ask for more movies spiced with glamour, song and comedy, and for pictures that tell what the folks at home are doing.

According to a recent trade paper survey, there are now 104 musicals on Hollywood schedules, either ready for release, in work or preparing. Of this number, 39 are completed, editing or shooting, while 65 are in preparation.

One Studio Has Five

No less than five big screen features, larded with music, pretty girls and comedy, will roll off the RKO-Radio production line in answer to the wishes of our fighting men and women.

Fred Astaire already has completed his biggest film of the year, "The Sky's the Limit," which will introluce lovely Joan Leslie as his new dancing partner and will popularize music and songs by Harold Arlen and Johnny Mercer.

Kay Kyser, whose countless visits to Army camps stamps him definitely as an authority on what the boys want to see and hear, now is getting ready to go before the cameras again in "Around the World," bringing to the screen with him not only his famed band but also such boxoffice attractions as Marcy McGuire, red-headed tune tosser; Joan Davis and Mischa Auer.

Producer-Director Tim Whelan is preparing the film version of the Rodgers and Hart Broadway musical success, "Higher and Higher," which will mark the movie debut of Broadway's torrid singer, Frank Sinatra.

Cantor a Triple Threat

Eddie Cantor will write, produce and appear in a major offering, "Show Business," which will comprise a history of vaudeville and the entertainment business in this country from the turn of the century to the Ziegfeld Follies.

John Auer, who was signed only recently as an R-K-O-Radio producer, is working night and day on his first assignment, "Seven Days Ashore," a musical sequel to the boxoffice hit, "Seven Days Leave."

At Twentieth Century-Fox, two red-hot musicals were completed a short time ago, "Coney Island" and "Stormy Weather"; Metro has "Best Foot Forward," with Lucille Ball, also "As Thousands Cheer"; Paramount is banking on "Riding High," starring Fred MacMurray, Dorothy Lamour and Betty Hutton; Warner Bros. has "Thank Your Lucky Stars"; Universal is swaying to Deanna Durbin's music in "Hers to hold."

Demand Stories of Home

Countless thousands of men and women in service are asking for more pictures that will give an honest account of the lives of those they left behind—the sweethearts, lovers, wives and husbands on the home front. That demand accounts for the preparation of such films as "Government Girl," to be produced by David Hempstead and directed by Dudley Nichols, with Olivia De Havilland starring as a youthful secretary in Washington.

It accounts also for a coming series of films, "Mr. and Mrs. America," the running story of a family dwelling in a community supported by a big defense plant.

The influence of the military makes its mark, indeed, upon the movie world of today. Commandos commandeer the cameras, paratroopers are a persuasive power over producers, doughboys dictate to directors.

Funds for D. C. Projects Win Indorsement

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday approved District projects totaling $888,331 in the $143,600,000 urgent deficiency bill.

Estimates for 1943 were approved by the Budget Bureau to meet expenses accrued since the bill was passed by the House. Largest of the Capital's items was an allocation of $589,093 to cover salary increases recently put into effect for District policemen, firemen and school teachers, in addition to employes affected by the overtime pay act.

Also approved was $174,763 for operation of Washington Aqueduct, $28,500 for increased costs of tuberculosis prevention and treatment, $4500 for deportation of nonresident insane and $5464 for increased Municipal Court salaries, including pay of retired judges.

The committee refusesd $29,650 for purchase of additional public school books, $750 for searching titles of land adjacent to Lorton Reformatory, and $69,500 for completion of a 20-million-gallon covered reservoir at McMillan Park. These items will be considered when the Senate studies regular District budget figures early next month.

Shapiro Presents Selections By Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven

By Ray C. B. Brown

Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress presents Maxim Shapiro on Wednesday night in the second of six piano recitals in Coolidge Auditorium. Program: Sonata No. 34 in E minor (Haydn), 32 Variations in C minor (Beethoven), Sonata in E major, Op. 109 (Beethoven), Fantasia in D minor (Mozart) & Variations on "Come un agnello" (Mozart), Sonata in C major, Op. 53 (Beethoven).

Entering last evening on the second phase of his selections of pianoforte literature from the early eighteenth century to the present day, Maxim Shapiro was heard by an audience not so large but quite as friendly as the one on Tuesday night. Inasmuch as this series of six recitals is nominally an exposition of the "development" of piano music, one was a little confused by the order of the program, in which Beethoven's E major sonata (composed in 1820) was played before the C major sonata (composed in 1804) with two pieces by Mozart sandwiched in between them. It is difficult to follow this kind of chronology.

BROWN

After the opening sonata by Haydn, who was the first important influence over Mozart's musical thought, it would have been logical for Mr. Shapiro to have given us a sonata by Johann Schobert, whom Mozart admired so much that four of his piano concerti are deliberate studies from Schobert's sonatas, or a sonata by Johann Christian Bach, from whom Mozart had his first inkling of the ornate Italian style. Then it would have been time to play Mozart's D minor fantasia and the set of eight varaitions on an air, "Come un agnello," from Guiseppe Sarvi's opera, "I Due Litiganti." The latter, by the way, goes to the reitalist's credit as a novelty, as it has not been heard here for a decade, to my knowledge, and probably longer than that.

It would have been more interesting for the curious auditor had a similar procedure thrown some light on Beethoven's early predilections. In place of the familiar 32 variations in C minor, which would never have been missed, we could have had a sonata by Mario Clementi, who was unquestionably a model for Beethoven in his youth, or a sonata by Johann Baptist Cramer, one of the founders of the modern school of piano playing. According to Ries, Beethoven considered Cramer the only outstanding pianist of his time.

With Mr. Shapiro's choice of Beethoven sonatas there can be no quarrel, for they are both thoroughly representative of the composer's essential qualities. The C major ("Waldstein") sonata must have been for those who first heard it a glimpse into a hitherto unknown world of poesy. The first movement glows with a strange splendor, the short Adagio is packed with feeling and wisdom, and the rondo, as Marion Scott aptly describes it, "seems poised in the sunny realm of air." As for Opus 109, that is the quintessence of Beethoven's spirituality, a beautiful work of supreme intellectual mastery with every detail of its structure relevant to all the others.

As an interpreter of Beethoven Mr. Shapiro was somewhat disappointing. His insight may be greater than his power of projecting what he sees, but one felt in his readings more sentimentality than sentiment, more rhetoric than real emotion.

Doolittle Scrolls Shown In Smithsonian

The Smithsonian Institution, after keeping very quiet about its holdings for a year because of a need for military secrecy, yesterday brought out of hiding two fine and delicate Chinese scrolls that were presented to Gen. James J. Doolittle in memory of his bombing of Tokyo.

One of the scrolls, gifts of an unnamed Chinese province through which General Doolittle passed after the raid, is brilliant red, embroidered wiht an eagle perched on an evergreen tree, and the other is white and is also embroidered with an eagle, perched, however, on an Oriental maple. It is said that General Doolittle gave one to the War Department and the other to the Smithsonian Institution; but yesterday nobody knew who owned which.

On the red scroll, in Chinese characters, is inscribed "The Great and Marvelous Plan," while on the white scroll appears "Ten thousand li of the Great Rukh."

An official of the Freer Gallery said that the latter is an analogy, the rukh being a bird of legend which flew 10,00 miles with no difficulty.

Sometime last May a War Department official, veiling himself in great secrecy, carried the scrolls to the Smithsonian and instructed everybody that mum was the word until further notice. Notice came this week from Gen. H. H. Arnold, head of the Army Air Force, close on the heels of photographs and stories of the Tokyo raid. The scrolls will remain on exhibit indefinitely.

Dr. Cady Dies; Developed Helium In Natural Gas

Lawrence, Kas., May 26 (AP). — Dr. Hamilton Perkins Cady, 68, University of Kansas chemist who developed helium in natural gas in Kansas, died today.

It was in 1907 that Dr. Cady, a member of Kansas University's staff 44 years, found helium in natural gas produced at Dexter, Kans. Dexter had drilled a gas well and piped it into town. Everything was set for a celebration. Then someone discovered the gas wouldn't burn.

A call was put in for Dr. Cady and Dr. D. F. McFarland of Kansas University. They identified the presence of helium in the gas. Scientists previously had discovered helium on the sun.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Jury Peers — By Milton Caniff

WE FOUND YOU FLOATING DOWN A RIVER IN A BOAT WITH TWO DEAD CHINESE... THERE WERE NO PAPERS OR MARKS OF IDENTIFICATION ABOUT...
YOU AND MR. GOODE HAVE BEEN VERY SWEET TO ME, MR. RYAN...
WE'RE GLAD YOU WOKE UP SPEAKING A LANGUAGE WE UNDERSTAND...
IT SEEMS NATURAL TO SPEAK ENGLISH...
BUT WHAT IF I HAVE COMMITTED SOME CRIME?
EVEN IF THAT WERE TRUE, THE JURY SEEMS SATISFIED WITH YOU AS YOU ARE!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

THE FORTUNE TELLER DID JUST WHAT YOU SAID SHE WOULD, TOM! WHEN SHE SAW THAT DEFENSE PLANT BADGE, SHE WARNED ME THAT A HORRIBLE ACCIDENT WOULD HAPPEN FRIDAY!
5-27-'43
SOMETHING PLENTY NASTY WILL HAPPEN--- BUT LOU VARZONI WILL BE ON THE RECEIVING END, NOT YOU, MRS. WORTH!
TOM! I'VE LOST THE BADGE! I MUST HAVE LEFT IT AT MADAME ZODIAC'S!
THAT'S OKAY! GIVES YOU AN EXCUSE TO GO BACK TODAY! AND THIS TIME, YOU'LL TAKE WITNESSES-- FROM THE F.B.I.!
MEANWHILE--AT MADAME ZODIAC'S--
SADIE! THE BOSS, LOU VARZONI, WANTS TO SEE YOU! HE'S WAITING IN THERE!

MICKEY FINN — Change of Luck! — By Lank Leonard

IT'S ALL RIGHT, SIR— NOW CALM DOWN!
C'MON— GO BACK TO YOUR TABLE!
IT'S THE GUY WHO LOST THE CHARM!
YEAH! AND HE'S ALSO THE GUY WHO LOST THE FIGHT!
YOU'VE CREATED ENOUGH DISTURBANCE! TAKE ME HOME! THAT EYE IS A DISGRACE!
THE CHECK, SIR!
WHAT'S THE MATTER, NOW!
M-MY W-WALLET! I-IT'S GONE!!

MR. AND MRS. — Through a Glass, Darkly — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

SAY, THE WINDOWS LOOK KIND OF DIRTY. HOW OFTEN DO YOU CLEAN 'EM?
WHAT DID YOU SAY?
I SAID THE WINDOWS NEED CLEANING. S'MATTER WITH THAT?
LET ME SEE YOUR GLASSES. TAKE THEM OFF
I THOUGHT SO! AND YOU HAVE THE NERVE TO SAY MY WINDOWS ARE DIRTY!
WELL—ER—AW— YOUR GLASSES ARE POSITIVELY MUDDY! AND MY WINDOWS WERE CLEANED ONLY YESTERDAY!

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH SAMPSON?
HE WAS TRYING TO TEACH BINGO TO TALK ENGLISH.
BUT IT ENDED UP BY BINGO TEACHING DOG-TALK TO SAMPSON!
BINGO HAS A MUCH STRONGER PERSONALITY!
ARF!
ARF!
ARF!

DIXIE DUGAN — No Cooperation Here! — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

DO I HAVE TO TELL YOU WHY I SENT FOR YOU?
NAW
YOU MEAN "NO, MISS DUGAN" AND STAND AT ATTENTION
NO, MISS DUGAN
DID YOU START THIS ANTI-DIXIE DUGAN CLUB?
YEH—
—YOU STARTED THIS DEFENSE SCHOOL, DIDNTCHA?
WELL—UH—YES! BUT WHAT'S UN-AMERICAN ABOUT THAT?!

JOE PALOOKA — Common Sense — By Ham Fisher

YOU DON'T HAVE NO RACE PROBLEM HERE DO YOU, BENNY? I NOTICE ALL KINDS OF DIFF'RENT PEOPLE.
NONE, JOE. WE RECOGNIZE NO RACE AS SUPERIOR. WE'RE ALL JUST MEMBERS OF THE HUMAN RACE. ALL HERE ARE BROTHERS.
THAT MAN IS A CHRISTIAN. THEY CAME HERE OVER A THOUSAND YEARS AGO TO ESCAPE ROMAN PERSECUTION. WE HAVE WELCOMED THEM THE SAME AS OTHER VICTIMS OF PERSECUTION WHO FLED STUPID AND VICIOUS TYRANTS.
THAT MAN IS OF ANOTHER SECT. WE DON'T CARE WHAT HIS ANCESTRY WAS OR HOW HE WORSHIPS AS LONG AS HE TREATS OTHER MEN THE SAME.
IT SEEMS TO ME THE ONLY THING THAT CAUSES WAR IS ONE MAN'S BELIEF THAT HIS--- --OWN KINDA WORSHIP AN' ANCESTRY ARE BETTER THAN OTHERS. OH GOLLY--I WISH A LOT OF PEOPLE WOULD REALIZE HOW SIMPLE IT IS.
CHILDREN KNOW IT. IT'S A PITY THAT THEY LOSE THIS COMMON TOUCH.

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Up She Goes — By Frank Martinek

AS RED WOULD SAY...FROM A FLYING CRATE TO A BUCKING BRONCHO OF THE SEA BACK UP INTO A RUBBER COW. OH, WHAT FUN!!
YOU CAN SAY THAT AGAIN, SIR!
THE FLOATING ANCHOR SLOWLY ASCENDS TO THE CONTROL CAR OF THE BLIMP
WELCOME ABOARD, SIR!
IT SHOULD BE WELCOME ALOFT... DON'T YOU THINK, LIEUTENANT?
MOTORS FULL THROTTLE... COURSE DUE SOUTHWEST... ALTITUDE FIFTEEN THOUSAND FEET!
AYE, AYE, SIR.

JANE ARDEN — The Search Spreads — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

THERE'S A LIST OF ALL CUSTOMERS FOR WHOM WE DID RE-TREAD JOBS IN NOVEMBER—THE LAST MONTH WE USED THAT MOULD—
THIS IS A GOOD PLACE TO START—THANKS!
THAT TIRE WAS A 6.50X16—YOU CAN CONFINE YOUR SEARCH TO JOBS ON TIRES OF THAT SIZE—
REMEMBER, WE'RE LOOKING FOR ALL GREEN CARS THAT THIS TIRE MAY FIT—
WE'LL RUN IT DOWN, CHIEF!
NOW WE WILL SEE WHAT CLUES WE CAN FIND HERE AT THE LABORATORY—WE HAVE GOT TO WORK FAST IF WE ARE TO RECOVER THOSE PLANS—
IT WON'T BE EASY TO GET THEM OUT OF THE COUNTRY—THAT'S IN OUR FAVOR!

DONALD DUCK — The Coo-Coo's Best — By Walt Disney

GALE, SUPPOSE YOU BRING ME AND MR. ROPER SOMETHING TALL, COOL AND REFRESHING!
COMING RIGHT UP, DAD!
WELL, YOUNG MAN, ARE YOU READY FOR YOUR FIRST ORDERS?
I GUESS SO, MR. FLINT!
THIS WILL BE AN EASY ASSIGNMENT! --JUST WHAT ARE YOUR EXACT DUTIES AT THE AIRCRAFT PLANT?
FINAL INSPECTION OF ENGINES, ON THE TESTING BLOCK!
PERFECT!--TELL ME, WHEN YOU EAT LUNCH AT THE FACTORY, DO YOU TAKE SUGAR IN YOUR COFFEE?
SUGAR? WHY--YES! BUT---!

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

AN ENEMY SPY!! I'LL SUMMON HELP!
NOT IF I CAN PREVENT IT!
UH-HHH!
MIGHT AS WELL MAKE A COMPLETE JOB OF IT! THE LOSS OF SOMEONE LIKE CHALMERS WOULD BE QUITE A BLOW TO THE AMERICAN DIPLOMATIC STAFF!
